2 More Gaming Suspects Give Up

Margins Cut To 50% in Move to Spur Stock Trade

Federal Reserve Action Explained By Eccles as Sign Deflation Is Near

The Federal Reserve Board last night cut the cash down payment required on stock purchases from 75 to 50 per cent of the price of the securities, effective Wednesday.

This action had long been demanded by securities dealers and by New York Stock Exchange President Emil Schram, in the hope that it would lift markets out of doldrums that have kept trading at an unusually low level for months.

The Reserve Board explained it was relaxing the margin requirements "in the light of the general credit situation."

This was a strong indication that the board believes that inflation has ceased to dominate the economic situation.

Marriner S. Eccles, member of the board, in a television appearance soon after the new order was released, said the move indicated "recognition that a deflation is certainly more imminent."

Eccles devoted his 15-minute appearance to a general discussion of the general economic situation, including a statement that a certain amount of deflation is a "healthy thing for the country."

"I am sure the American public in its good sense did not expect the boom of the last three or four years to go on indefinitely," he said.

Earlier this month, the board had relaxed controls over installment buying credit, giving a longer term for installments on purchases of automobiles, furniture, refrigerators, washing machines, radios, and several other household items.

The 75 per cent margin requirement on stock transactions had been in effect since February 1, 1947. For the 11 months before that, the margin had been 100 per cent—meaning that stocks had to be paid for entirely in cash.

The board was authorized by Congress to fix the minimum cash down payment to prevent "excessive use of credit" in the stock markets across the country.

Officials said credit outstanding on stock transactions now is at near an all-time low. The market for weeks on end has been practically asleep, with daily turnover averaging only about 700,000 shares, as was the case yesterday.

Railroad Absolved, But Pays $18,000 To Boy in Accident

Philadelphia, March 28 (U.P.).—The judge said 7-year-old Johnny Guille had no case.

Even his attorneys admitted the railroad was not to blame for the accident in which Johnny lost both his legs.

But the Reading company volunteered today to give the child $18,000 to help make up to him for the pain and the lost of good times.

Judge Raymond MacNeille approved the voluntary settlement.

"It is very unusual," he said, "for a corporation to give any substantial settlement in a case when the law says they don't have to."

Even Johnny's testimony backed the railroad's contention that it was not guilty of any negligence in the accident on March 12, 1948.

Johnny's counsel, David F. Kaliner, announced that his law firm would cut its fee to 25 per cent of the settlement, instead of the 33 1-3 per cent originally stipulated.

Truman Wins Again, Beating Vinson in Battle of the Quote

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman and Chief Justice Vinson argued over a famous Latin quotation last night—and Mr. Truman won.

The occasion was a dinner at the Mayflower, given by friends of Louis Johnson, the new Secretary of Defense. Chief Justice Vinson, in an oratorical flight, went back to the days when the Carthaginians were swarming toward Rome in an attempt to gain control of the Mediterranean and the Roman Empire. He said that Cato the Elder, would conclude his speeches in the Senate with the words:

"Carthago delenda est." (Carthage must be destroyed.)

When it came his turn to speak, Mr. Truman recalled that he had had an argument recently in Key West with Chief Justice Vinson over the approach to Rome of Attila the Hun. That was settled, he said, and both were right.

"Now," he continued, "I want to argue with him about another quotation which he made tonight . . . by Cato. If I remember correctly, that quote was 'Delenda est Carthago.'"

The Chief Justice got to his feet. "I stand corrected," he said, thereby making the opinion unanimous.

Others at the Johnson dinner agreed that Mr. Truman had placed the noun correctly. In addition, the President had the backing of Webster's New International Dictionary.

Mr. Truman, after getting Chief Vinson straightened out, went on amid laughter to confound the newspaper reporters who were covering his speech.

"Now," he said, "there have been statements in the Senate of the United States, only they have been 'Delenda est Trumano.' They didn't work quite as well as 'Delenda est Carthago' did. And I am happy to say that I have no ill feeling towards those gentlemen who would like to have delenda est'ed me."

The official White House stenographer spelled it as it sounded, coming from the President, but some of the newsmen had a time with it.

Chief Justice Vinson had brought

Johnson Says He'll Promote Armed Unity

(Pictures on Page 2)

Post Reporter

Louis A. Johnson became Secretary of Defense yesterday and immediately promised that the armed forces "will be united as one in the service of the Nation."

The 58-year-old West Virginian was sworn in by Chief Justice Fred Vinson in the open air inner court at the Pentagon before a crowd officially estimated at 11,000 persons.

He succeeds James Forrestal, first Secretary of Defense. Later in the day, President Truman presented the Distinguished Service Medal to Forrestal at a surprise White House ceremony.

Women Lend Military Pomp

Members of the Cabinet, Senators, Congressmen and top brass of the Services were on hand for the brief "change of command" ceremony at the Pentagon. Smart rows of WACs, WAVES, WAFs and women Marines, lining the Pentagon corridors and an Army, Navy and Air Force honor guard lent military pomp to the occasion. The Marine Band played.

A scheduled inspection of the blue-clad infantrymen and sailors and khaki-clad airmen, resplendent with yellow puttees and scarfs, was omitted, however. It had been arranged as a farewell to the retiring Defense Secretary.

Forrestal, obviously tired from working at top speed during and since the war, left by air late in the day for Hobe Sound, Fla. He will take a long rest before returning here.

Statement Explains Policy

Immediately following the ceremony Johnson issued a statement declaring that the United States wants peace "if we can humanly get it with honor and freedom."

"But if there is aggression," he added, "we are calmly confident that we can stop it."

He said the Nation's foreign policy—"to defend its own national interests and the principles of world democracy"—was indorsed by both major parties and the American people.

"Our defense policy," Johnson continued, "will consist in mustering the maximum of strength, within the limits of our economy and our democracy, to back up that foreign policy and make America secure by discouraging any potential aggressor."

Mrs. Louis Johnson sat in the

Sforza to See Acheson Today On Pact Plans

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Italy's Foreign Minister, Count Carlo Sforza, arrived here last night as the first foreign representative to reach Washington for the signing of the North Atlantic Treaty.

The Van Dyke-bearded, 75-year-old statesman, one of the first opponents of Mussolini's fascism, solemnly told reporters at Union Station:

"I have put my name on many treaties, but if there is one which I am glad to sign as a man and as a citizen, it is the Atlantic Pact—because it means peace."

Formal notice that they will join the United States on April 4 here in signing the treaty has been given by Great Britain, Canada, France, Norway, Belgium, The Netherlands, Luxembourg and Denmark.

Bevin Arriving Wednesday

Italy's Parliament has approved her participation in the pact and word is being awaited as to whether Iceland and Portugal also will join the alliance.

is expected to arrive in New York on Wednesday, aboard the Queen Mary, with the other Ministers due later this week.

Count Sforza, who has been a frequent visitor here and who lectured in the United States from 1936 to 1943 during his self-imposed exile from Fascist Italy, arrived in New York yesterday morning by plane from Paris.

Accompanied by Italian Ambassador Alberto Tarchiani, Count Sforza was greeted here by State Department Chief of Protocol Stanley Woodward, and the Italian Embassy staff.

Meeting Acheson Today

His arrival ahead of the other Ministers, it is believed, will give him an opportunity to discuss the knotty problem involving disposition of Italy's prewar colonies in Africa.

At 2:30 p. m. today, Count Sforza is scheduled to meet with Secretary of State Dean G. Acheson, then probably will go back to New York tonight, returning to Wash-

Three Scientists Find Error In Basic Electron Computation

National Bureau of Standards scientists have succeeded in measuring energy required to upset free-spinning protons, and hail that success as one of "utmost significance."

"It is a most important contribution to modern physics," declared Dr. Edward U. Condon, bureau director.

Results of the experimental work, it was explained, mean that important properties of the components of atoms can be measured with far greater precision, and a convenient standard for measuring magnetic fields can be established.

The basic research success was attributed to experiments conducted at the bureau by a team of scientists comprising H. A. Thomas, R. L. Driscoll and J. A. Hipple.

Actually, what the scientists did was to recalculate to an "unprecedented accuracy" two mathematical computations of import to the whole field of atomic physics. These are the absolute value of the magnetic moment of the proton and the value of the basic constant e/m (electric charge to mass ratio) of the electron.

The first, scientists said, will be a scientific guide to operation of giant electromagnets used in "atom smashers," while the second will give physicists a more precise mathematical base on which to build computations of electronic research.

Just how painstaking was their work is shown by the fact that the e/m value—as important in the electronics field as the well-known Pi, or 3.1416, is in mathematics generally—was proved by them to be 1.75878, instead of the previously accepted 1.75936.

The difference doesn't look like much, they admitted, but it means a lot of scientists will have to do a lot of refiguring.

Sales Tax Substitute Is Defeated

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

The House yesterday killed, 130 to 100, a District revenue bill offered by opponents of the sales tax.

Backers of the substitute plan then forced delay until today in the final voting on a 2 per cent sales levy for Washington.

Overnight delay was won by Representative Walter K. Granger (D., Utah) with a formal demand for the House to get an engrossed, official copy of the sales tax bill before voting on it.

McCormack Takes Floor

Granger said several members, six of them from New York, who were absent yesterday, are expected to turn up today to vote against the sales tax.

Sponsors of the sales tax bill were cheered by the fact that House Majority Leader John W. McCormack (D., Mass.) took the floor during the four-hour debate to appeal for passage of the 18-million-dollar revenue package.

It was McCormack, presiding at the end as acting Speaker, who ruled that Granger had made his demand for the engrossed copy in time to stay final voting on the bill.

There may be two roll calls today, Granger said. The first will be on a motion to send the sales tax bill back to the House District Committee. If that fails, the second will be on passage. In similar tests two weeks ago, the House flip-flopped by first refusing to return a sales tax bill to committee, then refusing to pass it by a vote of 176 to 166.

Bill Changed Little

The bill headed for today's House vote is substantially the one recommended by a 15-5 majority of the House District committee.

Besides the 2 per cent sales tax it calls for a 15-cent boost in the present property tax rate of $2 per $100, a 50 per cent increase in liquor license fees, a reduction from $10,000 to $5,000 in the tax exemption for unincorporated businesses, and finally, on income received after December 31 it calls for increasing the personal basic income tax exemption in the District from $1000 to $4000.

Main drive to beat down this program was sparked yesterday by Representative Granger, who offered as a substitute a plan calling for:

1. Extension of the District personal income tax to all persons living here seven months or more in the year, with credits for State income taxes paid elsewhere, and approximate doubling of the present income tax rates.

2. A 25-cent increase in the $2 per $100 property tax rates.

3. An approximate doubling of present gallonage taxes on wines and liquors.

Sasscer Amendment Loses

The House turned the Granger plan down first by a standing vote, 115 to 9, finally by a teller vote, 130 to 100.

A voice vote then defeated a proposal of Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer (D., Md.) to exempt home remedies as well as prescription medicines from the sales tax. The House action left prescription

Star Witness Loses Job In Restaurant

By Richard Morris
Post Reporter

Two waitresses at The Circle Cafe, 1133 14th st. nw., including a key witness in raids on Washington gambling spots, were discharged from their jobs Saturday night, it was disclosed yesterday.

They were identified by the U. S. Attorney's office as Bernice Franklin, Suitland, Md., who has testified before the special grand jury on gambling and remains under subpena, and Ruth Ensor, listed in the 1200 block 12th st. nw.

Leon Tsilis, night manager of the cafe, told The Washington Post the girls were fired because the restaurant "is a business establishment and we can't have two girls here who don't work together."

Asked if their work had been satisfactory, Tsilis said "up to a certain point."

"We've got to have harmony up here, and we can't keep two girls who fuss with each other," he said.

Miss Franklin told friends she reported for work Saturday night, the day after United States Attorney George Morris Fay directed raids on eight alleged gambling joints in Greater Washington.

She was handed an envelope in which was a note saying her services were no longer required at the restaurant, she said.

The red-haired woman, who is about 30, has worked for several months with the U. S. attorney's office on the current investigation. She was quoted by friends as saying she could find no justification for her discharge.

She was quoted as saying she felt her testimony before the special grand jury under subpena was her duty as a citizen.

It was learned that Miss Franklin has worked at the restaurant for more than a year, while Miss Ensor was employed there within the last year.

U. S. Attorney Fay's investigators Saturday arrested 40-year-old Attilio Acalotti, alias Till Alcott, on a warrant charging he intimidated a Government witness. He was described by Fay as a longtime curbstone bootlegger and bookie.

Since then, Miss Franklin has been under 24-hour protective custody of the Justice Department.

Asked if reports that additional threats have since been made against witnesses are true, Fay said a statement on the position and further action of his office would be made as the grand jury heard testimony and returned indictments.

Miss Franklin has acknowledged she was a friend of Acalotti's up until several months ago. She has since signed an affidavit, in which she declared Acalotti telephoned

Woman Dies 73 Years After Entering Home

Goshen, N. Y., March 28 (AP).—Ellen Burke, who lived at the Orange County Welfare Department Home for 73 years, died yesterday. She would have been 98 years old next month. She entered the home December 31, 1875, as an "unwed, prospective mother," officials of the home said.

Segregation Is Being Ended In Air Force, Symington Says

Secretary W. Stuart Symington told a presidential committee yesterday that racial segregation is being ended in the Air Force and that the USAF's 332d Fighter Group will be broken up and its Negro pilots and enlisted men scattered throughout the service.

This disclosure, The Washington Post learned, highlighted a closed meeting of President Truman's Committee on Equality of Treatment and Opportunity in the Armed Services at the Pentagon, at which the Secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force outlined their policies and plans on racial problems.

"Marked progress" toward abolition of discrimination in the military forces was reported by advocates of integration following the meeting.

Army Secretary Kenneth Royall said his service is considering changes in the so-called Gillem Board Report—a postwar group which laid down personnel policies on racial problems.

Some experiments in further integration were promised, although nothing definite has been decided upon, it was said. However, a better understanding between Army chiefs and Negro leaders since the impasse of a year ago was reported.

Breakup of the 332nd Fighter Group at Lockbourne Air Force Base, Ohio, will send its first and only commanding officer — Col. Benjamin O. Davis, jr., to attend the Air University at Maxwell Field, Ala. After that Davis, who has headed the Negro air unit since early war days, will be assigned as any other USAF colonel, Symington informed the committee.

Other personnel will be similarly reassigned, but one squadron perhaps will be kept under Negro command, possibly as a mixed unit, it was said. Some of the younger pilots will be assigned to jet units, officials indicated.

Negro leaders long have sought to split up the 322nd Group. Pilots were falling behind the times, inasmuch as the unit operates F-51s—wartime piston engine planes.

The President's committee also heard Gen. Omar Bradley, Army Chief of Staff, in addition to the three Secretaries. Yesterday was the group's second monthly meeting at which testimony was taken. Former Solicitors General Charles Fahy heads the group. Other members are: Lester B. Granger, Dwight R. G. Palmer, William E. Stevenson, A. J. Donahue, John H. Sengstacke and Charles Luckman.

Grand Jury May Call In More Witnesses in Case Involving Police

About 13 witnesses have been subpenaed to appear before the District grand jury today to testify in the brutal beating January 14 of Taxi Driver James Rowell.

Identity of the witnesses was withheld by the Government yesterday, but a spokesman said it "does not necessarily mean there won't be others."

The beating of Rowell, which took place before dawn near Thomas Circle, has been under investigation by the Justice Department for several weeks. They have sought to determine if there was a violation of civil rights statutes.

An earlier investigation had been made by Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett, after he transferred two vice squad men who reportedly were involved in the beating.

They are Sergt. James Roche and Pvt. Angelo Bonaccorsy. Barrett said he thought the two were "guilty as hell, but I've got to prove it."

Rowell himself failed to identify them in a subsequent police lineup.

William A. Paisley and Leo Metzer, special assistants to the Attorney General, will present the facts of the case to the District grand jury.

Rules Committee Postpones Action On Hartley Repeal

The House Rules Committee postponed action yesterday on the Administration's bill to repeal the Taft-Hartley law.

Chairman Sabath (D., Ill.) said witnesses will be heard on the measure today.

Representative Lesinski (D., Mich.), chairman of the House Labor Committee, told reporters he will ask for prompt Rules Committee clearance so the bill can be called up for debate late this week or early next week.

Identical Administration-backed bills to repeal the Taft-Hartley law have been voted out of the Senate and House Labor Committees on a hurry-up basis. The Senate bill, although on the calendar, is not expected to be brought up for debate for several weeks.

Barrett Gets Maher's Help On Gambling

District Legal Aide Assigned by Young; Duties Unexplained

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett yesterday asked for and got the District's "hot potato" man—Daniel B. Maher—to aid him in "certain phases of the gambling inquiry."

The request was made personally by Barrett to District Commissioner John Russell Young. Later, Barrett told reporters he had no statement to make "today" on the gambling investigation. He said he would have a statement "later," containing "facts and figures."

Maher, special assistant corporation counsel, last week was assigned to help Acting Fire Department Chief Joseph A. Mayhew in revisions of the fire manual. This assignment is expected to be postponed until he completes the work for Barrett.

Just what that work is to be could not be learned yesterday. Maher had no statement to make on his job, and there was no comment from police officials. However, Maher spent most of yesterday in the office of Lieut. Roy Blick, head of the District vice squad, going through records.

Senate Battle Looms Today On Conferees' Rent Measure

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Already threatened with squally weather, if not a storm, the compromise rent-control bill will be taken up by the Senate today, 60 hours before the present law expires.

The conference measure extending controls for 15 months guarantees landlords "a fair net operating income" from their properties, leaving it to Housing Expediter Tighe E. Woods to determine what such income should be.

When Banking Committee Chairman Burnet R. Maybank (D., S. C.) introduced the bill late yesterday, immediate criticism was voiced by Senators Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) and Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.).

Their criticism was mainly directed at the fact that the measure does not sufficiently spell out either what is meant by "a net operating income" or what is meant by "a fair income."

Senator John Bricker (R., Ohio), a member of the committee, said he would speak against adoption of the conference report, but that he did not know whether or not he would move to send it back to conference.

Bricker said the bill merely protects landlords against operating at a loss and "is a clear reversal of the express policy of the Senate to do something for the landlords and of the express policy of the House to give landlords a reasonable return."

Maybank said the measure guarantees landlords a fair income over and above operating costs.

Senator John Sparkman (D., Ala.) told reporters the new formula amounted to "practically what the Housing Expediter is

Prosecutor Appears For 2 Hours Before Special Grand Jury; New Agent Identified

Two more gambling suspects surrendered to the United States marshal yesterday, bringing to 32 the number of alleged gamblers arrested in the last four days.

They are Ralph Caparotti, 35, alias "Rags" Costello of 1124 Oak st. ne., and Frank Billeci, 41, of 509 Margaret dr., Silver Spring, Md.

Caparotti was charged with setting up and promoting a gaming table used in connection with horse race betting at 1504 Oak st. ne., from January, 1947, to September, 1948.

Freed in $1500 Bond

Billeci was charged with setting up and promoting a lottery, known as "numbers," during the first week of January, 1949, at 908 14th st. nw.

Both men were released under $1500 bond. Their cases were continued until April 13 at the request of U. S. Attorney George Morris Fay by U. S. Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence. Their attorney, Clifford Allder, objected to the continuance.

The complainant in both cases was Bernice Franklin, undercover agent for Fay, who has been placed under 24-hour protective custody by the Government after receiving threats of violence.

At least two more suspects, identified only as "Chi-Chi" and "Whitey," were still being sought last night in connection with the grand jury gambling investigation, which climaxed 10 months of work Friday with eight simultaneous raids in Maryland and the District.

Fay met with the grand jury for 2½ hours yesterday morning with his assistants John Fihelly, William Hitts, Daniel L. O'Connor, James R. Sharp, and B. Downey Rice, the last three former FBI agents.

New York County Doctors to Fight U. S. Health Plan

New York, March 28 (AP).—The New York County Medical Society tonight reversed itself, and approved an American Medical Association assessment for an "educational campaign" against Federal health insurance.

In approving the $25-a-member assessment, the society, one of the largest medical units in the nation, also approved an AMA voluntary pre-payment health plan.

The society on February 28 disapproved the AMA assessment, which is to be used in a campaign against the Federal compulsory health insurance plan.

The vote at that meeting was 432 to 333.

About 1500 members attended tonight's meeting. The physicians reversed the February 28 vote and then, by a large margin, voted to back the assessment plan.

Acheson to Head U. N. Delegation

10 Nations Act

Constitution For Europe Union Begun

London, March 28 (U.P.).—Europe took a first step toward unity today when 45 diplomats from 10 of its states met in a small room in the British Foreign Office to write a constitution for the Council of Europe.

In their first communique, the diplomats said that within a few hours they had reached "large measure of general agreement on the main principles." It added: "There are many matters of detail still to be settled."

The task of writing a constitution is expected to take about 10 days. Europe wants the council to start functioning this summer.

The communique said: "It is the object of the conference to reach agreement on all questions at issue and to prepare common proposals for submission to the meeting of foreign ministers which, it is hoped, will take place in London some time after Easter."

The council will be composed of a committee of 10 ministers, a sort of cabinet, which will meet in private, and an assembly of 100 men, the nearest the continent has ever come to the centuries-old goal of a parliament of Europe.

Both the ministers and the parliament will try to coordinate Europe's economic and political thinking, leaving military problems to the Atlantic Alliance. But the council can only recommend. It can not enforce its decisions.

Represented in the conference room were Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg, Sweden, Denmark, Norway, Italy and Ireland, almost all of western Europe.

Gladwyn Jebb, British Undersecretary of State, was elected chairman. All meetings took place behind closed doors. Reporters and photographers were barred from entering the building.

Secretary of State Dean G. Acheson will head the United States delegation to the opening of the United Nations General Assembly meeting next Tuesday in New York.

The delegation will hold a conference here on Saturday, the same day that Acheson will meet with Foreign Ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty nations to plan for the treaty signing Monday.

Secretary Acheson will make occasional trips to New York while the Assembly is in session, but activities there will generally be left in the hands of the delegation.

There is only one change in this year's United States delegation. Erwin D. Canham, editor of the Christian Science Monitor and president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, is an alternate delegate replacing Assistant Secretary of State Ernest Gross.

Gross is now congressional liaison director for the State Department.

The delegates are Ambassador Warren R. Austin, United States representative and chief of the United States mission to the U. N. John Foster Dulles, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Ambassador Philip C. Jessup and Benjamin V. Cohen.

In addition to Canham, alternates are Assistant Secretary of State Willard Thorp, Ambassador Ray Atherton, Ambassador Francis T. Sayre and Assistant Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

Because the assembly session is a continuation of the Paris meeting of last fall, and not a new session, it should be over in "four to five weeks," said Rusk.

Principal new items expected on the agenda, said Rusk, are the disposition of the prewar Italian colonies; another move by Poland to seek to obtain economic sanctions against Franco Spain; the question of freedom of information, and the Indian problem in South Africa.

Rusk predicted that Israel's application for membership in the U. N. will receive wide support, unless there should be new outbreaks of violence in Palestine.

He said he considered it possible that the question of reestablishing diplomatic relations with Spain would be proposed, but declined to say what the United States' position would be.

If the December, 1946, resolution—under which many nations withdrew their ambassadors from Spain—remains in effect, he said, the United States will continue to follow it.

Last year, Polish attempts to strengthen this with economic sanctions were defeated.

Truman Wins Quote Battle

Cato the Elder into his speech, apparently, just to draw a contrast. Quoting from one more lighthearted than the Roman, he said:

"He who lights a candle is better than he who curses the darkness."

It was quite a night for quotations. Secretary of Defense Johnson, dedicating his department, recited a poem:

One ship goes East
Another goes West
With the wind . . . winds that blow
It's the set of the sail
And not the gale
That determines where they go.'

"Mr. President," said Johnson, "my every move as Secretary of Defense will be to set the sails of the department for peace, and not for war."

James Forrestal, outgoing Secretary of Defense, won an ovation when he turned to Johnson and expressed a warm and deep desire to see him succeed in a job which he said was the most difficult and complex in the Government, next to the Presidency.

"And that comes from my heart," said Forrestal.

Col. J. Monroe (Steamboat) Johnson, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, presided at the dinner, and pointed out that he outranked Secretary Johnson, a lieutenant colonel in the Army Reserve.

President Truman said he was glad that "Steamboat" put the new Secretary of Defense in his place.

"I am a colonel myself," Mr. Truman said. "At least, I suppose I am. I don't know whether the Chief of Staff has canceled that commission or not."

"No, sir!" shouted Gen. Omar Bradley, Army Chief of Staff, who was sitting among the guests.

Mr. Truman noted the presence of Representative Dewey Short and described him as the only Republican in the House that Missouri could boast of. He also pointed out two men who had served with him on the old Truman Committee—Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.) and Senator Harley M. Kilgore (D., W. Va.).

Among others at the dinner were members of the Cabinet, members of the White House staff, Senator J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; Edwin Pauley, District Commissioner J. Russel Young, Robert V. Fleming, Milton Kronheim, George Allen, James Bruce, United States Ambassador to Argentina, Gene Buck, and Eugene Meyer, chairman of the board of The Washington Post.

World Bank Aid In Egypt Studied

The International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, at Egyptian request, has sent a mission to Egypt to examine the possibility of bank participation in financing economic development plans of the Egyptian government. In particular, the mission will study an irrigation project which would provide year-around irrigation for 250,000 acres of farm land in the province of Quena, about 300 miles south of Cairo.

F. Dorsey Stephens, a loan officer of the International Bank, heads the mission.

Long-Range Reconnaissance In Orient Called Home by AF

The Air Force disclosed last night that its only long-range reconnaissance group in the Far East will be returned to the United States.

No reason was given for the shift, but the USAF is cutting back its forces from 59 to 48 groups. Over-all strategic planning has emphasized the Atlantic at the expense of the Pacific.

Two squadrons of the group—the 38th and 338th—now based at Clark Field, in the Philippines, will come to Topeka Base, Kansas, to join the Fifty-fifth Group there. The Fifth Group headquarters and the Twenty-third Squadron will transfer from Okinawa to Mountain Home Base, Idaho.

Other changes announced include:

Transfer of the Second Bomb Wing, a B-29 outfit, from Tucson, Ariz., to Savannah, Ga., next month. The Forty-third Bomb Wing will remain at Tucson.

Two fields used as emergency landing spots on the route from the United States to Panama will be closed. The fields at San Jose, Guatemala, and Managua, Nicaraugua, will be closed April 19 and the personnel transferred elsewhere in the Caribbean Air Command.

The 319th All-Weather Fighter Squadron, originally scheduled for transfer from Fort Clayton Field, Canal Zone, to Mo[illegible] Base, Wash., will go instead to McChord Base, Wash.

The 468th Heavy Construction company, consisting of about 75 men and 3 officers, will go from Selfridge Base, Mich., to Fort Pepperell, Newfoundland.

Thousands Watch Johnson Take Oath . . .

GREETING NEW SECRETARY—A crowd estimated at 11,000 watches the swearing in of Louis A. Johnson of Clarksburg, W. Va., as the new Secretary of Defense in the court within the Pentagon yesterday. Ceremony is being conducted in left center front row of spectators' proudly watching her husband being sworn in. She wore a blue suit, fur neckpiece and a single yellow orchid. With her was Mrs. Perle Mesta, well-known Washington hostess.

One member of the Nation's high military command was not present for the ceremony. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, left by air for Key West, Fla., an hour before the changeover.

Ike appeared pale and shaky as he climbed aboard the Independence, President Truman's plane, at the National Airport. But then he flashed his famous smile for reporters and told them, "I'm not as puny as I look."

May Invite Joint Chiefs

The general, ill with a serious stomach ailment, will take a complete rest in the Florida sunshine. He said he hopes later to have the Joint Chiefs come down for a weekend meeting with him.

Eisenhower told reporters the Nation's defense is in good hands. He praised Forrestal as a "great public servant" and added that he is confident Johnson will "do a job." He also lauded the chiefs of the armed services.

President Truman also heaped high praise on the retiring Defense Secretary. The citation with the Distinguished Service Medal—which is rarely given a civilian—mentioned Forrestal's "vigorous leadership, fearlessness, integrity, selflessness and unstinted expenditure of physical effort."

Forrestal Can't Finish

As Mr. Truman pinned the medal on Forrestal's chest, the latter started to say something but was unable to finish.

"It's beyond my . . ." he murmured.

"You deserve it, Jim," said the President.

Eisenhower also had some things to say about reports of bickering in the armed services.

"It's easy to talk about fights among the joint chiefs, but if you stop and think about the areas in which there could be differences, it is surprising that there are not more."

Majority Leader Proposes House Easter Recess

House Majority Leader McCormack (D., Mass.) said yesterday he plans to have the House recess from April 14 through April 25.

McCormack told reporters that if the House agrees to the plan, it will quit from Holy Thursday until after Easter.

He made the announcement at the White House after a meeting of President Truman, Democratic congressional leaders and Secretary of State Acheson.

Mr. Truman recently canceled all out-of-town speaking engagements during April in order to be in Washington for cooperation with Congress.

Reds Charge Hostile Acts In Austria

London, March 28 (U.P.). — Soviet Ambassador George Zarubin charged today that the western powers were harboring large numbers of anti-Soviet agents in Austria.

Zarubin made the charge at a meeting of the Big Four deputy foreign ministers who are attempting to write an Austrian peace treaty.

He argued that the West, in aiding refugees and displaced persons, was trying to protect persons engaged in acts against the interest of the allies of World War II.

He said several hundred thousand persons who left areas now occupied by the Soviet are in Austria as displaced persons or refugees and asked the West to withhold relief from persons who "for hostile reasons" refuse to accept help from their government or refuse to go back to their own countries.

American delegate Sam Reber, backed up by the British and French representatives, turned down this request on grounds that it meant forced repatriation.

Zarubin has insisted he does not want forced repatriation.

Reds Strike in Antwerp

Antwerp, Belgium, March 28 (AP). The port of Antwerp was virtually paralyzed today by a 24-hour Communist-led dockers' strike against the North Atlantic Security Pact.

"I get so many compliments!"
says Mrs. Dorothy Cook

"On a pretty hardwood floor, there isn't anything that brings the grain out as beautifully as Cellowax. Since I started using it, I've been getting so many compliments on my beautiful floors. Down in our club cellar, too, I found that Cellowax was about the only wax that didn't disturb the colors. It doesn't smear them. Gives a very dry, hard finish. And I don't have to wax as often as I used to. I just use a damp cloth—go over the floors lightly — the gloss comes right back."

It's true! Actual tests, in homes like yours, prove Cellowax gives floors HIGHER GLOSS, HARDER GLOSS, LONGER-LASTING GLOSS than 3 leading waxes tested! French Vote Seen As Swing to Right

For China

10-Month Interim Aid Is Advocated

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A 10-month "interim" extension of economic aid to China, with the President given complete control over the small 54-million-dollar aid balance, yesterday was voted by the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

The Senate meanwhile debated the $5,580,000,000 European recovery extension measure a third full day without reaching a vote.

A showdown on efforts to cut the ECA figure is expected today. Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) said the Senate will meet an hour early and he will hold a night session if necessary to speed the bill.

Across the Capitol, the House Rules Committee granted clearance to the House ECA version, but leaders said they will wait until the Senate votes before calling it up.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee, which last year tied a China aid title to the European Recovery bill, yesterday reported out a completely separate bill dealing with China, saying "Chinese assistance and European recovery are not conditioned upon each other."

"The China situation is in a state of flux," the House report said. "It is not possible at the moment to deal with it in long-range terms."

Designed to keep the ECA link with China unbroken "until the dust settles" in the present civil conflict, the bill spreads unexpended balances of the 1948 act over a longer period without granting any more funds.

Mr. Truman would be given carte blanche say over how the balance is spent "to enable him to meet situations in China undefinable in advance." But the committee underlined this warning in its report to the House:

"It should be made perfectly clear that there is no intention of using this provision to assist any government in China which is dominated by the Chinese Communists."

House Foreign Affairs Chairman John Kee (D., W. Va.) said the committee approved the bill with this understanding. While the restriction is not inrluded in the bill, he said he thought it precluded aid to any coalition government as well as to the Communists.

The House committee report said any extensive future aid for China will have to wait on "a full review of the situation in China and American interests therein."

The report said it is hoped conditions will permit such a review before the end of the present session, but in any case Congress will reconvene before the new February 15, 1950, deadline runs out.

Three Basic Principles

The report said three basic principles should be used as a guide during the present "period of uncertainty:"

1. Continuation of support of the principle of international respect for China's territorial and administrative integrity.

2. Desire of people of the United States to continue normal economic and cultural relations with the people of China.

3. Importance to our own national interest to continue economic assistance to China "so far as conditions make it practicable and appropriate to do so."

Attacked by Judd

Bitterly criticizing the committee's action, Representative Walter H. Judd (R., Minn.) threatened to file a minority report asking a flat three-month extension of the present China aid law, which expires April 3.

Judd charged the bill frees the President from any "limitations, conditions or standards" in dispensing aid. He said the President would have authority to "walk out" on the Nationalist government if he chose "and deal with any faction or warlord."

"This is a vote of no confidence in the central government of China," said Judd.

Fascism Feared

In a 71-page speech, Senator William E. Jenner (R., Ind.) charged "squandering" of United States resources abroad and said:

"Only under the most authoritative management will this Nation remain solvent unless we wake up. In other words fascism is dead ahead."

But Senator H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.) defended the program as "a definite block to the 'creeping paralysis' of communism." Said Smith:

"The passage of this legislation, continuing the program so brilliantly begun, will definitely tell the world that America is united in its support of the spirit and purpose of the United Nations movement for cooperative action to preserve the peace."

The first real Senate hurdle ahead of the ECA bill is an amendment supported but not yet introduced by Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio).

Taft proposed making $4,280,000,000 in ECA funds available for 15 months, with the proviso that the President could order the amount spent in 12 months instead.

Paris, March 28 (AP).—Interior Minister Jules Moch said today the French cantonal (county) elections showed the nation is swinging to the right.

The Communists took a drubbing in the Sunday balloting. This was interpreted as signifying the French people are moving toward closer solidarity with other western nations and have been encouraged by the North Atlantic Pact, the Marshall Plan and the Berlin airlift to stand up against the left.

The Communists, who campaigned against the Atlantic Treaty, dropped 147 of the seats they had in the "general councils," advisory local governing boards.

Socialists Lose 150 Seats

Moch's own Socialists, who in the early postwar days played ball with the Communists, also were big losers. They dropped 150 seats.

Gen. Charles DeGaulle's rightist Rally of the French People (RPF) gained 223 seats.

In all, 1507 local councillors were elected. The election was in two sections. On March 20 a total of 723 posts were filled by candidates who gained outright majorities. A simple plurality was all that was needed in yesterday's run-off for the remaining places.

The Interior Ministry gave this breakdown of seats won by each party, compared with seats held in 1945:

Party	Seats Won in Present Election	Gain or Loss Over 1945
Communists	37	Loss 147
De Gaullists	389	Gain 223
Socialists	279	Loss 150
Radical Socialist Group of Parties	358	Loss 15
Popular Republican Movement (MRP)	110	Gain 2
Rightists and Independents	334	Gain 86

De Gaulle's party won more seats than any other single party. His office claimed the RPF actually took 536 seats instead of the 389 credited to the party by government figures.

The middle-of-the-road government of Premier Henri Queuille is supported by a coalition of Socialists, Radical Socialists (moderates), Catholic Popular Republicans and some minor Rightist groups.

The Rightists and Independents elected in the local balloting are expected generally to follow a pro-government policy. This means that government supporters hold 1081 of the local council seats.

The Interior Ministry said popular vote totals might not be ready until Tuesday.

The election provided a significant show of strength for De Gaulle who opposes the government because he believes it is too weak. The balloting yesterday was his last chance to come to power in a scheduled election until November, 1951, however.

Policy Toward Yugoslavia Eased by U. S.

By Homer Bigart
N. Y. Herald Tribune News Service

The State Department, after considerable goading by the American Embassy in Belgrade, has modified its policy toward Yugoslavia.

Export licenses for equipment needed by Marshal Tito's government are now being granted. Passports good for Yugoslavia are issued to businessmen who can prove legitimate missions.

This modification of policy has been achieved slowly and without publicity.

In recent weeks licenses have been granted for the export to Yugoslavia of $2,500,000 in oil-drilling equipment, lack of which has made Tito entirely dependent on Albania and Romania for oil. Since the Tito-Cominform break, oil from Albania has been cut off entirely, and deliveries from Romania virtually have ceased.

Licenses also have been granted for mining equipment, and on the personal intercession of Ambassador Sava N. Kosanovic, 2000 tons of lard were released to help Yugoslavia maintain her ration for workers.

The State Department has finally come around to the idea that the Yugoslav economy must be kept going, and that it is futile and unwise to demand political concessions that would only serve to weaken Tito as the major ideological threat to Russian hegemony in eastern Europe.

At the moment, Yugoslavia's chief need is the expansion of her steel industry. A deal is under way with the New York firm of H. S. Brassert & Co., consulting engineers, for construction of steel plants involving $15,000,000. Applications for export licenses for material have not yet been filed.

Modification of the policy on Yugoslavia was undertaken only after the State Department was convinced that Tito's divorce from the Kremlin was genuine, but that there was no hope of pressuring him into joining the western camp. This has long been the position of Ambassador Cavendish Cannon and of Robert Reams, counselor of the Belgrade Embassy.

Greeks Call on Xappy S. Tpoyman...

Harris & Ewing

BRING GIFTS—The President yesterday received a costumed delegation of Greek women and a detachment of Evzones (uniformed Athens palace guards) in the White House rose garden. Mr. Truman is shown here receiving gifts which included a rug woven by Greek school children; a piece of pottery dating back to the sixth century, B.C.; a marble slab from the temple of the wingless Victory at the Acropolis, and a costume for Mrs. Truman. Mrs. Truman received her gift personally. The gifts were in gratitude for American economic aid. P. S.: In Greek, Harry S. Truman is spelled Xappy S. Tpoyman

Australia Mob Stench Bombs Communists

Brisbane, Australia, March 28 (U.P.).—Fifteen hundred demonstrators armed with stench bombs and rotten fruit broke up a Communist meeting tonight at Rockhampton, north of Brisbane.

The demonstration was so violent that police could not protect the Communists from the odorous barrage.

The demonstrators took over the meeting and sang: "There'll Always Be an England."

Police herded the Communists into a store where they barricaded themselves against fresh assaults.

In Sydney the majority of waterfront workers ignored a Communist call for a demonstration strike to protest the sedition trial of Communist Secretary General Lance Sharkey, who pleaded not guilty to having made a seditious statement. The prosecution quoted him as saying:

"If Soviet forces in pursuit of aggressors enter Australia, Australian workers would welcome them. Australian workers would welcome Soviet forces pursuing aggressors as the workers welcomed them throughout Europe when the Red troops liberated the people from the power of the Nazis."

Chinese Peace Talks to Open On Thursday

Nanking, China, March 28 (U.P.).—Gen. Chang Chih-chung announced today that the government delegation of which he is the head would fly to the Communist capital of Peiping on Thursday to begin peace talks to end the civil war.

Chang, minister without portfolio and Northwest China commander, told a press conference the Nationalist delegates would not take any concrete peace proposals with them to counter the Reds' eight-point "unconditional surrender" demands.

However, he said they would have "reference materials" with which to work for an equal peace.

Chang was a member of the "committee of three" which carried out unsuccessful negotiations during the mediation period of Gen. George C. Marshall.

Nanking, March 28 (AP).—Chinese government military authorities disclosed today they had ordered all non-essential persons out of the few remaining Nationalist positions on the north bank of the Yangtze River.

Gen. Teng Wen-yi, government military spokesman, said Communist attackers had been pushed back from the suburbs of Anking, north bank port 150 miles southwest of Nanking.

Israel Moving Departments To Jerusalem

Tel Aviv, Israel, March 28 (U.P.).—Israel today began to move five ministries and 10 other government departments to Jerusalem in what appeared to be an open step to make that city the capital of the Jewish state.

More than 1000 government workers will be transferred from the present seat at Hakirya, near Tel Aviv, to Jerusalem, where sovereignty is contested by Arabs and Jews. Troops of both sides jointly occupy the city.

James G. MacDonald of the United States, former Consul General, was installed as Ambassador at a ceremony in which President Chaim Weizmann thanked President Truman for his support of Jewish statehood. MacDonald became the first Ambassador in Israel.

A dispatch from Ankara reported Turkey is to grant de facto recognition to Israel, the first Moslem country to do so.

Nathan Friedman-Yellin, former leader of the old underground terrorists known as the Stern Gang, announced his "fighters" movement is to become a political party. Members must join Histadruth, the general federation of Jewish labor, he said.

Trans-Jordan Charges Flights Over Territory

Amman, Trans-Jordan, March 8 (U.P.).—Trans-Jordan charged today Israeli planes had made reconnaissance flights over Trans-Jordan territory in the common frontier area. It also accused Israel of failing to return Arab civilians seized in the Palestine fighting.

Agreement on Aqaba Reported Achieved

Rhodes, March 28 (AP).—Informants said tonight a face-saving "gentlemen's agreement" for reduction of forces in the Aqaba area has unblocked Israel-Trans-Jordan armistice negotiations.

Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, acting United Nations mediator, said the writing of an armistice agreement will begin tomorrow. The draft is scheduled to be completed by Wednesday night. After that it will have to be approved by Tel Aviv and Amman.

Israel already has signed armistices with Egypt and Lebanon. Agreements have not yet been concluded with Syria, Iraq, Yemen and Saudi Arabia.

Apparently, the British are willing to reduce their forces in Aqaba by transferring part of them further from the Israeli frontier.

Lucero Takes Army Post

Buenos Aires, Argentina, March 28 (U.P.).—Maj. Gen. Franklin Lucero, who until recently was Argentina's Military Attache in Washington, took office today as undersecretary of the army.

Scandinavian Ring Of Radar Proposed

Sir Robert Alexander Watson-Watt, Britain's "Mr. Radar," said here yesterday his country could well build a protective radar wall about Scandinavia, as "an important contribution of the United Kingdom to North Atlantic defense."

Military chiefs have recently been setting up a radar "wall" to guard Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

United States plans include radar encirclement of this Nation and a radar "wall" across the North Polar region to detect attack.

Sir Robert, who delivered the Frank A. Howard lecture on Industrial Research at George Washington University School of Engineering last night, said he knows of no means by which radar's detection of approaching aircraft can be nullified completely.

"Some measures can reduce the distance" (at which objects can be located on radar screens), he admitted.

He said Britain has the "materials, technology and economy" for the Scandinavian project. Radar equipment has become "an important commercial export" of Britain, he added.

Sforza to See Acheson Today

ington later this week, embassy officials said.

The Italian peace treaty provided that if the Big Four could not agree by September, 1948, on the disputed colonies—Libya, Italian Somaliland and Eritrea—the problem would go to the United Nations Assembly; it comes up there next month.

Assistant Secretary of State Dean Rusk said at a press conference yesterday that the United States favors an Italian trusteeship for Italian Somaliland, a cession of a portion of Eritrea to Ethiopia, and a British trusteeship for Cyrenaica, eastern portion of Libya.

A decision on the remaining area, incluning Mellaha, in western Libya, site of a United States strategic war-built air base, has not been reached.

Discussions continued yesterday on drafting of military-aid legislation to provide arms to Atlantic Pact members. Budget Director Frank Pace, jr., called on President Truman to discuss the program.

Pace said President Truman told him to give this legislative program "very careful consideration," which Pace said may require lengthy study.

The arms legislation, expected to involve between one billion to involve between 1 and 1½ billion dollars for aid to pact members, and possibly 500 million dollars worth of military supplies for other nations, has been the subject of extensive controversy on Capitol Hill.

Michael J. McDermott, State Department press officer, emphasized yesterday that there is no specific figure available on the cost of the arms program.

Published figures which purport to show detailed amounts are "erroneous," he said, for there will be no such figures available until the President has an opportunity to weigh the proposed program.

Secretary Acheson yesterday sat in on the regular Monday morning White House conference with Administration leaders in Congress, because the North Atlantic Treaty was the principal topic of discussion, according to Senate Majority Leader Lucas (D., Ill.).

The Senate, which must ratify the treaty by a two-thirds vote before it becomes binding on the United States, will not consider it until it has acted on domestic "must" legislation, said Lucas. He predicted that the pact hearings, before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, will take about a month.

Trumans Plan Envoys Dinner

President Truman and Mrs. Truman, unable to use the White House, will give a dinner in the Carlton Hotel for visiting Foreign Ministers and their wives the evening of April 4.

White House Secretary Charles G. Ross announced that the invitations began going out last evening. The dinner, a black-tie affair, will be given in the Carlton Room of the hotel. Plates will be set for 66 persons, including officials of the United States Government.

Secretary Ross explained that Blair House, residence of the First Family while the White House is being repaired, was not large enough for such a dinner.

The dinner will mark the end of a momentous day in which the Foreign Ministers will sign the North Atlantic security pact.

Former Clerk Indicted Here For Treason

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

Herbert John Burgman, 52-year-old former American Military Attache's clerk in Berlin, who is accused of turning propagandist for the Nazis, was indicted here yesterday on 69 overt acts of treason.

The District Court indictment made Burgman the twenty-fifth American to be charged with treason as a result of World War II, a Justice Department spokesman said.

Burgman is now held in District Jail pending trial for the offense which could result in the death penalty. He was born in Hokah, Minn., he was an American soldier in Europe in World War I, rose to be an economic statistician in Berlin, and refused to be repatriated in the last war, the Justice Department said.

Victor Woerheide, who has been assigned to prosecute the case, said Burgman has a German-born wife and a son who served in the German armed foces.

The indictment charged Burgman went to work for the Nazis in 1942, participated in Foreign Office conferences and became manager of Radio Station DEBUNK in Germany.

The station beamed propaganda at this Nation, fictitious news reports and commentary by Burgman using the alias of Joe Scanlon, according to the indictment. The broadcasts were calculated to impair civilian morale, destroy faith in the Govenment, and discourage American fighters, the indictment charged.

After the war, Burgman was temporarily taken into custody, but was released while his wartime activities were investigated. For a time, he worked as an interpreter for American forces at Frankfurt.

Court Considers Committee Conduct

By Chalmers Roberts
Post Reporter

The conduct of two congressional committees in handling witnesses came in for Supreme Court consideration yesterday.

The court agreed to review the perjury conviction of labor leader Harold R. Christoffel, sentenced to from two to six years in jail on a charge of lying before the House Labor Committee that he was not a Communist.

Then the court listened for two hours as attorneys for Gerhart Eisler and Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman discussed Eisler's stormy appearance February 6, 1947, before the House Un-American Activities Committee.

The usually voluble Eisler, called by the committee "the Number One Communist in the United States," sat quietly among the court spectators during the legal arguments. He is free on bond pending outcome of his appeal from a sentence of one year in jail and a $1000 fine for contempt of Congress. He is an Austrian and a Communist, his legal brief declares.

Eisler's attorneys, David Rein and Abraham J. Isserman, centered their argument in an attack on the constitutionality of the Un-American Activities Committee. Rein called the committee "a regulatory scheme to classify ideas and regulate speech" and he said Eisler had been called before it "solely for the purpose of harassing him for his political beliefs."

The committee, the attorney said, had no right to subpena Eisler and therefore he cannot be convicted for failing to obey it.

Isserman contended that Eisler had refused to be sworn as a witness at the 1947 hearing because he wanted "only three minutes" first to make a statement. He was not permitted to talk and never was sworn. Perlman contended, however, that Eisler wanted to make a speech and had, in fact, distributed a lengthy statement to the press charging that he was being politically persecuted.

Perlman told the court Eisler or his attorneys later on thought up the argument that Eisler wanted to protest before being sworn that he be permitted to have his attorney speak.

Eisler also attacked Judge Alexander Holzoff before whom the contempt charge was tried here in District Court. His attorneys claimed the judge should have disbarred himself because he formerly had been in the Federal Bureau of Investigation, close to its director, J. Edgar Hoover, and once had helped investigate Eisler.

To this Perlman retorted Eisler's attorneys were attempting to convict the judge by "guilt by association," something which, he added, they themselves object to.

Perlman then said charges presented in the current New York trial of American Communist leaders "show a great deal more bias, prejudice and hostility" on the part of Judge Harold Medina. But, he added, the judge was not disqualified.

The Christoffel case, to be argued the week of April 18, in on an appeal from the Court of Appeals which upheld his conviction, also in District Court here.

At the time he was questioned by the Labor Committee on March 1, 1947, Christoffel was head of the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co. local of the United Auto Workers Union (CIO). The local then was on strike but the walkout later collapsed and Christoffel was ousted from his union post.

Christoffel contended in his appeal the committee did not have a majority of its 25 members present at the time and therefore was not legally constituted.

Diplomats Say

West German Pact to Save 150 Plants

London, March 28 (AP).—Responsible diplomats said today Britain and France have agreed to most of an American plan to save a list of west German industries from dismantling.

The informants said the agreement provides for 150 plants to be removed from the list of plants to be torn down for reparations. The Humphreys Committee, a group of industrialists headed by George Humphreys of Cleveland, had recommended that 167 plants be saved. The committee made a survey at the request of Paul G. Hoffman, Economic Cooperation Administrator, to see how many of the plants could contribute to the European recovery plan.

The agreement was reached at a three-power conference on German problems which is continuing. The accord still is subject to confirmation by the British, American and French governments.

The diplomats said a compromise also had been reached on allowing Germany to resume building merchant ships not exceeding 9000 tons in size.

They also have agreed to remove from a prohibited list some German industries which were banned because of their war potential.

The informants said production of aluminum and magnesium, prohibited by the four allies at Potsdam in 1945, will be allowed.

'Peace' Group Plans Appeal To President

New York, March 28 (NYHT). The Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace said tonight that a "roll call for world peace" to be signed by "millions of Americans," would be presented to President Truman on Memorial Day.

The committee making the announcement described itself as "the action committee created by resolution at the plenary session of the Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace," which ended a three-day meeting here yesterday. All 560 sponsors of the conference are members of the "action committee."

Delegations, appointed by Dr. Harlow Shapley, Harvard astronomer and conference chairman, will visit President Truman, the Senate, House of Representatives, Secretary of State Dean Acheson and the American delegation to the United Nations to present resolutions adopted by the conference.

Their reception by American Government officials, particularly by the State Department, is foreshadowed by the preconference announcement by Acheson's department that the conference would prove to be a sounding board for Communist propagandists.

Two other points on the committee's program called for visits "to as many American cities as possible by the foreign artists and scientists" who attended the conference and early publication of a report on conference proceedings.

In beginning its campaign to carry the "no more war" drive across America, the committee announced the first postconference meeting will be held Tuesday at 8 p. m. in the Mosque Theater at Newark, N. J. It is one of many which the sponsors hope to arrange in major cities as far west as California and including Washington, St. Louis, Chicago and Los Angeles.

Shostakovitch Arrives Friday in Baltimore

Baltimore, March 28 (AP).—Dmitri Shostakovitch, Soviet composer, comes to Baltimore Friday along with a group of Russian, British and other foreign intellectuals.

They will appear at a "cultural and scientific meeting" at the Lyric Theater Saturday, under the sponsorship of the National Council of the Arts, Sciences and Professions.

Negro Voting Bar Rejected By High Court

A State cannot set up voting requirements which, in effect, make the Democratic Party a "white man's party," the Supreme Court ruled yesterday.

The ruling came on the 1946 Boswell amendment to the Alabama State constitution, requiring voters to "understand the duties and obligations" of good citizenship and explain the Federal Constitution. The lower court declared the amendment unconstitutional and the Supreme Court yesterday upheld the ruling by refusing to consider the case.

Only Justice Stanley F. Reed favored the granting of a hearing. He said one should be held because a State constitutional provision was involved.

The high court's action was in line with earlier decisions striking down attempts to limit Negro voting in Southern States.

A special three-judge Federal Court in Alabama had said flatly the Boswell amendment was sponsored by the State executive committee of the Democratic Party "to make the Democratic Party in Alabama 'the white man's party.'" The lower court added that white voters were not required to meet the tests which imposed "an exceedingly high, if not impossible standard" for voting.

The Supreme Court, in another case upheld the Government's contention that the Women's Sportswear Manufacturers Association of Boston had violated the antitrust laws by an agreement "to restrict competition and to control prices and markets."

Justice Robert Jackson, for the court, said inclusion of labor provisions in the agreement was no bar to antitrust prosecution. He said "benefits to organized labor cannot be utilized as a cat's paw to pull employers' chestnuts out of the antitrust fires."

Zilahy to Speak At Post's Book Luncheon Apr. 6

Lajos Zilahy, Hungarian-born author of the best-selling novel, "The Dukays," will be among the speakers at The Washington Post Book and Author Luncheon on April 6.

Zilahy

Zilahy has been a writer ever since he was convalescing in a hospital from wounds he suffered as a draftee in the Hungarian army during World War I. Most of his plays and books are devoted to condemning war and pleading for world peace.

"The Dukays," translated from the Hungarian and published by Prentice-Hall, describes the life of a noble Hungarian family in the period between the world wars.

The luncheon will take place in the Presidential Room of the Hotel Statler on Wednesday, April 6, at 1 p. m. Tickets, at $3 each, may be purchased at the book departments of Kann's and Woodward & Lothrop, and at these book stores: Ballantyne's, Brentano's, Better Mouse Trap, Chequire House, Community, Francis Scott Key, David Pearlman's, Raul Pearlman's, Pursell's, Savile's and Whyte's.

D. C. Episcopalians Contribute $18,467 For World Relief

Episcopal churches in the Diocese of Washington collected more than $18,467.12 for world relief last Sunday.

The first report on collections in the one-day world relief drive included 34 of the 90 churches in the diocese. The diocesean quota was $30,000.

Largest single contribution was made by Epiphany Episcopal Church, 1317 G st. nw., which reported an offering of $2710.65.

Reports from additional churches are expected within the next week.

Negro Group Member Given Okay as Juror

Richmond, Va., March 28 (AP).—Federal Judge Sterling Hutcheson ruled today that membership in the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is insufficient reason to disqualify a prospective juor in a segregation case.

He made this ruling in District Court at the opening of the trial in which William C. Chance, 64-year-old Negro school principal of Parmele, N. C., is seeking $25,000 damages from the Atlantic Coast Line railroad and Alva S. Lambeth of Rocky Mount, N. C., one of its conductors. Chance was ejected from an ACL train at Emporia, Va., last June when he refused to move to a coach reserved for Negro patrons.

The juror in question was scratched from the list, anyway, under the Federal rule which permits counsel for both sides to strike three from the list without assigning any reason.

The only witnesses called before court adjourned to resume tomorrow were Lambeth, the conductor, and Chance.

Kaiser-Frazer Plans Price Cuts

New York, March 28 (U.P.).—A drastic reorganization of the Kaiser-Frazer Corp., placing major control in the hands of the Kaiser family, has been completed recently, it was learned tonight.

The company also has decided to cut the prices on its automobiles an average of almost $250 a model in an effort to stimulate sales and plans several economy moves designed to lower operating costs, sources here reported.

Personnel changes were said to involve the elevation of Edgar F. Kaiser from vice president and general manager to president of the company which his father, Henry J. Kaiser, founded with Joseph W. Frazer in 1945.

Young Kaiser will replace Frazer, who becomes vice chairman of the board of directors, a newly created post. The elder Kaiser retains his post as chairman.

Association Officials Urge Education Aid

Philadelphia, March 28 (AP).—Top officials of the National Education Association called today for approval of Federal aid to education.

They hailed United States schools as the greatest "bulwark for the American way of life." Arguments being used against the Federal-aid-to-education proposal would lead to "chaos in American Government," said Willard E. Givens, executive secretary of the NEA.

Givens told reporters at the regional conference of the American Association of School Administrators that "determined tax-fighting groups are opposing the program." This opposition, he continued, is spearheaded nationally by the United States Chamber of Commerce and other groups who say they favor education but want others to pay for it, especially on the local level.

"These groups," Givens said, "offer the transparent argument that a number of States get less of the 300 million dollars than they would pay on the basis of Federal internal revenue receipts.

"This argument is an attack upon the basic taxing system of the American republic — a system which has been in operation over 150 years."

Those who talk about "getting back" from the public treasury, Givens added, "are doing as much harm as the Communist group. They would break down the financial unity, not only of the Nation as a whole but of State and local government."

Dr. Worth McClure, executive secretary of the AASA, said in another interview that "there is no better way to undermine the American way of life than by attacking the school system first."

Fears "Educational Slums"

"Deny Federal aid to the schools and educational slums will spread as more children come into the school system," he said.

Dr. John K. Norton, chairman of the educational policies commission of the NEA and the AASA said "The great businessmen that have been reached have indorsed Federal aid to education."

"If Federal aid is passed, 40 to 50 per cent of our children will benefit impressively. About 12 to 15 million children will be vastly improved educationally," he told a reporter.

The AASA conference received received from Homer W. Anderson, Newton, Mass., superintendent of schools, a lengthy report on planning for school building. Prepared by an NEA commission after a two-year survey throughout the Nation, the report recommended that new building be undertaken only in the light of long-range surveys of the maximum future need of each community, with each project to fit into that pattern.

The report called for pay-as-you-go financing where feasible, and urged that any bond issues necessary be for 20-year terms, payable one-twentieth of the total each year.

'Julius Caesar' Staged at Folger Theater

The Washington Post

FIRST NIGHT—Amherst College last night presented Julius Caesar in the first full-scale production in the Elizabethan playhouse of the Folger Shakespeare Memorial Library. In this scene, photographed from the balcony, are Richard Maxson, David Whorf, Peter Soderbergh, Alva Moog, jr., Richmond Grant, W. Thomas Lundell, Reed Stewart and Charles Hale

By Richard Coe
Post Reporter

Washington last night got a new "live" stage, but although a multi-million dollar edifice, there was room for an audience of only 256.

The theater is the Elizabethan playhouse of the Folger Shakespeare Memorial Library, an elegant and miniature impression of the building for which Shakespeare wrote his plays. Although the Library was opened in 1932, two years after its founder's death, last night's was the first full dress production on its stage.

To the Amherst College Masquers fell the honor of the first performance in the building administered, according to the terms of the Folger will, by the trustees of the Massachusetts college.

The play was "Julius Caesar," the familiar story of a tyrant's murder and the fall of the conspiracy which brought it about. Under the direction of Professor F. C. Canfield, the Masquers gave a splendid performance, highlighted by skilled readings and masterly use of lighting effects.

Watching a play in this unique setting was an eerie experience, for though the basis of the playhouse is primitive, the accoutrements are modern and luxurious. In the lowly pit of the past are what look from the back of the small auditorium to be churchly stalls. They cover comfortable, red plush seats.

Shakespeare's roof was open to the skies, but the skylight of the Folger Theater is shielded by a rich colorful banner. And the lighting effects, of which the Bard could not have dreamed, were used with modern skill that sped the drama swiftly toward its close.

No did the modern touches stop with the physical trappings. One might have expected a "Julius Caesar" acted in such a setting to be a night-long adventure. But the Masquers' version is cut to fit present customs, althought the story line remains clear and intact. The text used was the first folio as edited by Prof. George Lyman Kittredge.

Director Canfield followed Elizabethan tradition by dressing his cast in the clothes of Shakespeare's day, not even, he pointed out, "slightly Roman." The forestage and inner stage were used much in the manner scholars have reconstructed.

The large collegiate company held remarkably to professional standards. Three of the conspirators were outstanding last night: Peter Klaussen, as Casca, Donald Roberts as Cassius and James Maxwell as Marcus Brutus. All three read clearly, decisively and with manly spirit. Maxwell's chore is a particularly heavy one and it seemed to do splendidly, although he shows signs of many visits to Olivier's "Henry V" and "Hamlet."

The Masquers will repeat their performance tonight, Wednesday and Thursday evenings and at matinees today and tomorrow at the Folger for which tickets are virtually sold out.

Next Sunday afternoon there will be a televised version from the novel setting over NBC.

Heart Experts Report Gains In Research

By The Associated Press

Two leaders in the field of heart research reported yesterday that good progress is being made.

Dr. Paul D. White, of Boston, told a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee:

"We are on the verge of new advances and discoveries in heart disease, I am certain, which during the next decade or two, can and will dwarf the important discoveries which have already and recently taken place."

Dr. T. Duckett Jones of New York said:

"This is not a hopeless problem as may be seen from the fact that much has been accomplished in certain types of heart disease in the past few years."

They appeared before the Senate group to ask an increase of $10,900,000 over the $7,725,000 voted by the House for the National Heart Institute. The funds would be used for research grants and for construction of research facilities in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Dr. White is clinical professor of medicine at Harvard University and executive director of the National Advisory Heart Council. He predicted new advances and discoveries in heart diseases during the next decade or two which "will dwarf the important discoveries which have already and recently taken place."

Dr. Jones is medical director of the Helen Hay Whitney Foundation, which is interested in research in rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart disease.

John H. Tester, secretary of the research committee of the American Cancer Society, asked that $50,000 be made available to set up a committee to evaluate all claims to cance reures.

Senate Rent Bill Fight Looms doing now with respect to the hardship provisions under the present law."

The measure would allow States, or cities, towns or villages with the approval of the State governor, to do away with Federal controls. States could either institute new controls or let them drop altogether.

Senator Paul Douglas (D., Ill.), defending the action of the Senate conferees, pointed out that the House group had absolutely refused to consider the Senate's easily applied formula for two automatic 5-per-cent increases to landlords.

Even less clear, he declared, than "a fair net operating income" was the House-passed "reasonable return on a reasonable value." Senate conferees, he said, after many hours of wrangling had finally chosen "the lesser of two evils."

The text of the landlord relief provision in proposed compromise rent-control legislation reads:

"In making and recommending individual and general adjustments to remove hardships or to correct other inequities, the housing expediter and the local boards shall observe the principle of maintaining maximum rents for controlled housing accommodations, so far as is practicable, at levels which will yield to landlords a fair net operating income from such housing accommodations.

"In determining whether the maximum rent for controlled housing accommodations yields a fair net operating iscome from such housing accommodations, due consideration shall be given to the following, among other relevant factors; (A) increases in property taxes; (B) unavoidable increases in operating and maintenance expenses; (C) major capital improvements of the housing accommodations as distinguished from ordinary repairs, replacement, and maintenance; (D) increases or decreases in living space, services, furniture, furnishings or equipment; and (E) substantial deterioration of the housing accommodations, other than ordinary wear and tear, or failure to perform ordinary repair, replacement, or maintenance."

Benning Rent Raise Under Consideration

District Rent Examiner William F. Mansfield yesterday took under advisement a proposal to increase rents on 265 units of the Benning Heights project in Southeast Washington.

Mansfield heard approximately 15 witnesses testify against the proposed increases, before more than 200 persons in the board room of the District Building.

Most of the protests from tenants stressed what was termed diminished service.

Owners of the property, Benning Heights, Inc., asked that rents of three-room aparements be raised from $49.70 to $54.75, and on four-room units from $61.50 to $67.50.

2 More Suspects Surrender in Gambling Probe; New Secret Government Agent Is Identified

Rice, O'Connor and Sharp each testified before the jury for approximately 30 minutes.

No other witnesses were called.

When the jury adjourned at 1 p. m., lawyers for two of the arrested suspects asked Fay for "about $20,000" in cash seized during Friday's raid at 4310 46th st., Bladensburg, Md., headquarters of William "Snag" Lewis, whom Fay described as a "big-shot gambler."

New Agent Identified

Charles E. Ford and Myron Ehrlich asked Fay to return all of the money, except "whatever bills might be marked and used in evidence." They said most of the money belonged to Lewis.

In addition to Bernice Franklin and Wilfred D. Barrett, 24-year-old law student, the identity of a new Government undercover agent was learned today.

He is Pasquale Sanducci, who supplied Fay's office with the evidence on which a warrant was obtained to search Macedonia Coffee House, 746 9th st. nw., where Nicholas Floratos allegedly accepted a numbers bet on December 10, 1948.

As a result of Sanducci's information, the Coffee House was raided Friday. Floratos, absent at the time of the raid, surrendered Saturday and was released under $1500 bond.

Resident of New York

Little is known about Sanducci. Fihelly would say only that he is a "resident of New York, period," and that "we have him where we can get him when we need him."

Floratos' connection with the Macedonia Coffee House is not known by Fay's office.

He told O'Connor after his arrest he was a part owner of the club, it was said.

Subsequently he has said "I am in no way connected with the Macedonia. I am a shipping clerk."

Ownership Not on Record

O'Connor said records do not show any actual ownership of the shop since it is unincorporated and holds a class ownership license.

Both of the suspects who surrendered yesterday showed great shyness before newspaper reporters and photographers.

"Rags," who was arraigned before Lawrence at 2:57 p. m., said he had been associated with the Washington Times-Herald for 19 years, most recently in the mail-room.

Dressed in a neat double-breasted gray suit, "Rags" refused to pose for his picture, and rushed from Commissioner Lawrence's office crouched behind Allder. At the corner of E and 7th sts., nw., where photographers were waiting for him, he broke into a run and disappeared into the crowd.

Advice by Lawyers Indicated

Allder said his client had called him earlier yesterday, when he heard there was a warrant for his arrest. He wanted to surrender, Allder said.

It appeared that attorneys for the alleged gamblers were getting information on who was being sought, and urging their clients to surrender, rather than run the risk of having deputy marshals search their homes before an arrest.

Billeci, referred to in affidavits only as "Frankie, last name unknown," is a driver for the Times-Herald in Silver Spring.

A slight, dark-haired man with a cast in one eye, he was arraigned before Commissioner Lawrence at 4:15 p. m. He also called Allder earlier in the day and offered to surrender, his attorney said.

Telephone Removal Proceeding

Meanwhile, removal of 324 telephones and 26 teleprinters from the premises of suspected gamblers in Maryland and the District was proceeding slowly.

Fay has described this removal as one of the "most important methods we have" in curtailing organized gambling. All gamblers depends on leased wires in one form or another for their livelihood, Fay has said.

Harry I. Gilbert, associate superintendent of Western Union, which leases the teleprinters, said yesterday employes had been instructed to remove the machines immediately. He said he was not sure whether any machines had been removed yesterday.

John M. Howard, general commercial manager of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co., predicted the removal of telephones would not be completed until "the first of next week."

Each customer was being given three days' notice. Notification of cancellation started yesterday, he said.

Fearless Woman Seeks Police Job

Lexington, Ky., March 28 (U.P.).—A 41-year-old woman who said she is not afraid of any man, with or without a gun, today applied for the post of police chief of Evarts, Ky., the small mountain town which has had five police chiefs since August.

Mrs. Burrus

Mrs. Pearl K. Burrus of Lexington sent a copy of a letter to the Lexington Herald, morning daily, which she had mailed to the mayor of Evarts. The newspaper published the letter today.

Mrs. Burrus told the Evarts mayor, "I want it understood that if I am employed as chief of police of Evarts, I will not carry a gun or have one in my possession. I am not afraid of a gun nor a man with a gun, nor a man without a gun. I think I can arrest any man in Evarts or any place in Kentucky, without a gun."

The last chief and his assistant have been sentenced to 10 years in prison for a slaying.

Three others resigned, one from a jail cell and another was fatally shot.

Retraction of Charges Asked for Miss Strong

New York, March 28 (AP).—Counsel for Anna Louise Strong, American writer expelled from Moscow on spy charges, today mailed to Premier Stalin a letter asking that the Russian government retract the charges.

Her attorney, O. John Rogge, wrote that the charges against Miss Strong were "unfounded" and "due to the grave errors of certain lower (Soviet) officials."

Brazilian War Aide Arrives Wednesday

Maj. Gen. Canrobert Pereira da Costa, Brazilian Minister of War, is coming to this country Wednesday for a 19-day goodwill tour.

The Army, in making the announcement yesterday, said he is making the trip at the invitation of Secretary of Army Royall.

Barrett Gets Maher's Help

Gordon R. Young was advised of Maher's assignment.

Mason said he did not know what Maher would do to assist Major Barrett. General Young said, "This is the first I've heard of it. I have no comment."

United States Attorney George Morris Fay, whose investigators arrested more than a score of alleged gamblers in a series of raids last Friday, also had no comment on Maher's new designation.

Maher, former newspaperman and assistant United States attorney, was dubbed "hot potato man" for the Commissioners in October, 1947. He was to handle investigations ordered by the Commissioners, conducting them independently of Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West.

At the time, West said Maher's duties would be primarily to make investigation of all questions affecting District personnel, such as matters to be brought before police and fire board hearings.

Among the "hot potato" assignments since handled by Maher:

1. Fire Department case involving 11 counts of demoralization of the Fire Department against Chief Clement Murphy. Maher studied papers previously prepared by lawyers in the corporation counsel's office, and drew up charges. Murphy was cleared.

2. On May 7, 1948, he was assigned to assist Barrett in studying legal problems faced by police in making gambling arrests and getting convictions. The result was a report which purported to show that police were making gaming arrests, but that Fay's office either was failing to indict or prosecute the arrested persons. The Star said the assignment had a "fishy odor" and The Washington Post said Commissioner Young was "muddying the waters in naming Maher.

3. Maher next cranked up to establish an overall loyalty check system for the District Commissioners. But on January 28, his committee reported back that any disloyalty among District officials "would soon become known" and recommended abandonment of the proposal to set up "complicated machnery" to check employes.

"... what we are apt to take for granted"

TO REACH for the telephone has become second nature to most of us. Almost 2,200,000 times a day the people of Washington lift their telephone receivers to call friends, business contacts and a host of other people.

They expect to receive fast, accurate, courteous telephone service. And this is the kind of service we are striving to furnish.

That's why we're glad to read words like these in the many friendly letters we get from our customers each month:

"I'd like to express my thanks for what we are apt to take for granted in our hurried existence and that is . . . the considerate and courteous service furnished by the Telephone Company."

"You folks are doing a difficult job well."

"We appreciate the splendid service."

"We admire your prompt service . . . courteous and efficient personnel."

"My compliments on their unfailing courtesy and efficiency."

We know that service isn't perfect on every call, everywhere, but we're doing our human best to make it faster, more accurate and more dependable than ever before.

Growing in value—year after year

The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company

Cold Facts can sometimes be very heartwarming, too...

WE HAVE just published our 104th Annual Report to Policyholders as a 40-page illustrated booklet. It tells about the progress New York Life made in 1948 and contains important facts and figures dealing with the financial condition of the Company.

Set off by themselves, the figures tell a story of financial stability. But behind them lie many warm and human stories about the benefits life insurance brings to people in all walks of life everywhere.

It is a fact, for example, that in 1948 New York Life paid over $200,000,000 to policyholders and beneficiaries. This money is helping widows maintain their homes and bring up their children without hardship. It is helping to send sons and daughters to college who otherwise might not have gone. It is helping families enjoy the peace of mind that comes of knowing that the future is financially more secure. It is helping men and women in their old age live without financial worry.

It would be impossible to tell all the stories about all the people who benefit through life insurance policies. But in our Report this year we try, at least, to show what human values the facts and figures of our business often have.

In addition, the Report contains helpful information on "The Problem of Growing Older," as well as a description of an improved service for policyholders so that death benefit payments and policy loans may be expedited, a review of the way the Company has made mortgage money available for housing, and a discussion of the Company's policy in making its investments in 1948.

The essential facts and figures of our 1948 operations will be mailed to policyholders as usual with premium notices. The larger illustrated booklet will gladly be sent upon request.

A few figures from our 104th Annual Report to Policyholders December 31, 1948

Assets totalled $4,448,369,759, an increase of $214,185,161 over the close of the previous year. After deducting $4,181,863,874 of reserves and other liabilities, surplus was $266,505,885, or $35,387,161 more than at the end of 1947.

Sales of new life insurance in 1948 amounted to $857,719,600, which is $335,600 greater than in 1947.

The Company had 3,779,541 policies in force for $9,539,584,229 of life insurance protection on December 31, 1948. The net growth of the Company during the year, as measured by the increase in life insurance in force, was $475,979,615.

The provision for 1949 dividends to policyholders is $45,741,294. New York Life has always been a mutual company and pays dividends to policyholders only.

A copy of the 40-page illustrated 104th Annual Report to Policyholders will gladly be sent to anyone requesting it.

Babich Refused Bail In Girl's Slaying

Milwaukee, Wis., March 28 (U.P.).—Milton Babich, 19, today pleaded personally for bail on a charge of murdering Patricia Birmingham, 16, saying he should be with her sister, Kathleen, 17, who is to bear his child.

After he had been denied bail by the district court, he appeared with his attorney, Arthur Richter, before Circuit Judge Daniel L. Sullivan, a higher tribunal. He assured the court that he had killed Patricia by accident, while trying to frighten her into silencing her wise-cracking tongue about Kathleen's condition.

But Judge Sullivan refused to order bail and the youth was returned to county jail.

Babich made a good appearance while pleading personally with Sullivan. He said he was a youth of good habits. He was not financially dependent, he added, and he wanted to be with Kathleen, whom he married two days before Patricia's body was taken from the Milwaukee River.

Richter backed him by saying he had "an impeccable background." District Attorney William McCauley, opposing bail, told the court Babich "might take his own life" if given such a chance.

Bail, technically, is permissible under State law in a first-degree murder case, but seldom is granted. The penalty is life imprisonment. Wisconsin has no death penalty.

Sullivan said that after reading the published confession of the youth "I'm satisfied a jury could find him guilty of first degree murder."

Babich was returned to county jail, where Kathleen visited him. She wept for him in district court and kissed him. She was standing firmly by him.

She blamed her dead sister in part for the quarrel that led to the slaying, she indicated.

"Patricia was a little devil and liked to tease," she said.

Kathleen said if Milton went to prison she would get a job until he got out, but she didn't believe he would be convicted. He will be given a preliminary hearing April 12.

Substitute Tax Plan Defeated

medicine exempt, other medicines taxed.

By a standing vote of 107 to 66 the House adopted an amendment by Representative George A. Dondero (R., Mich.) knocking out a section which would have classed the rental of real or personal property in the District as a business subject to the unincorporated business tax.

Republicans and House Democratic leaders, including those of the District Committee, sided with Dondero.

A vote of 116 to 92 overrode the proposal of Representative Walter B. Huber (D., Ohio) to levy a tax of 1 cent on each 8 cents of the sale price of cigarettes, cigars and tobacco. He said it would cost him 4 cents or more a day. Sales tax backers pointed out that tobacco products would be subjected to the sales tax.

Auchincloss Changes Mind

Representatives Howard W. Smith (D., Va.) and George J. Bates (R., Mass.) teamed up in leadership of the drive to beat the Granger plan and to pass the sales tax.

They were backed by Representatives Paul C. Jones (D., Mo.), Oren Harris (D., Ark.), Henry O. Talle (R., Iowa), Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.), all members of the House District Committee, and by District Chairman John L. McMillan (D., S. C.).

Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.), who opposed the sales tax two weeks ago, said he had come around reluctantly to support of the measure.

Backing Granger in the drive to beat the sales tax were four other District Committee members, Representatives John F. Kennedy (D., Mass.), George P. Miller (D., Calif.), Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.) and Frank Buchanan (D., Pa.).

Chelf Rhymes

Representative Frank L. Chelf (D., Ky.) threw in some rhymes against the sales tax:

"Washington, our Capital, needs revenue we are told. So we'd tax the school kids who visit here to reach the needed gold—why not build a wall around the town and charge admission daily. Then we can pitch circus tents around and compete with Ringling, Barnum and Bailey."

Bitterest debate of the day started after Representative Smith moved at 5 p. m. to cut off debate on the Granger income tax bill in 15 minutes, and the House backed him up by a vote of 116 to 42.

With some 70 seconds apiece, these members ripped into the sales tax bill as variously being good for the rich, hard for the poor, and offering an entering wedge for a national retail sales tax: Representatives Thurman D. Crook (D., Ind.), Wayne L. Hays (D., Ohio), Adolph J. Sabath (D., Ill.), Chet Holifield (D., Calif.).

Others who backed the Granger plan included Representatives Anthony Cavalcante (D., Pa.) and Eugene D. O'Sullivan (D., Nebr.) Bates, Smith and Representative Karl M. LeCompte (R., Iowa) teamed in the attack on the Granger plan.

The 130 to 100 vote against Granger's income tax bill compared with the 110 to 50 vote two weeks ago against Representative Klein's similar income tax plan, minus the property and liquor tax features of the Granger plan.

Meanwhile, District officials said favorable House action on the sales tax probably would bring a request to the Senate from the District Commissioners for restoration of more than three million dollars in its 1950 budget.

This was learned from Budget Officer Walter L. Fowler, who said the Commissioners would not submit their budget to the Senate until after the House acts on the sales tax.

Largest single item which the Commissioners are expected to ask the Senate to restore is $1,187,399 for construction of Spingarn High School.

Zoning, Budget Hearings Listed In Prince Georges

The Prince Georges County commissioners this week will hold public hearings on two items of county-wide interest—the proposed master zoning plan and the tentative budget for fiscal 1950.

Slated to begin at 9 a.m. Wednesday in the Circuit Court room at Upper Marlboro is the master zoning plan hearing. Drawn up and recommended by the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission, the plan calls for 14 zoning classifications to replace the present five.

The budget hearing will be held at 10 a. m. Thursday at the commissioner's hearing room, Upper Marlboro. It is expected that the tentative 1949-50 tax rate will be revealed at that time.

Board Accepts Resignation Of School Head

The District Board of Public Welfare yesterday accepted the resignation of Mrs. Rose Smith Thomas as superintendent of the National Training School for Girls.

Superintendent Thomas, who took over her post at the school in October, 1944, told the board her recent marriage was the reason for her resignation. Her resignation is to become effective April 15.

The board recommended Mrs. Marion E. Gregory, associate director of the Phyllis Wheatley annex, YWCA, to replace Mrs. Thomas. Her name will be sent to the District Commissioners for approval.

John Tramburg, director of the Welfare Department, said his office is compiling a census of children in the District under 18 years of age. An increased number of children's cases that have come before the board has caused concern, he said, and the board is attempting to determine whether the increase is due to a greater number of children in the city or other causes.

At the monthly meeting of the board yesterday, members also accepted a recommendation that the St. Ann's Infant Asylum be allowed to operate a child-placing agency and approved appointment of Miss Genevieve Grabower as replacement for B. Woodruff Weaver, resigning member of the committee on regulation of private child-placing agencies.

Chemist Tells Of Vegetable Diet Like Meat

San Francisco, March 28 (AP).—Chemists now have a substance which they believe will keep humans sleek and well fed on a meatless diet.

This vitamin-like substance makes vegetable proteins do the work of animal proteins in the feed of poultry, dogs and pigs.

Dr. Stefan Ansbacher, scientific director of the Vi-D-Co., Marion, Ind., told about it today before the American Chemical Society.

The substance is called the animal protein factor. It is not new. The new thing about it is the conclusion of Dr. Ansbacher and his colleagues that it will work on humans as well as on meat-eating animals.

The animal protein factor, APF for short, "will prove beneficial to all those who, for any reason, cannot consume meat, fish or milk proteins," Dr. Ansbacher said.

Cows and other purely vegetarian animals apparently produce this substance in their digestive systems. That is why they can utilize grass and hay efficiently to build beef and milk. Chickens, dogs and other meat eaters do not do so well on a vegetable diet. They must have some animal protein.

Dr. Ansbacher's firm utilizes microbes to make APF. It is so potent that six millionths of an ounce will replace all the animal proteins in a pound of poultry feed.

APF has not yet been purified, so nobody knows its composition. Apparently it contains vitamin B-12, but it is far more powerful than that growth-promoting substance, the scientist said.

Oleo Measure Is Sent to House Floor

The House Rules Committee yesterday cleared for floor action a bill to repeal Federal taxes on oleomargarine.

The measure, sponsored by Representative Granger (D., Utah), also would prohibit the manufacture of yellow margarine for sale in interstate commerce. The bill is supported by Representative August H. Andresen (R., Minn.), who had a similar measure before the House Agriculture Committee.

Opposing it are several Agriculture Committee members, including Representatives Poage (D., Tex.) and Abernathy (D., Miss.). They told the Rules Committee they will sponsor an amendment to knock out the prohibition against interstate movement of yellow margarine.

Poage and Abernathy are sponsors of legislation which would repeal all Federal restrictions on the sale of margarine, white or colored. It would require, however, that public eating places which serve margarine advertise the fact plainly on menus.

Kefauver Introduces World Calendar Bill

Senator Estes Kefauver, (D., Tenn.) introduced yesterday a bill to give United States approval to a world calendar and place it in operation December 21, 1950.

The calendar would retain the traditional 12 months, but equalize the quarters of the year so that days of the week and dates always agree.

Each quarter would have 91 days, 13 weeks or 3 months parelling the seasons.

Lobbying In Washington

In an article published in the New York Times on Sunday Cabell Phillips says that old hands around the Capitol "are hard put to it to recall any Congress in recent memory that has been more hag-ridden by pressure groups and pleaders for special interests than this one." Lobbying has been stimulated to such an extent, indeed, as to bring demands for an investigation from harassed legislators bombarded with propaganda and besieged by visitors and petitioning delegations. This excessive activity is not surprising. Most of the important legislation scheduled for consideration by the present Congress is highly controversial and directly affects the lives and fortunes of businessmen, workers and numerous other groups of citizens.

Despite its incidental evils, lobbying serves a highly useful purpose under our representative system of Government by providing a means of communication between lawmakers and their constituents and marshalling arguments for and against proposed measures. Provided it is open and aboveboard and limited to persuasion, lobbying is an effective molder of public opinion not to be despised because lobbyists are usually spokesmen for special interests. The chief danger from lobbying arises when a few powerful organizations are able by sheer force of numbers or superior powers of persuasion to silence the voices of opposition groups. Generally speaking, however, every issue of major importance before Congress brings to the fore rival groups who meet arguments with counter-arguments, with the result that both Congress and the public are better able to judge the effects of pending legislation. Lobbying is, in short, educational when all interested parties have an opportunity to present their case.

Soviet Change

The replacement of Marshal Bulganin by Marshal Vasilevsky as Minister of the Soviet Armed Forces has again brought forth a wealth of interpretation. The change seems to follow the pattern set by the Molotov-Vishinsky change. Both Molotov and Bulganin are members of the Politburo, and, in view of the Atlantic Pact twist in the Cold War, they are needed for whole-time application to policy making. It appears that administrative tasks are less important now that Cold War lines are becoming crystallized, that in these circumstances subterranean rather than open activity is deemed more profitable in the prosecution of Soviet policy.

But the case of Bulganin is susceptible of more elaborate explanation. During the war the Red Army assumed a mighty place in the life of the Soviet Union, and there was always a danger that it might become politicalized. This was one reason that Stalin identified himself closely with the Red army, taking over the portfolio of defense, and giving himself the highest military titles. His vice commissar was Bulganin, who was as determined as his chief to keep the army under strict control. After the war the fear of an outbreak of independence on the part of the generals seems to have become particularly acute in the Kremlin. The facts are obscure, but a short while ago Stefan Osusky, the former Czech diplomat, sought to pin the story together for readers of The Washington Post.

According to Mr. Osusky, the crisis took the form of an argument within the Politburo on postwar policy. Kalinin, President of the Soviet Union, now dead, was in favor of a policy of internal reconstruction. Molotov advocated a Bolshevik (Maximalist) policy in world affairs, meaning an aggressive policy abroad to assist the final downfall of war-shattered and tottering capitalism. As usual Stalin sat back while the rival schools were exhausting their dialectic. Eventually he supported Molotov. The decision was not announced till February 9, 1948, when Stalin made his famous speech saying that peace was impossible while "monopoly capitalism" existed.

But the speech had been heralded long before in action. In 1945 Zhukov was removed from Berlin, and transferred to Odessa. At the time he was said to be too friendly to General Eisenhower, but, according to Osusky, Zhukov's real crime was his support of an army thesis that the army should be responsible to the state, not to the party. It was Bulganin who made the party supreme in the army, transferring lukewarm generals to minor and less important positions. This was an essential battle to win in the internal reconstruction vs. external aggression struggle. The battle has long been won, and the situation appears nowadays to be safe enough to enable Bulganin to concentrate on his duties in the Politburo.

Plan For Civil Rights

Administration leaders in the Senate are at last getting around to preparation of a practical civil rights program. With the adoption of the new cloture rule in the Senate recently, no hope was left for enactment of all President Truman's civil rights bills at the present session of Congress. The Administration was left only the choice between compromise and abandonment of legislation in this sphere until a later date. It has done well to shift its strategy to more limited objectives for the immediate future.

As early as last November this newspaper pointed to the necessity of concentrating upon the least vulnerable items in the civil rights program in order to get action in place of political maneuvering and mere talk. "Congress might well begin," we wrote, "by setting up a permanent commission on civil rights, with fair representation for the South as well as the North, to aid in the shaping of policies that the States as well as Congress may adopt." Now Senator Humphrey is reported to be working along precisely this line. The bill he is preparing would set up a civil rights body for the purpose of mobilizing public opinion for better enforcement of existing Federal and State laws guaranteeing civil rights. The commission would have the power of investigation, of offering counsel to the State and Federal Governments, and of improving race relations by conciliatory efforts.

Of course, the creation of such an investigative body would be only a first step. But we surmise that it would be an important step, and a step that could be taken with a minimum of controversy. At the same time the Judiciary Committees of the House and Senate ought to be renamed to cover civil rights, and a full-fledged civil rights division should be set up in the Department of Justice. A logical next step would be the strengthening of the present civil rights statute.

In point of timing, however, the second major step might well be the proposal by Congress of a constitutional amendment abolishing poll taxes. Determined groups in Congress have been trying for years to sweep away State poll taxes by simple legislation—on the ground that the process of constitutional amendment is too slow. The result is that nothing has been accomplished. Now the indications are that a constitutional amendment, which the Southern Senators are apparently prepared to accept, can be passed and ratified in less time than will be required to break down resistance in the Senate to a simple statute. More important is the consideration that a constitutional amendment is the proper way to proceed. All the numerous poll-tax bills put Congress in the position of declaring that the constitutional provision leaving the qualifications of voters in the hands of the States does not mean what it has always meant in the past. Under our system of Government, Congress has no such power. It can only propose amendments for ratification by the States.

The whole civil rights program would acquire a much more secure footing, in our opinion, if Congress would give first attention to those relatively simple and constructive steps that can be taken with little controversy and would give up trying to effect consitutional changes by short-cut methods. Senator Humphrey is on the right track, and we should like to see him or one of his colleagues sponsor an antipoll-tax constitutional amendment as a logical follow-up to his civil rights commission bill.

Leahy's Departure

The fact that Admiral Leahy is stepping down from his post as Chief of Staff to the President is a victory for civilian supremacy. There is no need for the post in peacetime. That Mr. Truman kept Admiral Leahy at his side after he had exhausted Leahy's rich store of information was merely a testimony to Leahy's companionability and to Mr. Truman's loyalty. Yet the retention was bad for policy. Admiral Leahy is an old sea-dog who, as a member of the Joint Chiefs, was bound to back the Navy in resisting effective unification. Admiral Leahy had a habit of mind deeply grooved by tradition. He fought the reformers because he felt they were bent upon destroying naval aviation and he considered that this would mean the destruction of the Navy itself. The professional in him was offended by the introduction of the atomic bomb, and after the war he refused to recognize it as a weapon, let alone as the absolute weapon. It is apparent from this cast of thought what kind of influence he brought to the counsels of the Joint Chiefs against any unified defense pivoted on this and other new weapons.

General Marshall is said to have been responsible for Leahy's appointment as Chief of Staff to Mr. Roosevelt. It was necessary, in Marshall's estimation, to have a high ranking officer constantly at the Commander in Chief's side. The choice was ideal. It so happened that between the President and Leahy a warm friendship had been developed dating back to the first World War. Admiral Leahy described it as "a cocktail friendship." Before he became Chief of Staff to the President, he had accepted appointments from Mr. Roosevelt as Governor of Puerto Rico and as Ambassador to the Vichy government. The latter was one of the most controversial roles in the war. Admiral Leahy was roundly accused of being a sort of fellow traveler of Petainism. This did him an injustice. His outstanding characteristic was his fidelity to duty, and his duty at Vichy was clearly defined in the instructions which he insisted should be put on paper. There is not the slightest ground for thinking that he did anything more or less than follow those instructions to the letter. These were to prevent the French from going beyond the terms of the armistice and to keep the French fleet out of German hands. If he became a personal friend of Petain in the process of achieving these aims, that aided his mission.

The shining integrity and blunt honesty of Admiral Leahy endeared him to his associates. They called him affectionately "the old man." His hates were as unmeasured as his likes. If there was a man who could be loved for his prejudices, that man was the dour and doughty Leahy. Withal his mind was clear and cold in its approach to whatever problem he was engaged upon. There was, for instance, his reaction to the sinking in 1937 of the Panay while he was Chief of Naval Operations. It is said Admiral Leahy insisted that this was an armed attack and should be treated as such. Secretary Acheson in his exposition of the Atlantic Pact drew a distinction between the attack on the Panay and the attack on Pearl Harbor. "One called for response by armed force and the other did not," he said. We imagine that Admiral Leahy, reading this, probably growled that if we had regarded the Panay incident as an armed attack, we might have been spared Pearl Harbor.

One of Admiral Leahy's virtues was his preference for the background. He had a real and becoming passion for anonymity, though during the war he held a private and richly rewarding periodical conference with newsmen he knew personally. It was inevitable that it became a kind of "club"; Leahy's rugged character and the warmth below his bleak exterior insured the metamorphosis. However, very few outsiders know much about the part he played in public life, or about his opinions. That the part was of salient importance admits of no question. He is the only American survivor of all the Big Three conferences and of the conferences with Mr. Churchill. His diary, which he kept faithfully and which he intends to leave to his son for disposition in any way he chooses, will be a historical, if not unique, record of the stirring events in which he participated. We wish him long years in his retirement, though we are glad he is going.

German Frontiers

The United States has departed from an important principle by agreeing to 31 minor changes in Germany's western frontiers. Mr. Byrnes said at Stuttgart in 1946 that except for the Saar and for recognized changes in the East "the United States will not support any encroachment on territory which is indisputably German or any division of Germany which is not genuinely desired by the people concerned." The new "frontier rectifications" are tiny, amounting to only 52 square miles in all, but they would seem to run counter to Mr. Byrnes' formula. It is hard to find any compelling justification for them—least of all at this time when we are about to commit ourselves under the Atlantic Pact to scrupulous standards of international behavior.

If the purpose is military security, it is laughable; a country is no safer from attack in this day and age because it owns a certain field or ridge or forest along its border. If the purpose is economic advantage, it could have been achieved more sensibly by an avowedly temporary administration of these German frontier strips, to make up for damage done by the Germans in the war. If the purpose is administrative convenience, as the six Western governments now allege, it could have been satisfied more simply than by switching a few thousand Germans from one sovereignty to another. When national boundaries cut across roads and railroads and hamper the administration of any small area in Europe, the remedy is not to change the frontier but to make the frontier unimportant. Austria and Italy have done this very thing in the South Tyrol, where more than administrative awkwardness was involved. The Belgian and Dutch governments are engaged in the same process now. If western Germany were truly integrated economically with its western neighbors, there would be no excuse for the outmoded and backward-looking kind of action that has just been taken.

All that can be said in favor of the new frontier changes is that they show the United States more willing than previously to pay attention to the views of Germany's western neighbors. The resultant outcry in Germany was to be expected and need not be taken tragically; we cannot let every decision be influenced by whether or not it will win us good-will among the German people. The equally shrill outcry from the East is comic when we remember that Russia and Poland between them have annexed a thousand times as much German territory as the Western neighbors now propose taking on a provisional basis, and until the eventual peace treaty settles the matter.

We hope, though, that this will be the last Western imitation of Soviet actions and tactics. The Russians and Poles have deliberately ignored, distorted or ridiculed the Potsdam proviso that "the final delimitation of the western frontier of Poland should await the peace settlement." Let the Western neighbors make it crystal clear that the changes in western Germany, trivial as they are, are only temporary. Let them get the benefit of these bits of territory during the present reconstruction and recovery period. Then, when the eventual peace treaty becomes effective, let the Western countries hand the frontier farms and woods and hamlets back to Germany unless the inhabitants show unmistakably that they no longer want to be German. The fact that the present changes are small in extent, or that they were discussed by the Foreign Ministers at Moscow two years ago, does not justify them now. Principles in peace-making are a priceless asset which must not lightly be thrown away.

Free Ride

Why should our Washington, with higher per capita wealth than most cities, always be "in the red" and looking desperately for more revenue sources?

One answer to that is so glaringly obvious that even Congress should not be deaf to it much longer: We are the only city in the world where 100,000 (1/9 of its citizens) pay income taxes—and the other 800,000 citizens enjoy a free ride!

I am a D. C. citizen, voting absentee in another State, who could probably avoid paying D. C. taxes, but I would be ashamed to be such a chiseler and parasite. There are thousands like me—but there are other hundreds of thousands who need a law to make them pay their own just dues.

If I paid no taxes here, I could not look a D. C. schoolteacher in the face; but I want good teachers for my children and I know you have to pay for quality.

If I paid no taxes here I would feel guilty every time I saw a D. C. policeman or fireman; they protect our property, our children, our very lives.

If I should be in an accident, I'd hope to land in a good hospital, with competent nurses and doctors, and enough of them to do the job right. I pay my share toward this; but eight other citizens who pay nothing are riding on my back.

Congress, they say, will not tax D. C. residents from other States; it might mean they'd have to tax themselves, their constituents here. If Congress is indeed so small-minded (which I cannot really believe), let them at least pass an equitable tax (on those living here seven months or more)—and then exempt themselves. As for constituents, lots of them, including me, think we should be taxed. And surely other D. C. constituents are not either so numerous or so powerful as to be feared by any Congressman intent on doing his duty. D. C. MOTHER.

Implementing Point IV

Alice Pollard's letter of March 21 outlining her plan for community centers to be provided by our Government in Germany is like a breath of fresh air. As a means of implementing President Truman's Point IV program, it sounds practical and workable—a long range bargain in good will.

The morale of the people of Germany is a prime concern. ECA is working for an industrial rehabilitation, but its lasting success depends as much upon a social recovery as an economic one. Would not carefully chosen centers furnish the people a much needed shot in the arm?

If the State Department and the military government would work together to establish such community centers, geared to the basic needs of discouraged people, they would bring more security to the American people then 10 mutual assistance pacts.

Independent Workers

I have just received from Senator Morse a reprint of his answer to your March 1 editorial on his remark that the Taft-Hartley law is "a device for making unions so weak they cannot carry on effective bargaining." You said that "whoever made such a remark is disqualified by sheer stupidity for responsible office."

I thoroughly agree with you. I have been an American worker since 1908. During the war I belonged to the union from compulsion. But I am thoroughly opposed to them. The lowering of prices is the one and the only way that the benefits of American industrialism can be distributed to the entire American people, to raise their standard of living by increasing their purchasing power.

Taft-Hartley stymied collective bargaining only in that it gave the worker freedom of choice. Morse is solely concerned about union labor's right to bargain. He has no concern about the right of the independent worker to bargain.

"Trenton Six"

As a citizen I am shocked to find that nothing has been said about the "Trenton Six" in the papers. Everyone in the United States should know about this travesty on justice. Six Negro youth sit in the death house in Trenton, N. J., waiting to go to the chair for a crime which they didn't commit. It has been contended that these youths are innocent—by witnesses and documentary evidence—and that confessions were extorted by physical and mental oppression for five days and four nights continuously. Compulsory Vaccination

The March 23 letter from the secretary of the Antivivisection Society of the District of Columbia contains statements which I do not believe can be verified.

The writer attempts to prove that smallpox vaccination and diphtheria immunization have no relation to the decreasing incidence of these diseases. She states that there are 6 States which forbid vaccination by law and only 10 requiring compulsory vaccination. She did not say that these six States prohibit compulsory vaccination, but imply they prohibit vaccination, per se.

No State having a compulsory vaccination law has rescinded this law; however, many States not having such laws previously have adopted them recently.

No State in the Union prohibits smallpox vaccination. Some States have certain prohibitions. These restrictions have to do with the compulsory aspects, however, not with vaccination itself.

An interesting comparison may be drawn from these two groups. From 1938-1941, the incidence of smallpox was 0.8 per 100,000 population in the States of the first group (where vaccination is compulsory) and 13.2 per 100,000 in the second group. In other words, the second group having less vaccinations performed had 16½ times as great an incidence of smallpox as the first group.

B-36 As A First Line Of Offense

Diogenes' March 20 diatribe against the B-36 bomber suggests that his lantern is growing dim or that he is not interested in seeing any more of the "truth" than his role as a Navy propagandist makes practical.

Diogenes scoffs at the idea that a jet fighter is not fast enough to handle the B-36 above 40,000 feet. American Aviation Daily recently reported that in actual tests between the latest model F-80 jet fighters and the B-36 above 40,000 feet the jet fighter was able to muster an indicated air speed of only 240 m.p.h. against 195 m.p.h. for the B-36. This 45 m.p.h. speed differential is not sufficient for a fighter to position itself for successful attacks on the bomber.

Diogenes also claims that to get above 40,000 feet the B-36 must be nearly empty. Aviation Week magazine has reported that in actual flight tests the B-36 has carried an 84,000-pound bomb load to 40,000 feet. This same source reported that the B-36 has flown at least two 12-hour missions entirely above 40,000 feet.

Diogenes, in scoffing at the 10,000 mile range of the B-36 with 10,000 pounds of bombs also neglects the fact that, as reported in Aviation Week, the B-36 that recently flew 9600 miles dropping 10,000 pounds of bombs at the 5000-mile mark landed with two more hours gas supply (about 400 miles) in addition to the normal 5 per cent reserves of fuel.

True, Navy fighters do have lower wing loadings because of the gyrations they must perform in carrier landings and wave-offs, but it is doubtful if they have enough more wing surface to maneuver sufficiently above 40,000 feet to bother a B-36. In actual flight tests the B-36 was able to outmaneuver the latest Air Force jet fighters above 40,000 feet. This means that any fighter limited to attacks along a curve of pursuit is going to be ineffective unless he is willing to make a stern chase with an extremely slow rate of closure that would make him a sitting duck before he was in firing range. Any small differences in armament caliber now existing are not significant for either fighters or bombers since they can both be readily equipped with the best armament available.

Diogenes also has neglected the fact, reported by both Aviation Week and American Aviation, that none of the jet fighter interceptions against the B-36 were made before the bomber dropped its bombs. Plainly a defense that is not effective until after the bomber has disgorged needs radical revision.

Obviously the B-36 striking force now being built up by the Air Force is intended for use with atomic bombs. It is nonsense to compare accuracy required for bombing with conventional high explosive against pin-point targets with the accuracy needed for atomic attacks against industrial cities. The atomic bombs dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki were aimed successfully from 30,000 feet. With the improvement in radar bombing equipment since 1944 it is not unreasonable to assume that even more accurate results can now be obtained from 40,000 feet.

It was the erroneous statements regarding the combat range of the Air Force's B-29 bomber that forced the Air Force to disclose its aerial refueling techniques that now give this type bomber (and its later development, the B-50 and B-54) an effective range of over 10,000 miles. These erroneous statements were fed to the Congressional Air Policy Commission, whose chief of professional staff was a retired Navy admiral.

Now the Navy and its unofficial spokesman are engaged in a "hatchet job" on the B-36. To be able to keep this weapon in its arsenal and spend public money for more B-36s, the Air Force has had to counter-attack against these rumors, half-truths and slide-rule sophistries with the facts on actual flight test performances of the B-36—facts which the Russians should have been allowed to find out with [illegible] and if they tried to [illegible]

Shadow Of Fear

NEW YORK.—If a master Communist planner had carefully worked out a way to get the utmost public attention for the Communist - dominated World Peace Conference held here over the weekend, he could not have improved on what actually happened. The supposed enemies of communism took care of all that.

They picketed in noisy, marching crowds outside the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel and Carnegie Hall. They carried banners and placards duly recorded by newsreel and television cameras.

Without all this voluntary advertising, it seems to me likely that the conference would have been almost ignored. Americans have learned enough in the past three years about Communist propaganda techniques not to be fooled by such a transparent device as the conference.

The very fact that a delegation from the Soviet Union, including such a showpiece as the composer, Dmitri Shostakovich, could come here was sufficient proof of the importance the Russians placed on the meeting. From almost everything that was said, and above all from the reception of the carefully hand-picked audience, it was obvious that the immediate objective is a meeting between Truman and Stalin.

BACK OF that objective is the aim of halting the program of the United States Government for restoring the strength and independence of western Europe. America has gradually come to accept world responsibility. That does not fit into the Soviet postwar plan. In fact, it cuts directly across the Russian goal of domination in Europe and Asia.

A Truman-Stalin peace conference, in a climate of opinion warmed up by Soviet sympathizers and the deep desire of almost all Americans for peace, could achieve a lot. At the very least it would put the United States in the role of rejecting Stalin's magnanimous offer of peace on Stalin's terms.

One disservice done by all the free advertising was to make it seem that we were really afraid to have these people speak their piece. The State Department helped that impression along by its stupidity in refusing visas to some who wanted to come from western Europe and South America.

It must have seemed to the visiting Russians that we were in a highly jittery and nervous state. As they were spirited in and out of the Waldorf while the marching pickets shouted, they must have felt that here were overtones of the same fear that obsesses their country.

Fear is like a spreading plague in the world today. It seemed to me to be deeply etched in the thin, taut face of Shostakovich as I watched him sitting on the platform during the interminable and repetitious speeches.

HERE IS a young man who has composed some of the most brilliant and exciting music of our time. The music of Shostakovich is played every day in this country and in almost every other country in the world.

Yet periodically the political bosses of the Soviet Union crack down, accusing him of political heresy in his music. According to those who have lived behind the Iron Curtain, this is torture for Shostakovich.

Some musicians and writers have become cynical under the Moscow whip. They shrug it off and promise to be good little boys. But not sensitive Shostakovich! He really believes he has betrayed a cause, and he suffers.

That seemed to me to be written in his face—in the tense, turned down mouth, in the restless movements of his thin artist's hands, in the way in which from time to time he glanced nervously at one or the other of the Russian delegation. Here was a man who lived under the shadow of a fear.

Another meeting in New York over the weekend was largely devoted to that fear. It was a meeting of protest called by Americans for Intellectual Freedom held in Freedom House, which is dedicated to the late Wendell Willkie. In a succeeding column I want to write about that other meeting.

One thing both meetings agreed on, and that is that the world is a very sick place. It is sick with the spreading plague of fear. Every manifestation of that fear in this country is a sign of weakness. It is a sign that we do not trust our own strength and our own resolution for peace. Fear can bring the thing that people everywhere live in dread of—another war.

Lithuanian Anniversary

An account in your February 17 issue of the way Lithuanians in Washington celebrated the thirty-first anniversary of the independence of Lithuania has come to my attention.

Because Lithuania, at present, is suffering at the hands of a cruel and ruthless Russia, Lithuanians all over the world have risen in protest and are doing everything possible to wake up an acquiescent world to a realization of the evils of Soviet communism. Such accounts help to make the outside world realize the cruelty of the Soviet Union toward a liberty-loving nation.

A Communication

Communist Words Vs. Communist Teaching

By Julius Epstein

IN THEIR statement of March 2, Messers. Foster and Dennis, the chairman and secretary of the Communisty Party, said: "We do not regard a new world holocaust as inevitable. We hold the peaceful coexistence of two different systems wholly possible."

With this statement, both leaders of the American Communist Party expressed an opinion which is in the strongest possible degree at variance with the classical teachings of their masters, Lenin and Stalin. Messrs. Foster and Dennis' opinion is not only in complete contradiction to the Bolshevist theories of the past; it is in obvious opposition to everything taught by the Communists at the present time.

No real Communist, Messrs. Foster and Dennis included, ever believed that the USSR would be able to live in peace with the non-Communist part of the world. They not only believe in the inevitability of the third World War, they have professed this basic belief a thousand times.

It may suffice to confront the hypocritical utterance by Foster and Dennis with some of those classical expressions of Communist opinion as written by Lenin and Stalin and distributed at present time throughout our country.

It was Lenin who said: "We live not only in a state but in a system of states, and the prolonged existence of the Soviet Republic side by side with the imperialistic states is unthinkable. Finally either the one or the other will be victorious. And until this happens a series of terrible conflicts between the Soviet Republic and the bourgeois states is unavoidable."

(Lenin's Complete Works, Vol. XXIV.)

And it is Stalin who echoes Lenin's ideas in his most widely distributed book, Problems of Leninism (more than 30 million copies sold) when he emphasizes: "It is inconceivable that the Soviet Republic should continue to exist for a long period side by side with imperialistic states—ultimately one or the other must conquer."

ONE OF the most important paragraphs on the duty of the first victorious proletariat to support the revolutionary struggle of the workers of other countries all over the world was written by Lenin as early as 1915. The paragraph, a cornerstone of the whole Bolshevist theory, has been quoted by Stalin time and again. In the latest American edition of Stalin's Problems of Leninism it reads as follows:

"Uneven economic and political development is an absolute law of capitalism. Hence, the victory of socialism is possible, first in a few or even in one single capitalist country taken separately. The victorious proletariat of that country, having expropriated the capitalists and organized its own socialist production would rise against the rest of the capitalist world, attract to itself the oppressed classes of other countries, raise revolts among them against the capitalists, and in the event of necessity come out even with armed force against the exploiting classes and their states."

The very purpose of the Bolshevist revolution of 1917 has been defined by Stalin as "to consolidate the dictatorship of the proletariat in one country, using it as a base for the overthrow of imperialism in all countries." (Stalin, Foundations of Leninism, American edition, 1939.)

There is no doubt that the Communists regard the United States as the foremost imperialistic country in the world and that, therefore, they regard the overthrow of this American "imperialism" as their foremost duty. From that follows their strategy in case of war. Any war against the USSR is an imperialistic war and their duty would be to sabotage it as much as possible.

The old slogan, "Turn around the rifles," created by Lenin during the First World War, is certainly still the only valid guidance for the Communists all over the world and especially for the American Communists. It is, therefore, not at all surprising when Messrs. Thorez, Togliatti, Pollit, Foster and Dennis in a well-timed movement declare that they are not going to fight the Red army in case of war against the Soviet Union.

ON JANUARY 11, 1948, the New York Herald Tribune carried over three pages an interview with Foster. One of the questions submitted to him read: "In case of war between Russia and the United States would you bear arms for the United States against Russia?"

Mr. Foster's answer to that question was exactly the same as he gave it on March 2, 1949. Sometimes even the wording is the same. Said Mr. Foster one year ago:

"Communists, like progressive Americans generally, distinguish between just and unjust wars, supporting the former, and opposing the latter. The Revolutionary War, the War of 1812, the Civil War and World War II were all just, democratic wars, and they played a constructive role historically. But, on the other hand, several of our wars were reactionary, and democratic Americans have opposed them . . . .The Mexican War was a huge land grab against a weaker neighbor, and, as such, Lincoln and many other true democrats condemned it . . . A war against the Soviet Union would also be an unjust, imperialist and criminal war, and as such would be condemned by a large section, if not the majority of American public opinion . . . We conceive it to be a high patriotic duty to oppose all imperialist war, whether it be directed against Great Britain, France, Poland, Paraguay, China, the Soviet Union or any other country. The only possible war between the United States and the USSR would be an imperialist war, provoked by Wall Street."

On May 29, 1948, Mr. Foster expressed again his opinion about the behavior of the American Communists in case of war with the Soviets. This time he appeared before a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee which dealt with the Mundt-Nixon Communist bill. Asked by Senator Revercomb of West Virginia whether or not the American Communists would disobey the military orders of the United States, Mr. Foster answered: "We're not going to fight against the Soviet Union. We're not going to fight in any imperialistic war."

WE HAVE seen that this attitude of the Communists is completely in line with the classic tenets as proclaimed by Lenin and Stalin. The Communists have never changed these tenets or the necessarily ensuing practical attitude toward the problem of war. What they have changed — and dishonestly changed, because they know the change is a hoax—is their belief in the inevitability of war and world revolution as expressed by their masters, Lenin and Stalin, to this day.

While they profess in interviews given to innocent and gullible Americans to believe in the absolute possibility for the Soviet Union and the Western world to live peacefully together for an unlimited period, they teach to the party members the uncorrected classical tenet of the inevitability of world wars and world revolution. By playing this double role, the Communists follow Lenin's teachings. He always advised the Communists to use every ruse, every lie and every deception in their fight against capitalism.

That is the core of what Lenin called the doctrine of "progress and retreat." Whenever the Soviet Union finds itself on the defense, the Communist world undergoes a process of "zigzags," of "retracing" and "abandoning the course once selected." The most famous instance of such a "retracing" and "abandoning the course once selected" occurred in August and September, 1933, when Stalin and Molotov publicly praised Hitler and the Nazis and when they concluded their public and secret pacts with Hitler. Hitlerism became suddenly a "matter of taste" as Molotov expressed it and the urge to fight fascism and national socialism an unpardonable crime.

Power Lines Funds Indorsed By House Appropriations Unit

By The Associated Press

A new battle over the old issue of Government power projects was forecast yesterday when the House Appropriations Committee indorsed a big transmission program. It is wrapped up in the Interior Department's $577,324,408 money bill for the year starting July 1.

Debate may begin in the House today. Republicans fought the outlay in the committee and said they haven't given up. Representative Jensen (R., Iowa) said the bill moves toward "Government control of all utilities."

The legislation provides expansion of power production and transmission facilities in the various Government-owned projects of the West, Southwest and Northwest. The committee trimmed 15 per cent in general from most power and other construction projects in the bill, figuring that costs are lower than when the program was mapped out.

At the same time, the committee advised department officials to ask for more appropriations if the cost drop failed to pan out as expected.

More Than Last Year

The transmission plans were approved virtually in full. Jensen said the bill's power features will force some private companies to sell out to the Government. He is a minority member of the subcommittee which wrote the bill.

The department's total $577,324,408 includes $536,211,908 in new cash and $41,112,500 in contract authority which may require future appropriations.

The figures are less than President Truman proposed, but more than the department got last year.

Mr. Truman had proposed $616,805,020 in cash and $54,300,000 in contract authority. As approved the bill recommends $126,821,934 more than Congress voted for the department during the present fiscal year.

Half to Reclamation

The Reclamation Bureau, under which many power projects operate, would receive almost half the cash, $317,790,037, an increase of $71,170,898 over the present year.

Two other power agencies outside the reclamation authority were marked up for additional millions. They were:

Southwestern Power Administration, distributing power from several dams in the Southwest, nine million dollars in cash and contract authority, or $800,000 less than requested.

Bonneville Power Administration, marketing power from the Bonneville project in Oregon and Washington, $45,652,500 in contract authority and cash, a reduction of $5,847,500 from the amount asked.

The committee gave the go-ahead for construction of the controversial west-side power lines and the Delta steam power plant on California's Central Valley project. Strong objections to the approval had been advanced by officials of the Pacific Gas & Electric Co., including James B. Black, president, and by the California State Chamber of Commerce.

The committee approved $53,550,000 for the project, or 15 per cent less than asked in the President's budget.

The Interior bill also covers the Indian Bureau, National Park Service, Fish and Wildlife Service, Bureau of Mines, Territories and other offices.

The committe's action on other programs handled by the Interior Department:

Division of Island and Territorial Possessions: $190,000 granted; $217,500 requested.

Bureau of Indian Affairs: $52,127,971 granted; $59,001,520 asked. The committee commented that in the past there has been "too much effort toward explaining annually how deplorable is the plight of the Indian and relatively little effort toward actually helping the Indian . . ." The committee approved the entire $12,200,000 requested for education of Indians and turned down plans to close Indian schools at Pipestone, Minn., and Eufaula, Okla.

National Park Service: $28,056,000 granted; $29,485,600 requested.

Fish and Wildlife Service: $10,735,800 granted; $11,143,000 asked.

Geological Survey: $15,513,000 granted; $17,900,000 asked.

Bureau of Mines: $23,337,500 granted; $23,946,500 asked.

Territory of Alaska: $43,404,100 granted; $52,404,100 asked.

The committee took steps to spruce up the National Parks for the millions of visitors who see them every season.

But it threw out the window a budget proposal to spend $63,300 encouraging travel in the United States and its possessions.

"The committee considers it an utter waste of funds for the Government to promote and encourage travel," it said.

Last year's appropriation was $13,110,304. For the coming year, the committee approved $28,056,000, which was only $1,429,600 below the budget estimate

Nichols Confirmed As Indian Affairs Chief

The Senate confirmed yesterday President Truman's appointment of John R. Nichols of New Mexico to be commissioner of Indian affairs, succeeding William A. Brophy, resigned.

Cherry Trees Get Hormone Spray Today

National Capital Parks crews will start spraying the 600-odd Japanese cherry trees around the Tidal Basin with 9000 gallons of growth-regulating plant hormone mixture as soon as the budding trees wake up this morning.

The hormone preservative, which will be sprayed on if the trees are 90 per cent in bloom today, as they are expected to be, is designed to keep them in their glory through the Cherry Blossom Festival this weekend.

Edward J. Kelly, special assistant to NCP Supt. Irving C. Root, explained yesterday that the blossoms tend to close during the night and the spraying would have to wait until they open again this morning to produce the full preservative effect of the hormone.

Meanwhile, the Board of Trade announced that tickets for the Cherry Blossom programs Saturday and Sunday are on sale at all People's Drug Stores, the information desk in The Star Building at 11th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw. and the mobile unit at 14h st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw. Tickets for the Cherry Blossom Ball, Friday night at the Armory, may be secured by calling the Board of Trade

2 Ship Unions Found Guilty Of Boycott

Charles L. Ferguson, a National Labor Relations Board trial examiner, found two CIO maritime unions guilty yesterday of violating the secondary boycott ban of the Taft-Hartley Act.

He recommended that the unions be required to stop permanently all picketing of six shipyards in three gulf ports. The recommendations become a board order unless contested within 20 days.

The unions are the National Union of Marine Cooks and Stewards, and the Pacific Coast Firemen, Oilers, Watertenders and Wipers' Association.

The yards are at New Orleans, Galveston and Mobile. Charges against the unions were filed by Todd Shipyards Corp., and Texas Coast Shippers, operating at Galveston; Todd-Johnson Dry Docks, Inc., Charles Ferran & Co., Inc., and Thomas W. Hooley & Sons, operating at New Orleans; and Alabama Drydock and Shipbuilding Co., Mobile.

Ferguson said the picketing took place last fall while the two unions were on strike against West Coast shipowners who rented ships which were docked in the six Gulf shipyards.

He said that while the unions claimed their pickets were seeking to prevent the ships from being sent to sea manned by "scab" labor, the real objective was to get shipyard workers to refuse to repair the ships, thus delaying their return to the Maritime Commission which owns them and resulting in added rental fees for the West Coast shippers.

McGough New Health Officer In Alexandria

Dr. T. F. McGough, 39, Ohio public health official, was appointed health officer of Alexandria yesterday to fill a six-month vacancy.

City Manager Robert S. Marshall, who made the appointment after consulting members of city council, said McGough has been asked to take over May 15. McGough will start at a salary of $8500 a year, Marshall said, $500 more than the budget authorizes. Marshall pointed out, however, that the difference could be taken from the health officer's salary that has accumulated in the vacant post since January 1 or from a health department contingent fund.

McGough is health commissioner of Tuscarawas County General Health District in Ohio, Marshall said, and had previously worked for eight years for the Virginia State Health Department. He was recommended to Alexandria by Virginia health officials.

McGough will fill the vacancy caused by the resignation last October of Dr. W. Lewis Schafer. Miss Mary Carne, supervisor of public health nurses, in the city department, has been acting health officer.

Senate Group Approves Tamm

The Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday approved by voice vote the nomination of Edward A. Tamm, 42, as associate justice of District Court here.

President Truman named the former assistant to the director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation to the District bench February 3, 1948. He had been serving under recess appointment after the Senate failed to confirm him during the last session.

Senator Forrest C. Donnell (R., Mo.), former chairman of the Judiciary Subcommittee which previously considered the Tamm nomination, cast the only dissenting vote yesterday.

Quiet Ceremony

Fawzia Wed By Proxy to Rich Officer

Cairo, Egypt, March 28 (U.P.).—Hazel-eyed Princess Fawzia, the beautiful divorced wife of the Shah of Iran, was married today by proxy to wealthy Egyptian Maj. Ismail Sherine Bey.

Her brother, King Farouk, stood proxy for her in accordance with Moslem procedure. Authoritative sources said the marriage took place at Koubbeh Palace on the outskirts of Cairo. Fawzia did not take part in the simple, 10-minute ceremony.

These sources said that, after the ceremony, Farouk invited the bride and bridegroom to lunch along with a few of their intimate friends. The couple then drove to their new palace home at Maadi, a suburb of Cairo, which formerly belonged to the royal family.

Fawzia was divorced last year by Shah Mohammed Riza Pahlevi because she had borne no sons to the ruler of what was ancient Persia. She was the mother of a daughter.

A cabinet announcement said the wedding was held "under God's bounty and in consecration of His holy guidance, as well as through the kindness of great King Farouk."

The announcement did not give details of the ceremony, but court sources said the wedding was strictly private, with only members of the royal family and close friends attending. Farouk later gave a luncheon to honor the newlyweds.

Fawzia, of the almond eyes and raven hair, has been described as one of the most beautiful women in the world. She is now 28.

Yugoslav Factional Battle Is Reported

Trieste, March 28 (U.P.).—Italian intelligence agents received reports today that 17 persons had been killed in a pitched battle between a Yugoslav army unit and anti-Tito Yugoslavs near the Italian-Yugoslav border last Friday.

The reports came from Yugoslav refugees, the intelligence agents said.

Output Near Normal as Miners Return

Pittsburgh, March 28 (A.P.).—The Nation's coal production rose rapidly toward normal today after 463,000 U. M. W. hard and soft coal miners ended a two-week work stoppage east of the Mississippi.

The return to work was orderly and uneventful. Some operators said it would take them a day or two to reach pre-shutdown operating levels.

Most miners were happy to be back in the pits. They had felt the loss of an estimated 55 million dollars in wages during the shutdown. But one western Pennsylvanian digger, en route to work, looked into a sunny sky and said:

"It's tough to start working on a day like this."

State after State in the coal regions reported virtually all miners working.

The walkout was ordered by UMW president, John L. Lewis, to protest appointment of Dr. James Boyd as head of the United States Bureau of Mines. He said it also would be a memorial to dead and injured miners.

In the soft coal regions, the miners will work only three more days before another day of idleness rolls around. That's John Mitchell Day. A contractural holiday in honor of an early UMW leader who is credited with winning the 8-hour day. The same holiday is observed in October in the anthracite fields.

The coal mine shutdown ended with the man Lewis opposed sitting firmly in the post from which the union leader fought nearly two years to keep him. Dr. Boyd's appointment as bureau director was confirmed by the United States Senate just half way through the work stoppage. He had served many months without confirmation—and without pay.

One on the Aisle—

Langton at Home In Shaw's 'Arms'

By Richard L. Coe

CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY'S speech and drama department is giving a highly spirited production of Shaw's "Arms and the Man" in its theater on the campus. The run extends through April 9.

The evening is good fun and serves as a farewell to the visiting Basil Langton, who, having directed "Heartbreak House" and "King Lear", performs the same assignment for this first of Shaw's "Pleasant" plays and also acts the central role.

I was about to say that Langton is surprisingly effective as Bluntschli, the candy-eating mercenary who inspired "The Chocolate Soldier". But "surprise" has unkind connotations, and I take it back. For Langton is obviously at home in this happy part and plays it with the facile understatement that Shaw's writings on the play demand.

Although he carefully pinpointed the locale of this martial spoof in the Balkans, it was not Shaw's aim to mock the middle Europe that constantly teeters on the brink of timeless cauldrons. By picking the opening lines of the Aeniad for his title and following it up with unmstakably British cracks (so much so that on the opening nght, in 1894, Bernard Gould slipped his tongue and said "British" army rather than Bulgarian), Shaw intended this as a joke about all armies.

In 1927, he remarked that the play "never har a really wholehearted success until after the war, when soldiering had come home to the London playgoer's own door and he saw that the play was a classic comedy."

So it is with the audiences of Catholic University's pleasant theater. It is the mockery of army shenanigans, so green in memories, that still amuses in this oft-told tale.

Marilyn Hurley Delights

Langton's welcome facility in the lead is charmingly abetted by Marilyn Hurley, the frisky Raina who switches heroes in so brief a span of time. This is the best part the group's busy Miss Hurley has had, and it's also her finest work. She's lovely to look at and delightful to watch.

The equally busy Bill Callahan is the stuffy Sergius, but he overplays, mugs and pops his eyes. Shaw's writings contain definite instructions about this tendency. He warns distinctly against farcical laughs and humor strictly for humor's sake. Callahan should remember that this week he's not playing Professor Brady's numbskull ballplayer, but another fish.

J. Robert Dietz has a fine time with the returned husband of a conniving wife and Ionia Zalenka has an intelligent approach to the ambitious serving woman. William Smithers is properly stolid as the male servant and Caroline Graham and George LaBuda complete the cheerful company.

Although I still regret that some less familiar play was not chosen for so amiable a company, at least this is not "Springtime for Henry." Thanks to a good production, the effective Langton and the charming Miss Hurley, "Arms and the Man" is good, frisky fun.

THE UNIVERSITY of Maryland, too, is buckling into its theater season and Shaw's the starter . . . "Androcles and the Lion" opened a six-night run last night out at College Park . . . Next week, the Marylanders turn to their arena stage for Moliere's "Le Malade Imaginaire" ("The Imaginary Invalid") . . . And rehearsals are under way for a new version of "The Taming of the Shrew" by Elmer Barrcelough, set for the second week in May.

GEORGE WASHINGTON University's next and season finale will be an original comedy with music, "Somersault in the Sea" . . . This farce comedy is by Edward Mangum of the university's speech staff and Graduate Student Zelda Fichlander, with music by Albert Berkowitz . . . Good news on the G. W. front is that sellouts of its recent plays have prompted three public performances instead of the previous two . . . "Somersault in the Sea" will play Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 21-23, at Lisner Auditorium.

AND—WELCC ME to the visiting collegians, the Amherst Masquers, who last night had the honor of giving the first play on the stage of the Folger Library's Elizabethan theater, "Julius Caesar," . . . The Amherst production will be reviewed in this space tomorrow.

TONIGHT brings the opening of the twenty-first annual One-Act Play Tournament, with four preliminary entrants acting in Roosevelt Auditorium, 13th and Allison sts., at 8:15: The White Hope Players in "Spring"; the Jewish Lions Club in "The Pot Boiler"; the Lancers in "Perod Period Period," and the Southeast Dramatics Association in "The Two Pierrots or the White Supper."

Move for Liberty Lost By Daniel Williams, Jr.

The Supreme Court yesterday refused to consider a move designed to release Daniel Williams, jr., from St. Elizabeths Hospital where he has been confined since November 10, 1947.

Williams was committed as a mental incompetent after killing two men and wounding another during a gun fight growing out of the rejection of his request to practice law in the District.

NEW YORK—Dmitri Shostakhovich, the Russian composer who came here for the Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace—the left-wing meeting at the Waldorf which was picketed—was the guest of honor at a cocktail party before the meeting. James Waterman Wise stood on the receiving-line to be introduced to the composer and told him: "I'm looking forward to hearing your new American Symphony" . . . "Thank you," replied Shostakhovich. "I hope it will be more harmonious than my reception."

The private railroad car Winston Churchill used in his trip to and from Washington was hired for him by Bernard Baruch . . . Mary Phillips, who won her paternity suit against Tagliavini, sent his lawyer an autographed copy of her book of poems, "Meadowlark" . . . Ex-Secretary of War Patterson, urged by Clendenin Ryan to become the Fusion candidate for mayor, turned it down because he considers Cold Spring Harbor as his home, and also because he likes Bill O'Dwyer, who worked for him during the war . . . Fannie Hurst, who loves animals so much that she has a private zoo in her penthouse near Central Park, was set upon by a huge dog, which mauled and bit her. Miss Hurst sued the dog's owner. The case was to be heard before Mr. Justice Samuel Null, who persuaded both sides to settle . . . The defendant told Miss Hurst that he was positive she wouldn't go through with the suit, fearing the publicity. "I'm sure," he told her, "you wouldn't want people to think you're the kind of person dogs don't like."

Tammany Hall's objection to Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., in his fight for Sol Bloom's congressional seat—an objection based, principally, on the ground that he doesn't reside in the district—will be met this week when Roosevelt will move into his new home, in the district.

Nominated as Ensigns

President Truman yesterday sent to the Senate the nominations of the graduating class of the Naval Academy for appointments as ensigns.

Mental Hygiene Bill Compromised

Annapolis, Md., March 22 (AP).—The House of Delegates refused tonight to ratify a constitutional amendment limiting the President of the United States to two terms.

Sixty delegates favored a resolution to that effect, 10 more than the number opposing it, but they lacked by two the majority required to pass a measure in the Maryland General Assembly.

The issue was not altogether dead, as two similar resolutions have been introduced in the Senate. One is sponsored by Senate President Byrnes (D., Baltimore 5th).

The House ways and means committee, meanwhile, agreed today to allow Governor Lane to choose his own mental hygiene commissioner—with a compromise proviso his selection must be approved by the Mental Hospitals Advisory Board.

An administration bill calls for abolishing of the Board of Mental Hygiene and of the boards of managers of the five State mental hospitals. Full control of the mental program would be placed in the hands of one man. It has already passed the Senate.

The Governor at first suggested he be given the power, with no strings attached, of appointing the mental hygiene commissioner.

Two psychiatrists and several other witnesses told the Ways and Means Committee at a hearing today that Lane's proposal could draw the hospitals into the "political spoils system."

They pressed to keep in the bill the proviso that the Governor must make his selection from a list drawn up by the Mental Hygiene Advisory Board.

The House of Delegates is expected to take final action on the measure within the next day or two.

The General Assembly has already approved a 20-million-dollar pay-as-you-go 1949-50 construction program at the five mental institutions. Funds from the State's treasury surplus will be used to pay the bill.

House Completes Action On Real Estate Tax

Annapolis, Md., March 28 (AP).—The House completed action today on a measure fixing next year's Maryland real estate tax rate at 11.15 cents on each $100 of assessable property—the same as for the present fiscal year.

House Passes Recreation Bill

By Roger B. Farquhar
Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., March 28.—A bill setting up a three-year, $180,000 recreation program for Prince Georges County passed the House of Delegates today and was sent to the Senate.

Under the bill the county commissioners could appoint a four-member recreation board and borrow up to $60,000 annually for three successive years to finance comprehensive play programs with facilities for adults and children.

Members of the new board would each be paid $500 annually, with $250 for expenses. The board member elected executive secretary would get an extra $500.

All members would be appointed by the county commissioners. One member each would be named to represent the Board of Education, the County Commissioners, the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the citizenry.

As the General Assembly began its final week of the 1949 session, the Senate passed, 17-11, a bill transferring title to the Montgomery County liquor dispensary building, Silver Spring, from the County Liquor Control Board to the County Council. The measure now goes to the House.

Defeated in the Senate by a 15-14 vote was a bill sponsored by Senator Roy Tasco Davis (R., Montgomery) which would have transferred the appointing authority for the Montgomery Liquor Control Board from the Governor to the County Council.

The House also, tentatively approved a bill giving the Montgomery County Council authority to set up special taxing areas and to levy taxes on such areas already in existence to provide hospital, fire-protection, library and ambulance services.

The House also today passed and sent to the Senate a bill sponsored by the Prince Georges delegation which would "freeze" the number of alcoholic beverage licenses to be issued in the county at 10 more than the present figure. Chairman Perry O. Wilkinson of the county helegation said there are now about 341 such permits.

Other Montgomery and Prince Georges legislative action today:

House bills passed:

H. B. 284—By Prince George's delegation. To increase the salaries of members of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission. The chairman would receive $5,000 annually and the part-time member would be paid $3800.

H. B. 660—By Montgomery delegation. To eliminate a provision in the Montgomery County local laws, so that it will no longer be necessary for a county circuit judge to assign substitute magistrates.

Senate Bills Passed

H. B. 175—by Montgomery delegation—providing for a public hearing before the adoption of the annual Takoma Park budget.

H. B. 263—by Prince Georges delegation—providing for a referendum on the question of enlarging the boundaries of the town of Landover Hills.

H. B. 378—by Montgomery delegation—authorizing the Montgomery County Council to adopt or install hospitalization and group life and health insurance plans for county employes.

H. B. 413—by Prince Georges delegation—giving the Prince Georges County sheriff $600 a year for use of an automobile, and $400 for purchase of an automobile.

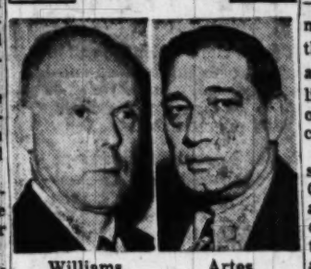
Two Receive Awards for Safe Driving



Williams Artes

Safe driving awards were presented last night to a bus operator and a milk truck driver by Police Chief Robert J. Barrett and George E. Keneipp, District director of vehicles and traffic, in an Accident Prevention Week program.

The drivers, who received the awards during a television program over WNBW, were Carroll C. Artes, 50, of 535 11th st. nw., salesman-driver for the Chevy Chase-Chestnut Farms Dairy, and Preston Williams, 55, of 819 Aspen st. nw., Capital Transit bus operator.

Artes was cited by the D. C. Trucking Association for an estimated 400,000 miles of driving for the dairy in 27 years without an accident or a parking ticket. Williams, a Capital Transit veteran of 33 years, received the transit company's seven-year safety award.

Accident Prevention Week, sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, began yesterday with a 26-vehicle parade through the downtown section which included two wrecked cars, two trucks and ambulances. The drive will include poster displays in District schools, buses and streetcars, and talks by Junior Chamber speakers at civic meetings.

Police Adjust 110 Tickets

A motorist who ran out of gasoline, and another, whose watch stopped were among 110 persons for whom traffic tickets were adjusted last week, police reported yesterday.

A ticket for parking abreast was changed to a warning for John H. Awkard, of 1219 Carrolburg pl. sw., after he reported that he was out of gas. A ticket for parking overtime was changed to a warning for Grant G. Goodrich, 32, of 4403 3d st. se., when he explained that his watch stopped and he misjudged the time, police said.

Tickets were canceled for the following motorists because of diplomatic immunity: German F. Concha, Peruvian Embassy, parked too close to corner; Thomas Mansy, Embassy of Iraq, parked less than 10 feet from a fireplug; Fernando Parraud, Peruvian Embassy, parked on a red meter and parked in a "no parking from 7 to 9:30 a. m." zone; Ovidia M. Pozo, Bolivian Embassy, parked in a hack zone and parked in a loading zone; Roger Leguay, French Embassy, parked in a "no parking anytime" zone; M. H. E. Moerel, Netherlands Embassy, standing in a "no standing from 4 to 6:30 p. m." zone.

Loans on REAL ESTATE

Here are three of the more popular types of real estate loans The Washington Loan and Trust Company makes on improved business and residential property in the District of Columbia, nearby Maryland and Virginia. A loan plan can be designed to meet your special needs and at low interest rates.

1. MONTHLY PAYMENT PLAN—Under this arrangement one payment each month covers interest charges and pays back part of the loan. With each payment you owe less—and you own more of your home. Unlike rent payments, these monthly installments will permit you eventually to own your own home.

2. TERM LOAN PLAN—Straight mortgage loans are available for a specified period of time at a standard, low rate of interest. This interest is generally payable every three months. When the term is up, new arrangements must be made to finance the balance of the loan.

3. F.H.A. LOAN PLAN—Or you can borrow under a popular Federal Housing Administration plan which insures the payment of your loan to the bank. A single payment each month covers interest, taxes and insurance, and reduces the loan. F.H.A. loans are also available for home repairs and modernization.

STOP- LOOK- and LISTEN to the price story

YOU'RE only human if Buick style and size and bearing stop you on the street for a second admiring appraisal.

And we knew you'd like the broader 1949 outlook that results from higher, wider windshields, narrower corner posts, and expanded "seeing area" all around.

But let's be practical a minute and talk price.

Here are ours, published for public examination. You see exactly what they include before you buy—and get an itemized, fully-detailed bill of sale on delivery.

But ask yourself—

Where else at any price do you get valve-in-head engine design—plus Fireball's extra wallop?

Where else at any price do you get soft, level-going all-coil springing—plus low-pressure tires on the widest rims in the industry?

Where else can you find the silken magic of Dynaflow Drive*—hailed by outside authorities as the biggest thing since the self-starter and probably the coming thing in car transmission?

Where else can you get so many "extras" at no extra cost whatever—direction signals, oil filters, rear wheel shields, flexible steering wheel, air cleaner—all part and parcel of this smart, sizable, steady-going Buick package!

And we might add—where do you find a better, clearer, fairer deal than Buick dealers offer? Pricing according to normal prewar practice—extras as you want them—trade-ins or not, as you desire—here's clean dealing for anyone's money.

But—come see for yourself. Satisfy yourself that Buick's the buy. You won't take long getting a firm order in!

My Story . . . By Joe Louis

Title Fight Was Like Any Other Bout for Me

(Tenth of 15 Installments)

AFTER Max Schmeling beat me he went back to Germany with a contract to fight Jimmy Braddock for the heavyweight championship. When he came back to the U. S. in 1937, Mr. Roxborough tried to get him to give me a return, but Schmeling said no. The talk was he figured to take the championship from Braddock to bring it back to Germany so the Nazis could claim he won because he was one of the superrace.

In all my fighting I never got a real hate on another fighter, but I didn't like that Schmeling. They said, when he was training to fight me in 1936, he made cracks that no Negro could stand up against a superrace man like him. The sportswriters would come down from his training camp and tell me things like that.

That's where Mike Jacobs came in. Schmeling's contract was to meet Braddock in Madison Square Bowl out in Long Island City on June 3, 1937. The Madison Square Garden promoters owned that fight. They had Braddock tied up in a contract to fight only for them

MR. JACOBS got talking to Braddock's manager, Mr. Gould. They tried to work it out for Braddock to fight me a 10-round exhibition in Atlantic City, before Braddock took on Schmeling, but General Phelan of the New York State Athletic Commission said Braddock would have to fight Schmeling first.

Mr. Jacobs went to law about it. A judge in New Jersey ruled that the Garden contract with Braddock was no good because it was one-sided. It tied Braddock up but not the Garden. I don't know the fine points, but higher-up courts said the same thing. When Mr. Jacobs heard that, he made a deal with Mr. Gould and Jim Braddock. They worked it out that Braddock would fight me. If he lost, he and Mr. Gould would still get 10 per cent of all Mike Jacobs' profits from heavyweight fights for 10 years.

THAT'S WHERE the talk started that Jim Braddock owned a piece of me. He never did. His 10 per cent cut was out of Mike Jacobs' promotion money, not out of mine.

After the courts ruled against the Garden contract with Braddock, Mr. Roxborough and Mike Jacobs went to the attorney general in Chicago and to the Illinois Athletic Commission and got an okay for a fight for the title between me and Jim Braddock. They fixed it for June 22 in Comiskey Park in Chicago. Mr. Roxborough and Julian Black got my training outfit together. They moved us to Kenosha on Lake Michigan the second week in May. Max Schmeling went on with his training for his fight with Braddock, figuring he might get a legal decision anyway. He even wanted to go out to the Madison Square Bowl in Long Island City the night of June 3 and stand in the empty ring. That's what they called the "Phantom Fight."

Mr. Roxborough, Julian Black, Chappie and the sparring partners called me "Champ" from when I first started pro, but this was my first real shot at a title. I worked harder for it than for any fight I remember. Chappie got me up at 5 o'clock every moring for six weeks and I would do 10 miles on the road when the sun was hardly up. When I came off the run I would go back to bed and get up for breakfast around 10 or 11 o'clock.

I HAD A big string of sparring partners and I would work out with them. They brought in Harry Lenny, a special boxing teacher, to show me how to get away from a right. That was Damon Runyon's idea. I would knock off around 5 o'clock, have supper and talk and loaf until 9 o'clock. Then bed and a full eight hours' sleep. I came around fine. I weighed in the day of the fight at 197¼, just like I figured to do.

Early in the first round of that fight Braddock put a right to my jaw and took me off my feet. It didn't hurt much. It didn't even fog my head. I got right up. Braddock came at me hard, figuring he could put me away. He pushed me to the ropes and the round ended there.

When I came back to my corner Chappie like to chewed my head off. He said, "What's the idea getting off the floor without takin' a count? You should have stayed down for nine, like I always told you."

Braddock carried the fight to me again in the second, but I got in three hard ones. I rocked him good. It made him a little wild and he punched almost blind. I landed some hard ones in the third and I saw him weaken some, but he hit me a bad body punch. I opened his lip and I got some more hard rights to his face, but he stood up to them. He's a tough fighter with a solid punch, that Braddock.

HE STAYED with me long after I figured he could. I tried to put him out in the fifth, then the sixth and the seventh, and he wobbled but kept coming at me and I couldn't put the finisher on him. In the eighth he came wide open, because his arms were gone and his legs too. I laid it solid, with all my body, on the left side of his face, and his face split open. He fell in a face-down dive. That made me heavyweight champion.

People figure that was my biggest thrill, beating Braddock for the title, but it was no different to me from winning any other fight. I don't remember any special feeling. I just felt good. Maybe it was because I figured in my own mind I wouldn't feel a real champ until I got that Schmeling. That's what I fixed on. After I got the title any man who wanted a shot at me, he could have it. That's what I figured to do if I got the title, and that's the way it was.

Right after I beat Jim Braddock I took on Tommy Farr who came from England. He stayed the 15 rounds with me when all the writers said he couldn't. I didn't play with Tommy Farr, like some thought, and I didn't cut him up on purpose.

I LIKED that Tommy Farr. He had guts. He just kept coming and I had to stop him. I hurt my right hand on him in the fourth. From then I had to keep left-jabbing. I had no knockout punch, only cutting-up punches. The crowd booed me, but a fighter can't stand up there and tell the crowd his hand's hurt.

Chappie and me watched Max Schmeling fight Harry Thomas in Madison Square Garden in December 1937. I studied him good. We were matched for June 22 in 1938 in Yankee Stadium. I went to Pompton Lakes sure I had him figured, and Chappie put my sparring partners to throwing hard rights at me. I got so I could block them easy.

—With Shirley Povich

ORLANDO, Fla., March 28.—Billy Evans, who runs the Detroit Tigers for Walter O. Briggs, Sr., and has at his beck more expendable wealth than anybody else in baseball, is unimpressed by the purchasing power of the 1949 dollar.

He offered two hundred thousand of 'em to the Browns for Second Baseman Gerry Priddy—"Twice as much as the fellow is worth"—and was laughed at by the DeWitt Brothers, Evans says.

POVICH

Ordinarily he wouldn't go that high for Priddy, Evans says, but he was trying to do the nice thing for his new manager, Red Rolfe, and plug the second base spot in the Detroit infield. He assumed his offer would fetch Priddy from the DeWitts who had just applied successfully to the American League for a $300,000 loan.

"The Browns bought Priddy for $25,000 a year before and I was offering them a handsome profit. They sell off players to everybody else except The Tigers," Evans moaned. We're going out of the money market. From here on we will breed our own ball players."

THE success of that latter program is already evident, Evans thinks. He is engaged right now in pointing with pride to his young outfielder, Johnny Groth, whom the Tigers think they have developed into one of the prize performers of the league.

For Groth they paid $30,000 as a bonus for signing after Scout Aloysius Egan saw him perform with Navy teams at Great Lakes during the war. They've nursed him along patiently. At Williamsport in the Eastern League he batted .319 and was promoted to the Tigers' Buffalo club in the Triple A International League. There he hit a lusty .340, and this spring in the Tigers' camp he is some outfielder.

"We had him in camp last year and he looked like the best outfielder in the lot then, but we didn't want to hustle him. With a year in the International under his belt, a good year, he's now ready," says Evans. "I'm glad we didn't make the mistake of bringing him up too early."

HE SAID something about Clark Griffith's mistake in dragging Gil Coan out of the Southern Association in 1946 before that young man was ready for the majors. "There's always that temptation to rush 'em along, and maybe Griff could be forgiven, but I remembered Coan's case when I was tempted to bring Groth up last year.

"When the Tigers weren't going good last summer, I caught it from the fans and the papers who were noting Groth's big hitting for Buffalo and demanding I call him in. I just kept my mouth shut and bore it, hoping that Groth this year would make 'em forget about last season, and he will. I don't know when I've seen a better rookie. His only weakness right now is a bit of lunging at bat, but that will square away."

At that, Groth is no finer-looking a prospect than Coan was when Evans was president of the Southern Association, he declared.

"I personally wrote Mr. Griffith that he had a great young ball player at Chattanooga and cautioned him to go slow with Coan. If I thought the Washington club was weakening on him, I'd buy Coan right now."

IN FACT, he did make Washington an offer for Coan last winter, Evans says. "I'd like to have both Coan and Groth in my outfield. They'd take us a long way. We'd have the two fastest outfielders in the American League. Groth is sure to hit, and Coan always looked as if he should."

He likes to go along with young, fast, slash-swingers like Groth and Coan, Evans says. "They don't make the grade all the time, everybody knows that. But when they do, they are not just good ball players, they're tremendous performers and that's the kind of gamble I like."

He never has seen as fast a man on the bases as Coan, Evans says, and as president of the Southern Association in 1945 he had to issue a special decree to his umpires after he saw Coan called out frequently on close plays at first base. "Coan was beating out balls he had no right to beat out, it seemed, and his speed was so astonishing that I had to tell my umpires to think twice before they were tempted to call him out."

Kuhel Tough As Nats Badly Need Players

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Orlando, Fla., March 28.—Manager Joe Kuhel got a little bit tough with the front office of the Washington Club today and demanded some more ball players.

He didn't quite lose his composure but he made it plain that he had an alarming situation on his squad and warned that his regulars were being overworked for lack of reserves.

"Al Evans is the only able-bodied catcher on the roster," Kuhel complained. "Jake Early hasn't caught a game because of his sore arm, and Len Okrie has also come down with a sore arm. Evans can't take it, catching all of our exhibition games."

He squawked loudly, too, about his infield situation. "Mark Christman is our only replacement at shortstop, second base and first base. Sam Dante and Al Kozar are getting little rest. When I have to use Christman as a replacement for Eddie Robinson at first they get no rest at all."

Farm Clubs No Help

Vice President Calvin Griffith scheduled a conference tonight with Kuhel and Farm Manager Ossie Bluege to discover a way out of the problem. They are thwarted in any plan to turn to their farm clubs for replacements because of the lack of talent there.

Young Griffith admitted the seriousness of the player shortage. "I don't see much help from our farm teams. We've claimed a dozen players on whom other big league clubs have asked waivers, but they withdrew them. They're letting nobody loose. Every team feels the shortage."

Kuhel is concerned not only with taking a lot of overworked players into the pennant race, but with the danger of injuries to any infielders thereafter. If Christman is drafted for first-base duty, there are no adequate replacements for second and shortstop.

At third base, Eddie Yost is also complaining of a sore arm. Jay Difani, an outfielder, has been labeled as a utility third baseman, but Kuhel doubts his defensive ability.

Vice President Griffith admitted an attempt to obtain Jerry Coleman, fancy-fielding, light-hitting shortstop of the Yankees who have something of an infield surplus.

"We'd like to buy him, but the Yankees are interested only in a trade. They had the colossal nerve to broach a Coleman-Walter Masterson deal. Of course, we had to turn that down."

The Nats encountered an open date on their exhibition schedule, but Kuhel had the squad at Tinker Field for a three-hour workout on cut-off plays and infield drill . . . Evans has caught 10 of the Nats' 11 exhibition games without complaint, but he is tired . . . Tomorrow the Nats move over to Lakeland to play the Tigers again

2 D. C. Glovers Win N.Y. Bouts

New York, March 28.—Two Washington fighters pounded out TKO's in the twenty-second annual Golden Gloves competition tonight as the Eastern team gained its second straight draw with the Western aggregation, 8-8.

Eugene Smith, Washington flyweight, stopped Arthur Brown, of Kansas City in 2:30 of the third round. Smith smashed Brown to the canvas in the first for a compulsory eight-count and followed his advantage with a right uppercut which scored repeatedly in the last two rounds.

Roland Randall, 160-pounder from D. C. stopped Joseph Leudanski of Chicago, 2:55 of the first round. The 18-year-old Washingtonian knockcut artist lost no time on Leudanski and rocked him to sleep with a hard right to the chin.

Elliott Powers, lightheavy, Army private at Fort Belvoir, Va., lost a close bout to Wesbury Bascom, St. Louis mail carrier.

Picking LaMotta Costs Two Boxing Officials Their Jobs

By Jack Cuddy

New York, March 28.—The New York State Athletic Commission took the most drastic action against ring officials in its 29-year history today when its suspended indefinitely Referee Harry Ebbets and Judge Harold Barnes for a widely protested fight decision.

Ebbets, 40, and Barnes, 53, cast the votes Friday night that gave Middleweight Jack LaMotta a split 12-round decision over Robert Villeman of France at Madison Square Garden. A third ring official, Judge Charley Shortell, voted for Villemain.

Chairman Eddie Eagan announced the disciplinary action after today's special commission meeting at which Ebbets and Barnes were hauled on the carpet.

In his written statement to the press, Egan explained that the commission would not fight the decision "as a matter of policy."

Nevertheless, the commission felt that "some disciplinary action is called for" because the score cards of Ebbets and Barnes "were contrary to the viewpoint of practically all those who witnessed the contest, especially the members of the commission."

Public Links Hearings Today

Washington's public golf courses go under the congressional microscope today as a special subcommittee of the House Public Lands Committee opens hearings at 10 a. m.

To be investigated are the contracts under which S. G. Leoffler has run local public links for the past 28 years, the condition of the courses, and the Interior Department's policies in awarding such contracts.

Leoffler was promised a new contract when his previous contract expired at the end of 1948.

Local Golfing Notes:

Kelly, Gordon Make the Kind Of Approaches That Pay Off

COL. E. J. KELLY gets credit for one of the most unusual birdies at Belle Haven Country Club, according to Pro Tom Ryan. On the 312-yard fourth hole, Colonel Kelly's second shot was short so he popped an eight iron shot into the cup on the fly. "Flash" Gordon used the same method even more effectively at Sligo Park. Gordon ushed a six iron to drop his second shot in the cup for an eagle two.

All players and officials in the PGA championships at the Hermitage Country Club in Richmond, Va., May 25-31 will be presented green flannel jackets with leather PGA plaques which they will wear throughout the event in order that the spectators will have no difficulty recognizing contestants.

Georgetown opens its golf season tomorrow when the Hoyas meet Dartmouth at Congressional Country Club. Dartmouth plays a repeat performance against Georgetown at Congressional the next day, before journeying to the Naval Academy to meet the Midshipmen Saturday. Navy, however, opens its schedule Friday when it plays host to the Cornell squad.

Ray Larrow, Georgetown's versatile golfer, debater, boxer, will captain the Hilltop golf team again this year. Larrow, playing in the No. 1 spot, last year led the Hoyes to 13 wins in 20 matches. Georgetown has the same number of matches carded this year and hopes to show an even better percentage of wins. The Hoyes have scheduled an extensive tour through the South during Easter vacations which includes paraticipation in the North-South Amateur Golf Championships at Pinehurst, N. C., April 18-19.

Snead Beats Mangrum

Greensboro, N. C., March 28 (AP). Sam Snead proved a superior mudder today to defeat Lloyd Mangrum by two strokes in their playoff for the top money of $2000 in the Greensboro Open Golf Tournament.

The veteran slammer from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., posted a 35-34—69 to win the event for the third time in its 10 stagings.

Mangrum, the defending champion from Chicago, stayed with Snead for nine holes, turning in 35, but he slipped to 36 on the way back over the par 71, Starmount Forest Country Club course, a 6630-yard strip.

The two played in a steady shower that developed into a hard rain as they toured the last two holes. A surprisingly large gallery of well over 1000 braved the conditions to watch Snead, a prime favorite here, come up with the better putting which was the deciding factor.

4-Year-Old Noses Out Piet, Breaks Rowe Record

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Bowie, Md., March 28.—Nearway won the hard way here today.

With longshot players in a crowd of over 14,000 cheering him on, the 4-year-old colt drove to a thrilling nose-photo decision in the $10,000 added Rowe Memorial Handicap.

Not only did Nearway, owned by C. C. Tanner of New Orleans, hang the scant margin of defeat on the Bombar Stables Piet. But the son of Ladyman also survived a foul claim.

Three lengths behind the dog-eat-dog finish was Kitchen Police, half of the entry owned by Gustav Ring of Washington. The other half, Rare Jewell, set a swift pace most of the way, but folded in the stretch.

Nearway set a new record for the Rowe—1.11-3/5, clipping a fifth of a second off the mark of Whitey Abel's Honey Cloud set in 1940—and paid an across-the-board mutuel of $18 to win, $8.60 to place, and $4.40 to show.

A Second Slower

Nearway's time, however, was a full second over the track record for 6 furlongs—1:10 3/5, the property of Greenock.

Jockey Al Schmidl, Piet's rider, registered the objection against Nearway's pilot, Nuzio Pariso. Schmidl maintained Nearway carried his mount to the outside entering the stretch and he appeared to be right from where I sat. However, the stewards didn't see it that way.

Favorite players had little interest in the argument. The Ring entry was a slight choice over Mrs. O. L. Nyberg's Irisen, a mare who showed little except a flash of early speed.

The Maryland season opened on a confusion downbeat involving the running time. The teletimer, electric timing device, went berserk and registered 0:46 2/5 for the 4 furlongs by Taylor Leatherbury's Eastern Flyway, a fleet 2-year-old. Racing Form clockers punched 0:48 1/5.

The teletimer's mark would have sent into discard Too High's 0:46 3-5, recorded 21 years ago. When the second race time was more than three seconds under that of the clockers, Stuart S. Janney, jr., chairman of the Maryland Racing Commission, an-

Ken Stribling Wins Decision

It was all Ken Stribling last night at Turner's Arena, the veteran Washington middleweight pounding out a slow but unanimous verdict over Johnny Hansbury in an all-local scrap.

Stribling weighed 160, Hansbury a pound more.

From the opening bell, Stribling held the upper hand, landing vicious rights all over Hansbury while the latter was mainly concerned in covering up.

In four-rounders, Joe Bickle, 222½, Washington, decisioned Ben Harrison, 201, Washington; Gene Gunter, 159, Baltimore, TKO'd Johnny Sullivan, 160½, Baltimore, in 1:12 of the fourth; Al Harris, 151, Washington, decisioned Ralph Gonzales, 155, Washington; and Little Dynamite, 127, Washington, decisioned Eddie Woodson, 126, Washington.

The semifinal, a five-rounder, went quickly to Ike Martin of Baltimore, by TKO over Washington's Jimmy Jones in 1:50 of the second round. Both men weighed 170 pounds.

Scolari, Zunic Back as Caps Face Knicks

FRED SCOLARI

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Rested, bolstered and favored, the Washington Caps continue their quest for the BAA playoff championship tonight by taking on the New York Knickerbockers on the National Guard Armory court.

Tapoff time for the first game in the best two out of three series to decide the Eastern playoff winner is 8:45. About 4000 court devotees are expected to be around for the shooting match.

The Eastern Division champions have been idle since last Thursday when they eliminated Philadelphia to gain the finals of their division's playoffs. The Knicks, on the other hand, had to go all out to dispose of Baltimore, expelling the pesky Bullets finally Saturday night in an overtime period of the rubber match of their three-game set.

Confidence Returns

Since their Philadelphia outing last Thursday, the Caps have regained the part-time services of Guard Fred Scolari, Forward Matt Zunic and the confidence which carried them to 15 consecutive victories in the early part of the 60-game BAA campaign.

Scolari, his fractured finger still taped but better, will be available for part-time duty, and Zunic, his injured ankle almost completely healed, is set to go all the way if needed. Neither played in Washington's clinching 80-79 triumph over the Warriors here Thursday.

Although the clubs split their six-game regular season series, the Caps are four-point favorites to take the first game from the Knicks tonight. Washington made shambles of the New Yorkers earlier in the season, winning three in a row before the tide turned.

The Knicks bounced back to sweep the remaining three games, but each of their victories came when the Caps were coasting, having already tucked away the Eastern crown.

AAU Boxers Clash Tonight for Eight District Championships

Bill Bennings:

Bowie, Md., March 28.—The hottest apprentice jockey in the country is Logan Batcheller who flew up from Gulfstream Park over the weekend. He is 20 and from Humansville, Mo., broke collarbone in Hawthorne spill last fall, came back to ride 48 winners to top riders at Tropical, tied Steve Brooks at Hialeah with 34, and won 15 at Gulfstream before heading North. Stands 4 feet 7, shortest jockey on grounds.

He's built like an hour glass that somebody stepped on when it was red hot or one of those Diablo toys. Took up riding because somebody said he looked like a jockey. As his name implies, Batcheller is not married. He's topping the United States riders now and hopes to stay there. Now for the winners.

Winners Get Trip To Boston

Titular bouts, ranging from the 112-pound class to heavyweight, bring to a close tonight the District of Columbia AAU's 1949 boxing championships at Turner's Arena.

Sixteen matches, eight each in the senior and novice divisions, comprise the card, which opens at 8:30 p. m.

The action will be particularly hard in the senior division for these warriors are fighting for the right to represent the District in the national AAU tournament in Boston next week.

Only two of last year's senior champions, 160-pound Eddie Marshall, PBC No. 2, and Eddie Grant, the Apollo Club heavyweight, remain in the running out of four who started the competition.

Marshall, winner of the light-heavy crown in 1948, will have his hands full with Eddie Kennet, Barney House middleweight.

Grant, winner of the 1949 Golden Gloves title, whipped big Thurman Moore in the semifinals, and will face St. Marys' Fred Samuelson tonight.

Another battle that shapes up as a corker is the fray between Dave Jacobs, of Apollo, and Merrick's Eliseo Vito for the senior feather weight honors. Jacobs stepped into the limelight when he eliminated a favorite, Emmett Swayne, in his second outing. Vito, a former Washington Post copy boy, also pulled the giant-killer act when he decisioned Teammate Dick Jiminey, erstwhile Golden Gloves hotshot, in the semifinals.

NOVICE DIVISION

Nearway Winning In Bowie Feature

C. C. TANNER'S Nearway (No. 8) on inside stretches out to win first money in the $10,000 Rowe Memorial handicap on the opening day program at Bowie yesterday with Jockey N. Pariso in the saddle. Nearway paid $18. Bomar Stable's Piet (No. 7) runs second, paying $7.20. Kitchen Police was third, paying $2.80.

Bowie's Opening Feature Won By Nearway in Record Time

nounced that the mechanical time would be disregarded for those races.

Nearway was on top twice in the day's feature—at the start and finish. The colt couldn't hold his advantage gained coming out of the gate and dropped back as Erigeron, Rare Jewell, Irisen and Tight Squeeze battled for the early lead.

Rare Jewell, winner of six Florida races this year, and ridden by the apprentice sensation, Logan Batcheller, slipped through on the inside to gain command over Erigeron at the far turn. Nearway and Piet were back in the pack at this stage.

Erigeron gave up the chase approaching the stretch and Kitchen Police moved up on Rare Jewell, the Ring Stable backers having visions of a one-two finish by the Washington-owned entry.

Swinging into the stretch, however, Nearway and Piet moved together. The former appeared to nudge the Bomar hope to the outside. Nearway took a clear lead with 30 yards to go but Piet came on again and the pair were nose and nose into the wire. Kitchen Police was a tiring third.

Both the crowd and the betting was under that of last year, although the 1948 opening was on Easter Monday. The official count was 14,793 customers today with $887,613 wagered as against figures of 16,489 and $925,231 a year ago.

The fans, most of them for their first look-see at their favorite sport for the last three months, came out early. Lines began to form at several daily double windows before noon or more than two hours before post-time for the first race.

The running got scrambled early in the day and the results board became jittery on a place price in the second race, but, everything considered, the season opened in good style.

Industrialist Urges Added Foreign Aid

Maxim Revised

Television Is Weapon, Sarnoff Says

The winning side in any future war could well be the one which "sees farther, sooner" rather than the one "fustest with the mostest," Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff, board chairman of the Radio Corporation of America, said last night.

It has already been demonstrated how television can be used to direct tomorrow's battles, he told an audience of more than 500 at the third annual meeting of the Armed Forces Communications Association in the Shoreham Hotel.

General Sarnoff was referring to the first ship-to-shore telecast, which covered a mock air attack on a Navy carrier under simulated battle conditions.

A recent visit to Europe, General Sarnoff said, put him solidly behind the Marshall Plan and the Atlantic Pact.

The combined projects, he said, offer western Europeans hope and encouragement and give us time to work out the problems of a world "neither at war nor at peace."

He said time also is needed to gear industry into an effective mobilization plan, and called on industry to make "company and personal sacrifices" to expedite preparedness planning.

Fred R. Lack, of New York, vice president of Western Electric, was elected to succeed Sarnoff as chairman of AFCA, which was formed to foster coordination between the communications industry and the armed forces.

At an AFCA luncheon yesterday, Chairman Wayne Coy of the Federal Communications Commission, said no nation had ever been so well equipped with civilian communications facilities.

One of the most important facilities for national defense, he said, were the 200,000 motor vehicles equipped with two-way radio.

These can be used for mass evacuations, fighting fires, repairing damage, and combating sabotage—and he expected to see a half million of them in use within five years, Coy said.

Vice Admiral John D. Price, deputy chief of naval operations, also spoke, in place of Admiral Louis E. Denfeld who could not attend.

The two-day meeting will close today with a Navy-sponsored tour. The group will see ground and air demonstrations at the Anacostia Naval Air Station, electronics exhibits at the Naval Research Laboratory, and will inspect the Submarine Requin and the USS Adirondack at the Naval Gun Factory.

Continued economic aid to other free democratic nations was urged yesterday by William L. Batt, president of SKF Ball Bearing Industries and former vice chairman of the War Production Board.

Batt spoke before 200 leading merchants and executives of 52 retail associations here for the annual meeting of the American Retail Federation at the Hotel Statler.

Batt, who is also vice chairman of the State Department's Advisory Committee on Foreign Aid, referred to the economic strengthening of other free nations as being good, not only for this country, but also for the retailer and the consumer.

The retail group, which represents some 500,000 retail stores throughout the country, elected Stanley Marcus of Dallas, Tex., executive vice president of Neiman-Marcus Co. of that city, as chairman of its board of trustees.

Rowland Jones, jr. of Washington was reelected to the full-time post of president, while W. T. Wade, jr., of Clifton Forge, Va., and Mrs. Beulah Vaden of Arlington were reelected secretary and assistant treasurer, respectively.

Former Representative Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) discussed the American distribution system as a key to world stability at last night's Retail Federation banquet.

The group will hear Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.) speak on the Eighty-First Congress at a 12:30 p. m. luncheon today at the Statler.

Silver Spring Group Votes Against Bonds

The Allied Civic Group of Silver Spring, Md., composed of delegates from 20 citizens' associations, last night went on record as opposed to any Silver Spring hospital bond issue which would tax residents other than on a county-wide basis.

A bill is now before the Montgomery County Council calling for issuance of $1,500,000 to be amortized by a tax levy on property in the thirteenth and fifth election districts.

The civic group also voted to ask the county council to obtain specific information through technical experts in hospital administration on the need for a new hospital in the area and on costs of construction and maintenance and the best methods of financing.

Dr. Claud W. Mitchell, a member of the Silver Spring Hospital Association, and Dr. Peter Lombard, both practicing Silver Spring physicians, spoke on the need for a hospital in the Silver Spring area.

The group's action followed a report of its legislative committee, presented by Mrs. Howard M. Kline, which declared the "acute" need for a new hospital has not been substantiated by factual information and that, although only Fifth and Thirteenth District residents would pay for it, the hospital would be available for all county residents.

Dr. Alden Takes Gallinger Position As Pathologist

Dr. Manning W. Alden, pathologist at Georgetown University Hospital, will become laboratory chief and pathologist at Gallinger Hospital, it was announced yesterday.

He will replace Dr. A. Ralph Monaco, now on terminal leave, who resigned to enter private practice in Columbus, Ga.

Dr. Alvin R. Sweeney, Gallinger superintendent, said Dr. Alden has already taken over the duties through arrangements with Georgetown but won't be officially appointed until May 16. The position pays $7102 annually.

Dr. Alden, lives at 8004 Newell st., Silver Spring, Md.

Gen. Smith Named First Army Head

Lieut. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, who resigned Friday as United States Ambassador to Russia, yesterday was named commander of the First Army with headquarters at Governor's Island, N. Y.

He succeeds Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges who retired January 31.

Smith, a native of Indianapolis, was named Ambassador to Russia in February, 1946, after distinguished service overseas in World War II. President Truman reluctantly relieved him of those duties after Smith argued that he had been away from home too long.

Truman Held Backing Maritime Investigation

Senator Warren G. Magnuson, (D., Wash.) said yesterday after a White House conference that President Truman indorsed a Senate investigation of the maritime industry in which 48,000 seamen are out of work.

Magnuson was spokesman for a group of Senators and officials of the maritime industry and unions who told Mr. Truman about increasing unemployment in the industry and the "rapid disappearance" of U. S. flagships from the seas.

Magnuson said the group "strongly protested" the use of Army vessels in competition with private industry and that Mr. Truman agreed the whole matter should be investigated.

Recording Development To Be Shown

A development in long-playing phonograph records will be demonstrated at 8 o'clock tonight before members of the Washington Audio Society in the Department of Interior auditorium.

Roys

H. E. Roys, advance development engineer for the RCA Victor division, will discuss RCA's new 45 revolutions per minute phonograph records.

Weiant Wathen-Dunn, program chairman of the Audio Society, said the demonstration will include an explanation of the tone qualities developed in records of differing speeds. The ordinary record, he stated, is played at 78 rpm's, while broadcast records are played at 33 1-3 rpm's.

Higher speeds heretofore have produced better tone qualities, he explained, and the new 45 rpm record developed by RCA is an attempt to combine quality with long playing.

Jackson Chides Lower Courts

By The Associated Press

Supreme Court Justice Jackson rapped prosecutors and courts yesterday for what he said is increased reliance on the "elastic, sprawling and pervasive" charge of conspiracy.

"Loose practice as to this offense constitutes a serious threat to fairness in our administration of justice," Jackson said.

He noted that under Federal law proof of conspiracy aggravates the degree of crime and that under some circumstances it may be a felony for persons to conspire together to commit a misdemeanor, even if it is never carried out.

"A combination may be a criminal conspiracy even if it contemplates only acts which are not crimes at all when perpetrated by an individual or by many acting severally," he said.

Jackson made the comments in an opinion in the case of a New York City man convicted of violating the Mann Act. The high court reversed the conviction on a technical point.

The New Yorker, Alvin Krulewitch, was charged with conspiring with a woman friend to induce another woman to go to Florida to practice prostitution.

Jackson, joined by Justices Frankfurter and Murray, signed an opinion concurring in the 8-1 majority decision. Justice Burton dissented.

Jackson said it was regrettable that the conviction should be reversed on a technical point. He added that a simple Mann Act prosecution, without the conspiracy charge, would have satisfied "the majesty of Federal law."

"The modern crime of conspiracy is so vague that it almost defies definition," he continued. "Despite certain elementary and essential elements, it also, chameleon-like, takes on a special coloration from each of the many independent offenses on which it may be overlaid."

While the offense has historical overtones of treachery and secret plotting, he said, "it also may be trivialized, as here, where the conspiracy consists of the concert of a loathesome panderer and a prostitute to go from New York to Florida to ply their trade."

Jackson said that while it is up to prosecutors "to determine when to use a scatter gun to bring down the defendant," the courts have also been remiss in extending the conspiracy laws.

"The minimum of proof required to establish conspiracy is extremely low," he said.

Plowing-Back BUILDS FOR THE FUTURE!

It's a Wise Farmer • (OR OIL COMPANY) who heeds this Truth!

DURING 1948, Socony-Vacuum plowed back $201,000,000 into its business . . . $68,000,000 more than the Company's total net income for the year.

This money is providing a continuous source of crude oil supply, new refining facilities, additional pipelines, tankers, new research facilities, expanded warehouses, storage plants, etc.

And the American Public will benefit:

. . . not only in increased supply of finest quality petroleum products to meet today's unprecedented demand and growing new needs and uses for oil

. . . but also through employment, new jobs for thousands of workers

. . . and through helping to build a stronger Industry, increased oil potential for National Security!

For a great part of America's strength is the strength of her Industries—and none is more important than Petroleum.

As the Nation builds for a continually higher standard of living—for stability of employment—for peace and security—so must its industries build for the future!

Socony-Vacuum has planned and is carrying out just such a program—by "plowing back."

Interior Would Get 8000 More Workers Under Proposed Law

INTERIOR would have about 8000 more employes i the bill reported yesterday by the House Appropriations Committee is enacted into law. About 220 of the jobs would be in this city.

The department asked the committee for funds to hire 4847 additional employes, 230 here. It also asked for the removal of restrictions on Reclamation's funds, which would enable that agency to fill some 4000 "authorized" jobs.

In reducing the department's over-all requests by about 15 per cent, mainly on construction items, the committee knocked out funds for about 800 jobs. It wiped out all restrictions on Reclamation's money. If the action is approved, the agency would hire about 600 additional employes, the 4000 who were laid off because of budget limits, plus about 2000 others.

Geological Survey was allocated funds for 135 jobs here. Other increases here would be: Secretary's office, 35; Indian Affairs, 35; Bureau of Mines, 30, and Reclamation, 10. But the Bureau of Land Management would reduce staff here by about 40.

In addition to the 6000 Reclamation employes, these overall increases also would be made: Bonneville Power, 400; Secretary's office, 300; Bureau of Land Management, 70; Bureau of Indian Affairs, 200; Geological Survey, 400; Bureau of Mines, 150; National Park Service, 200; Fish and Wildlife, 40, and Government in the Territories, 75 fewer jobs.

In its report, the committee said that "serious consideration" should be given to the abolition of the Board on Geographic Names. It called for a revamping of Interior's budget on a uniform and simplified basis. About the Bureau of Indian Affairs, the report said this agency had concentrated too much effort toward explaining annually "how deplorable is the plight of the Indian and relatively little effort toward helping the Indian improve his status."

PAY ACTION: Public hearings will begin early next week on the bills to give flat $650 pay raises to about 1,350,000 Federal workers, 850,000 classified and 500,000 postal. The bills were introduced by Chairman Johnston of the Senate Civil Service Committee.

The decision to hold immediate hearings on the two bills was made at a conference between Johnston and Senator Long (D., La.), who succeeded Senator O'Conor as chairman of the pay subcommittee. At the same time, Long revealed that he agrees with Johnston on the need of a general pay raise for Federal workers. Before the hearings can be held, two new Democratic members must be appointed to the subcommittee. O'Conor resigned from the committee, and Senator Broughton (D., N. C.) died recently.

JOB NEWS: Civil Service will announce an exam soon for landscape architects, $3727 to $7432 to start . . . The Civil Service examiners at nearby Fort Belvoir, Va., have these tests open: general photographer, $2498 to $3727; movie sound technician, $3351; movie camera man director, $4103; movie photographic technician, $4855, and physical rehabilitation training instructor and chief, $4479 to $6235 . . . Applications for Public Health nurse will be accepted through June 30 . . . Civil Service examiners at the Norfolk (Va.) Naval Base are accepting applications for seagoing pilots, $4985.

CLERKS: Civil Service has certified to census all the people available who qualified for Grade 2 and 3 clerical jobs in the 1947 test. Hiring is expected to start by April 1. Most of the temporary jobs will end on June 30, 1951. If the Civil Service list is inadequate, census will hire clerks direct. It already has 3200 applications on hand, which is more than enough to fill the agency's needs . . . Fund Voted To Add 40 to Park Police

House Committee Approves $150,000 To Help Stamp Out 'Gruesome Crimes'

A 40-man increase in the 125-man Park Police force to combat "gruesome crimes" in Federal parks in the Washington area was recommended by the House Appropriations Committee yesterday.

The additional men would give the force a total of 165. The committee approved a fund of $150,000 to hire and equip the extra policemen. The money was included in the Interior Department appropriation bill.

The committee approved in full the $1,050,000 budget request of the Office of National Capital Parks, under which the Park Police operate.

Present Force Inadequate

"Events of the past several years have demonstrated that limited personnel of the United States Park Police force are presently inadequate for efficient and effective protection of the park system in the Washington metropolitan area," the report said.

"In the hope of obviating recurrence of gruesome crimes committed in the past several years, the committee strongly urges approval of the amount contained in the bill for this purpose."

In committee hearings made public with the bill, Frank T. Gartside, assistant superintendent of National Capital Parks, declared "the recent brutal murder of 11-year-old Carol Bardwell in Rock Creek Park by a sex maniac has focused direct attention on and strongly reflected, our weakness of adequate patrol of isolated and less-frequented park areas due to our limited personnel.

"With the additional personnel requested we can accomplish much toward eliminating persons from the park system, whose tendencies are directed to the commission of crimes such as that just mentioned."

Motorcycle Police Provided

He said the 40 additional men would include an inspector, a motorcycle sergeant, 2 sergeants, 4 motorcycle privates, 6 horse-mounted privates and 26 privates.

He said they would permit full-time policing of 12 existing duty posts and establishment of 12 new duty posts.

Representative Fenton (R., Pa.) told Gartside during the hearings "your statement is very, very interesting, to the point that it becomes depressing when we hear of accidents and crimes and violations in the parks. I believe you said you had 21 men on tours of duty from 11 o'clock at night to 7 o'clock in the morning."

"That is correct," Gartside told him.

"When does most of the crime take place?" asked Fenton.

"Most of the crime takes place during the night hours," Gartside replied.

Gartside said his agency had asked for 88 more men, but the Budget Bureau had trimmed the increase to 40 men.

Stabbed in Heart

Victim of Fourth D. C. Killing In 33 Hours Is Found in Alley

By Judy Spivak
Post Reporter

Washington's fourth slaying within 33 hours was recorded yesterday at 6 a. m. when the body of a man, identified by police as Eddie Lewis Taylor, 43, of 355 McLean ave. sw., was found dead in an alley behind the 600 block of 1st st. sw.

A coroner's jury yesterday referred a fifth weekend death to the grand jury for action—that of James E. McKeever, 46, of 904 Hamilton st. nw., who died of a heart attack in a tussle Saturday with his son-in-law.

No suspects had been arrested last night in the slaying of Taylor, whose death was caused by a stab wound in the heart, an autopsy at the District Morgue disclosed. Police said Taylor's pockets were turned out, indicating he may have been robbed.

Son-in-Law, 24, Is Held In Death After Fight

Robert Franklin Kelley, 24, of 1412 Decatur st. nw., was held for the grand jury by a coroner's jury in connection with the death of his father-in-law, James E. McKeever, 46, last Saturday.

Kelley

McKeever, of 904 Hamilton st. nw., died after a tussle with Kelley, a floorwalker at Lansburgh's, about 9:40 p. m. outside the Hamilton st. address. His death was due to congestive heart failure, according to testimony by Deputy Coroner Christopher Murphy, who said an autopsy showed McKeever had a chronic heart condition.

Although McKeever had a bruise on his cheek, the blow alone could not have caused his death, Murphy said. He added his opinion that either the blows or the excitement of the argument could have been contributory causes in the man's death.

Mrs. Patricia Ann Kelley, 21, of 904 Hamilton st. nw., estranged wife of Kelley, testified that she and her husband had argued just before the struggle, and that Kelley struck her.

McKeever, her step-father, then entered the fight, she said, adding that she did not see her husband actually strike McKeever.

Mrs. Anna M. McKeever, also a participant in the fray, testified that "whether my husband was hit or whether he stumbled I couldn't possibly tell you."

Services for McKeever will be held at 11 a. m. Wednesday at the Hamilton st. address, with burial in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

K St. Man Bound In Fatal Shooting

A coroner's jury ordered James Davis, 28, of 209 K st. ne. held for grand jury action in the fatal shooting Saturday of Leroy Lowery, 33, of 738 New Jersey ave. nw.

Detective Sergt. Lawrence A. Hartnett testified Davis admitted firing three shots at Lowry in the back yard of 740 New Jersey ave. nw., where a "birthday party" was in progress.

Hartnett said Davis claimed he fired the .38-caliber revolver only after Lowery struck him and slashed him with a knife.

Davis was treated for three slash wounds on the upper part of his body after the fight. One wound extended from his armpit to his waist, according to Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald.

Student Arrested In Woman's Death

Police arrested Elwood T. Hughes, 23, a Howard University student, late Sunday night, and charged him with the weekend slaying of Mrs. Edna Crump of 2355 Sherman ave. nw.

Police arrested Hughes of 57 R st. nw., on the tip of a bartender, who saw Hughes and Mrs. Crump together about midnight Saturday.

Hughes admitted being with the woman, police said, but told them he "blacked out" shortly after they left the tavern. Police stated that there was blood on Hughes' clothes at the time of arrest, and that Mrs. Crump's wristwatch was found in his room.

Inquest Holds Woman In Fatal Stabbing

Held for grand jury action yesterday was Frances (Lillie Mae) Walker, 32, of 823 3rd st. se., whom a coroner's jury found responsible for the stabbing death late Saturday of her common-law husband, James M. Posey, 49.

Homicide Sergt. Robert E. Talbot testified the woman admitted cutting Posey with a penknife, during a fight at the 3rd street address. However, she said Posey attacked her first with a knife, Talbot testified.

Two Changes In Home-Rule Bill Asked by Civic Groups

Call for Authority Of Hawaii, Alaska, With Definite Fixing Of Federal Payment

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

Nearly 20 civic groups urging Washington home rule yesterday advocated two major changes in the pending Kefauver self-rule bill.

At a five-hour hearing before the Senate District Home Rule subcommittee, downtown spokesmen overwhelmingly suggested revising the measure to:

1. Eliminate the present provision under which either house could kill a legislative act of the elected city council by a simple resolution. They favored the same broad local authority now enjoyed by territorial legislatures of Hawaii and Alaska.

2. Include a definite formula for a permanent Federal payment to city expenses. All previous home rule proposals carried such Federal fiscal formulas.

Bill Generally Praised

However, most witnesses urging these two modifications generally praised the bill and expressed hope for early passage.

Only one speaker, Jerome P. McKee, appearing for the District Department of the American Legion, and the Federation of Business Men's Associations, registered outright opposition to the measure. He challenged the measure's constitutionality.

Committee staff members said the city heads were notified of the hearing. They were listed in the lead-off spot on the witness list.

The Washington Board of Trade did not testify yesterday but sent word to the committee last Saturday that it had "nothing new" to offer.

Senator Kefauver (D., Tenn.), chairman of the three-member Home Rule subcommittee, said his group "would definitely reconsider the 'one-House veto clause' and the present omission of a policy statement on future Federal contributions to the District."

The Kefauver bill, introduced in the Senate last week and already backed by a majority of the Senate District Committee, calls for (1) an elected nine-member city council empowered to enact city ordinances and legislative proposals subject to review by both Houses and the President; (2) an elected eight-member Board of Education; (3) regrouping of the city government's over 60 agencies into 12 major executive departments, and (4) submission of the home rule charter to popular referendum.

Bill Called "Retreat"

He said full delegation of legislative authority to the city council, such as Congress has granted to Alaska and Hawaii, and which has never been challenged in court, should dispel any constitutional doubts.

Both Warner and Purcell said the Kefauver bill was "a retreat" from the preliminary Democratic Central Committee home rule measure which their group helped draft a month ago. The Democratic Central Committee bill called for the territorial-type council authority.

Voters Meet 15 Candidates In Alexandria

More than 150 Alexandria voters got a look at the 15 Democratic candidates seeking nomination to the Alexandria City Council last night at two "Meet the Candidates" meetings.

With the April 5 party primary only a week away, the candidates presented their platforms first to a Del Ray audience at the Town Hall, 213 East Windsor ave., and then to a Negro meeting at the Pendleton Street Recreation Center.

The candidates agreed they wanted better streets, adequate schools, a first-class health department, a sewage treatment plant and an experienced city manager.

Favors Referendum

L. Trice Gravatte, jr., however, warned "we can't have them unless we're willing to pay for them," and said he would favor a referendum before increasing tax rates to find out how badly the people wanted the improvements.

Mrs. Dorothy H. Kabler, only woman candidate, called for a "pure form of city manager government." She urged appointment rather than election of judges, setting up of a job classification system for city employes, and a uniform pension plan for police and firemen.

Raymond A. Gallagher drew applause at the Negro meeting with the suggestion that "two or three" Negroes be appointed to the police department to serve in Negro districts. There are no Negroes on the Alexandria force at present.

More Speeches Tonight

Most of the candidates at the Negro meeting put themselves on record as favoring a Negro swimming pool for which $10,000 has been budgeted. R. Samuel Luckett urged, however, that the Negro community contribute to the fund so it will have "a feeling of part-ownership."

The candidates are scheduled to speak again tonight at 8:15 at a public meeting at George Washington High School, sponsored by the Alexandria League of Women Voters.

Other candidates speaking were Franklin P. Blackis, Leroy S. Bendheim, Marshall J. Beverley, Roy C. Bragg, Truman E. Carneale, James C. Crump, James M. Duncan, jr., John J. Ewald, Ernest L. Mankin, Albert A. Smoot, and William T. Wilkins.

House Votes For Daylight Saving Here

The House yesterday voted 223 to 130 to let Washington have another summer of daylight saving time, starting April 24 and ending September 25.

House approval by a roll call vote sent the measure back to the Senate which voted February 10 to let the District Commissioners have permanent authority to order daylight saving time into effect here.

Senate District Chairman McGrath (D., R. I.), author of the Senate bill, said he would decide later whether to ask the Senate to accept the House version or send the measure to conference.

Representative Klein (D., N. Y.) who had proposed a House bill like the one the Senate passed, made the final appeal for adoption of the one-year law during 35 minutes of debate.

Klein said "the people here want it and that's the best reason I know to give it to them."

Representative Harris (D., Ark.) presented the bill for House action. He confessed, "I'm not so happy about daylight saving time, but I'm convinced the greater number of people in the District do want it."

Representatives O'Hara (R., Minn.) and Wadsworth (R., N. Y.) led a sharp attack on the daylight saving measure.

O'Hara said: "With this daylight saving time, you don't change the operation of the planets at all—you just discommode a lot of people."

Wadsworth said daylight saving time in a great city forces residents of an area for 40 or 50 miles around to conform to it. He said the farmers hate it because for them "it imposes a definite hardship," particularly for dairy farmers.

Representatives Jones (D., Mo.), Rees (R., Kans.) and Brown (R., Ohio) joined in opposing the bill.

Deaths this day last year . . . 21
Total traffic deaths 1948 . . . 67

Six persons died yesterday as a result of traffic accidents in the Washington area, four of them in one crash near Waldorf, Md.

The Waldorf crash, which also injured five persons, occurred at 1 a. m. when a convertible smashed into an abutement of the Mattawan Creek Bridge, near the Maryland State police barracks at Waldorf.

LeRoy Redfern, 23, of 1521 Marion st. nw., died in Emergency Hospital of head injuries shortly after 5 p.m. as result of the Waldorf crash. Maryland police said the two other victims were tentatively identified as Rose Sparger, 21, of 1629 New Jersey ave. nw., and Percy Leo Brown, 21, of 634 L st. nw. The fourth victim was a woman whose identity was not immediately determined.

In a serious condition at Emergency Hospital from internal injuries, suffered in the accident, was John Hunter, 25, whose address was listed as 1310 13th st. nw.

Two other riders were treated at Emergency Hospital and transferred to Bethesda Naval Hospital. They are: George Gladden, 35, of 2226 1st st. nw., listed by police as the driver of the convertible, head injuries; and William Cole, 23, of 1536 6th st. nw., internal injuries. Two additional occupants of the car escaped with minor hurts.

John Romeo, 1801 Alcan dr., Silver Spring, was driving home with two companions from watching baseball practice at Maryland University, when his car crashed into a tree in Sligo Creek Parkway near Jackson ave. His companions were only slightly hurt. Romeo died in Washington Sanitarium at 7:15 p. m. two hours after the accident.

Surviving are his parents, Anthony C. and Pearl Romeo; a sister, Miss Andrea Romeo, and a younger brother, Anthony Romeo.

D. C. Traffic Fatality

In the District, the traffic toll rose to 19 with the death of Albert Newton, 70, of 1108 Columbia rd. nw., in Casualty Hospital at 2:40 a. m.

Newton died of injuries suffered Sunday when he was hit by an auto which police said was driven by Samuel J. Perry, 39, of 4752 Sheriff rd. ne., a Patent Office clerk. No date has been set for the inquest.

Garner Brothers Lose Appeal In Cab Driver Murder Case

The United States Court of Appeals yesterday upheld the first-degree murder conviction of George A. and Lawrence J. Garner, confessed killers of a cab driver here last year.

The Garner brothers are now in District Jail under an indefinite stay from their sentence of death pending court appeals.

In a 2-1 decision, the Appeals Court said that the confessions the Garner brothers gave within 3½ hours after they were brought to police headquarters were admissible in evidence. Defense attorneys have maintained that the Garners were illegally detained and therefore the confessions were illegal.

Robbed, Beaten and Shot

The cab driver, Howard Jones, 27, of 417 Irving st. nw., was shot to death February 27, 1948, after he was robbed and badly beaten.

George, 25, was visited by police at his home at 7:30 p. m., March 2, arrived at police headquarters before 10 p. m. and confessed before 11:30 p. m. Garner was taken to police headquarters at 11 p. m. and confessed at 2:30 a. m. the next morning. They were arraigned before a committing magistrate at 10 a. m. that day.

The Appeals Court opinion, written by Judge Wilbur K. Miller, concluded:

"It is still the law, we think, that necessary delay between arrest and presentation to a magistrate does not make inadmissible disclosures to the police during that delay. In this case the periods of delay between arrests and confessions were so short as not to have been prima facie illegal, even if the arrests had been made during daylight hours. Particularly is that true with respect to George Garner. It is our view also that the attendance of a committing magistrate throughout the night is not required."

Judge Edgerton Dissents

In his dissenting opinion, Judge Henry W. Edgerton pointed out that both defendants were "young Negro men of limited education."

"There was some evidence that the police used force. Officers admitted that George Garner 'finally began to cry' and that Lawrence Garner had blood on his head . . . The police denied using force. The court admitted the confessions in evidence and submitted to the jury the question whether they were 'voluntary,'" Edgerton wrote.

He said also that unless one magistrate is always available for arraignment at any hour, illegal "secret interrogation" by police cannot be prevented.

Edgerton said that in addition to the question of unnecessary delay in the arraignment, there was another fundamental reason for excluding the confession and quoted justices of the Supreme Court as saying:

"The Fourteenth Amendment prohibits police from using the private, secret custody of either man or child as a device for wringing confessions from them."

Man Indicted On Charges By Girl, 15

A District grand jury indictment charged yesterday that a 40-year-old stablehand ravished a 15-year-old girl who said she submitted because she feared he would refuse to let her ride his horses.

He is Lancelot Russell, 40, Negro, of 1428 Rock Creek Church rd. nw. The indictment charged him with having carnal relations with the blonde girl on October 8, 1948, and on March 4, 1949, in the stable near his home.

The girl, who lives in Silver Spring, Md., said she first saw Russell last year when she heard that he was looking for a girl to ride in horse shows.

A 35 year-old mail clerk listed in an indictment as Stanley Olczak of 1300 Vermont ave. nw., was charged with second-degree murder in the fatal beating last month of Mrs. Dorothy Reed, also of the Vermont ave. address. According to the charges, the pair quarreled when the woman threatened to leave Olczak.

Lawrence Byas, 44, and Gladys Byas, 35, both of 1421 Florida ave. nw., were charged with pandering in arranging for prostitution by a 14-year-old girl.

Daniel Watkins, 50, was charged with tossing a bag of "acid or lye" from a window at 836 23d st. nw., on Thomas Saunders, 30, 818 23d st., who was badly burned. The two men had been arguing, it was charged.

Osker Dukes, 34, of 2345 Sherman ave. nw., was charged with five counts of numbers lottery operation and possession of numbers slips.

The grand jury ignored a charge of robbery against Charles W. Coy, 32, whose address was given as 1432 12th st. nw. Coy was in jail for two weeks until a juvenile confessed to the crime, police said.

Defense Objection Overruled

Confessions Are Ruled Legal In Trial of Three in Slaying

Judge Edward M. Curran yesterday overruled defense objections to confessions given by two of three men on trial for the robbery-slaying of John Gant, 6105 Eads st. ne.

The defendants on trial are John Berry Greenleaf, 37, and Edward Joseph Blake, 21, both of Fairmont Heights, Md., and Leroy Lewis Smith, 25, of Landover, Md.

According to police, Greenleaf and Blake admitted the crime. Smith admitted only being in the vicinity of the murder on September 15 in the 6200 block of Dix st. ne.

Defense attorneys contended the confessions were inadmissible because obtained during an allegedly illegal detention of the defendants. They were arrested on a Sunday night and not arraigned until Tuesday, the attorneys said.

Assistant United States Attorney William McKinley contended successfully that the detention was legal. He pointed out that the three men were arrested in connection with a series of yoke robberies in the neighborhood and later accused of the Gant slaying.

Blake and Greenleaf confessed within 90 minutes after police began questioning them about Gant, who was beaten to death with a brick, McKinley said.

Man Held for Jury In Safe-Cracking

A 41-year-old man, interrupted by police as he tried to crack off the dial of a safe, yesterday in Municipal Court was ordered held under $3500 bond for grand jury action.

He was James C. Moore, 41, of 1762 Corcoran st. nw., arrested on a charge of housebreaking shortly after 2 a. m. in the Old New Orleans Restaurant, 1414 18th st. nw.

Police said Third Precinct Pvt. J. K. Valentine responded to a police radio call that a man had climbed up the fire escape of the restaurant and disappeared through the roof.

Valentine found Moore at work inside, police said.

Meanwhile, police learned that the safe, found Sunday in the 5000 block of E st. se., had been stolen from the cafeteria in Howard University's Cook Hall sometime Saturday night. The theft was discovered yesterday by Catherine R. Marshall, a dietician. Police said the safe, found with the top ripped off, had contained about $400.

Marine Fugitive Sought

Virginia and Washington police yesterday were asked to look out for a 23-year-old Marine corporal, who escaped from Quantico, Va., where he was awaiting a general court martial on charges of theft at the base and armed robbery of a nearby service station.

The lookout identified him as Willard Hubbard, 23, about 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighing 149 pounds and has black curly hair. The lookout said he escaped about 5 p. m. yesterday and was believed to be traveling in a cream-colored '46 Buick.

Zoning Fine Is $100

Operators of a Takoma Park convalescent home were fined $100 in Hyattsville Police Court yesterday for operating the home without proper zoning authorization.

John E. Carr, 54, and his wife, Dorothy, 41, the operators of the home at 7204 Hilton ave., pleaded guilty before Trial Magistrate Allan Bowie.

They were arrested March 17 by Prince Georges County Police Chief Ralph W. Brown on instruction of the county commissioners. Mrs. Carr said they had placed six aged invalids in the Takoma Park residence on a temporary basis last October, pending completion of a new home at Forest Glen.

Mrs. Hagerty Indorsed for School Board

Mrs. Charles H. Hagerty, secretary of the Washington Highlands Citizens Association, yesterday received the backing of two leaders of the Federation of Citizens Associations for appointment to the Board of Education.

This came in the form of an announcement by Federation President John H. Connaughton and Clifford H. Newell, past president, that they had written letters urging her selection to the judges of the District Court.

Connaughton said their recommendation was based on the belief that top city posts should be given to active civic workers.

Newell declared that at least two members of the board should be selected from among residents of the section "across the river." Mrs. Hagerty lives at 4008 1st st. sw.

Mrs. Hagerty, an administrative assistant in the Production and Marketing Administration of the Department of Agriculture, is a strong advocate of home rule.

Wife of a Ninth Precinct detective, she is the founder and first president of Police Wives' Club, formed last February.

Pearson Is Sued For $300,000

Attorney General Fred N. Howser of California yesterday filed suit against Drew Pearson, columnist and radio commentator, asking $300,000 damages for "untrue, false and defamatory statements" which he attributed to the columnist.

The suit, filed in District Court, charged that certain statements broadcast and written by Pearson which linked Howser with gambling had as an aim "to discredit me (Howser) in the eyes of Congress and to destroy the effectiveness of our (California's) presentation of the tidelands case." The suit also quoted Pearson as saying Howser was being investigated by Gov. Earl Warren.

If he wins, Howser said, all money awarded except court costs and lawyer's fees will go to charity.

To the charges, Pearson answered:

"If I have to be sued, I don't know anyone I'd rather be sued by than Fred Howser."

Kids Get a Laugh at Shrine Circus . . .

Like last night, following along just as close as a person could get to the brass band and the marching men dressed in red and green satin suits.

Right up to the huge doors and into the big arena. The colored lights, the ropes, bars and cages. Shiny strange objects to be used later in daredevil stunts.

Jingling some money in your pocket and trying to decide between the tantalizing smell of peanuts and popcorn.

And then the announcer in a high top hat and riding boots: "Ladeez and gentulmunn . . ."

At the same moment clowns tumbled out on the sawdust, the lions began to roar, and the circus hands rolled out rugs for Oriental dancers while the band blared. The circus was here—all the trappings. Acrobats hanging by their teeth, death-defying leaps and feats. The eighth annual Shrine Circus at Uline's Arena was all you could want.

More than 4500 persons watched the Almas Temple uniformed units, the Oriental and regular Shrine bands and the Legion of Honor join circus performers and animals in the opening pageantry.

From the beginning act to the grand finale when two beautiful girls are shot high in the air from a mammoth cannon, the three-ring, "biggest" and "bestest" circut is a thrill-a-minute affair.

The show will continue daily through Sunday at 8:15 p. m., with matinees beginning today at 2:15 p. m. Tickets are priced from $1.20 and can be purchased at the Almas Temple, 1315 K st. nw.; Stabler's (in Lubar's), 13th and G sts. nw., and at Uline's.

Maj. J. W. Thomason Is Killed In India Airplane Accident

John W. Thomason 3d, 29, a former Marine major and son of the late Col. John W. Thomason, jr., famed World War I Marine hero and author, was killed in a plane crash in India Sunday.

Mr. Thomason was a State Department press attache and vice consul at Calcutta assigned to Katmandu, India.

An Associated Press dispatch from Calcutta said Mr. Thomason had been flying with an Indian friend when their plane went into a spin at 2000 feet and dived into a river. Both died instantly, it was reported.

After helping to set up the Marines' combat correspondent program here, Mr. Thomason was ordered to Samoa in 1942, the first Marine public information officer to be sent overseas in World War II.

Mr. Thomason took part in the Saipan landings, for which he received the Silver Star, and later was public relations officer with the Fourth Marine Division during the invasion of Iwo Jima.

Returning to Washington in July, 1945, Mr. Thomason was attached to Marine Headquarters here before his release from active duty with the rank of major.

He joined the State Department in late 1946 and was sent to India in October, 1947. State Department officials said he was due back in early April for a three-month leave. He was living in India with his wife, Ruth Wynne Thomason.

His father, who was stationed for several years in Washington and Quantico, Va., was widely known as the author of "Red Pants," "Fixed Bayonets," and "Jeb Stuart," books which he illustrated himself. Colonel Thomason died in San Diego in 1944.

In addition to his widow, Mr. Thomason is survived by his mother, Mrs. Leda Thomason, of Terrell, Tex.

Changes Urged In Home Rule

Broader council authority also was advocated by Mrs. Kathryn H. Stone, first vice president of the National League of Women Voters; J. C. Turner, Democratic Central Committee; Harry S. Wender, chairman, District Recreation Board; Clarence Pierce, Americans for Democratic Action; Mrs. Milton Dunn, Voteless League of Women Voters, and several others.

Two formulas were presented yesterday for fixing the Federal payment.

One formula, offered by Miss Juliet G. Munroe of the Voteless District League of Women Voters, would relate the payment to proportion of Federal workers in the District (now 24 per cent) to the Federal personal income tax collected from the District. She said that the Federal payment would be about $22,500,000 on this basis. The present payment is fixed at 12 million dollars annually.

Finch Notes Selling Job

The Washington Home Rule Committee proposed that the amount of Federal payment "shall represent the approximate proportion of the expenses of the District incurred for the benefit of the United States Government and its employes."

Wilbur S. Finch, chairman of the Central Suffrage Conference, said a home rule bill without a Federal payment clause "will place a heavy responsibility on downtown suffrage leaders who must sell the bill in a referendum."

Harry W. Stull, representing the Federation of Citizens' Associations, said his group would probably consider the Kefauver bill at its Saturday night meeting, but emphasized that the Federation is on record or the Auchincloss measure.

Would Enlarge Council

Woolsey Hall, president of the Federation of Civic Associations, suggested that the council be enlarged to 14 members and that each councilman be elected on a ward basis, rather than at large.

Clarke Forman of the District Progressive Party said the measure was a "travesty on civil rights" and urged dropping the reorganization phase unless an anti-discrimination clause were included.

Several witnesses proposed that the 60-day congressional review period and 10-day presidential veto limit be reduced to 30 and 5 days, respectively, to expedite final approval of District legislation.

Other witnesses included James W. Bryan, Democratic Central Committee; Charles E. Sands, Hotel and Restaurant Employes, International Alliance (AFL); George Weaver, Washington Industrial Union Council (CIO); Mrs. Charlotte Sillers, Women's Auxiliary United Public Workers (CIO); John H. Martini, Restaurant and Hotel Employes, International Alliance Local 209 (AFL); Dr. Marshal P. Shephard, District recorder of deeds, and William P. Thomas of 2214 Douglas st. ne.

The 40 members at the meeting in the Stanton School, 25th and Good Hope rd. se., also voted to join the Southeast Recreational Council. A four-member committee was named to study methods of fighting the Japanese beetle.

The action was taken at a meeting in the Atonement Lutheran Church, North Capitol and U sts.

A survey will be made to determine whether there are sufficient trash containers in commercial areas, if merchants are using them, and whether stores are having trash hauled away by District trucks or by private firms.

The Oldest Inhabitants, Inc. last night re-elected its president William D. Nixon and all other incumbent officers. The group met at Odd Fellows Hall, 9th and T sts. nw.

The association reaffirmed its indorsement of Attorney Charles H. Houston for District Commissioner. The Federation of Civic Associations, of which it is a member, last week indorsed Woolsey W. Hall.

A letter to the Board of Education was authorized supporting School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning's request for a new Cardozo High School. The recent Strayer survey report had recommended that plans for a new Cardozo school be abandoned.

The other officers elected, all lawyers, are Frederick Bernays Wiener, executive vice president, Joseph Avery, vice president, Army; Francis X. Daly, vice president, Air; John Finn, vice president, Navy; and John P. Oliver, secretary-treasurer.

Mr. Tucker is the newly appointed Director of Marketing for the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development. Virginia Milk Cut Sought Falls Church Mayor Albert M. Orme will petition the Virginia State Milk Commission for reduced consumer milk prices when the commission meets today.

Mayor Orme last night said the petition would be telegraphed to the commission meeting at 2 p. m. in Alexandria's George Mason Hotel.

Orme took the action upon himself when a scheduled meeting of the City Council was called off for lack of a quorum.

Commission action is sought so Virginia milk prices, regulated by the commission, will conform to price cuts announced in Washington and nearby Maryland.

Strayer Explains Proposed Changes To School Board

The Board of Education will hear Dr. George D. Strayer discuss his proposed school changes at a board meeting Thursday at 1 p. m. at the Franklin Administration Building, 13th and K sts. nw.

Dr. Strayer, who conducted the school survey under authorization of Congress, will discuss his findings at the special meeting.

The survey recommends sweeping changes in the administration of schools and in the duties of members of the school board. Other major recommendations are a 38 million dollar building program financed by an interest-free Federal loan and increased annual school appropriations to boost the pay of teachers.

Hill Gets Bill For White House Repair Board

A bill requested by President Truman to set up a commission to supervise renovation of the White House was introduced in the Senate and the House yesterday.

Representative William M. Whittington (D., Miss.) introduced it in the House, and Senator Dennis Chavez (D., N. Mex.) introduced it in the Senate.

The bill calls for two Senators, two House members and two persons named by the President to serve as members of the commission.

Senator Chavez said his committee will have an open hearing on the bill Friday.

Veteran of nearly 20 years of service with the Metropolitan Police Department, Sergt. James E. Dawn, 51, is slated for retirement Friday.

Dawn, a veteran of both world wars, served as an enlisted man with the Thirtieth Division overseas in World War I, and in the last war, rose to the grade of lieutenant colonel.

He is married and the father of five children. A son, James E. Dawn, jr., is also a member of the Police Department.

Newsmen Denied Access to Official Files in D. C. Court

United States Attorney George Morris Fay announced yesterday that henceforth newsmen will be denied access to his official files in District Court.

Reporters, in protesting, contended that without access to the "jackets" in criminal cases, they are hindered, especially in reporting grand jury indictments. The indictments are sketchy without the information detailed in the supporting jackets.

Fay said he was acting under a reissued order of the Attorney General dated March 24, 1949, which said that the files are confidential and can be used only in the performance of official duties of prosecutors.

Father Gets Jail For Taking Sons On Chicken Raid

Perry Lee Compton, jr., 38, of Clifton, Va., was sentenced to two years in prison yesterday in Fairfax Trial Justice Court for taking along his two minor sons when he raided a farmer's chicken roost.

He got one year on each of two charges of contributing to the delinquency of a minor. He pleaded innocent and noted appeals on each case to the County Circuit Court.

The charges grew out of the same episode for which Compton received sentence totaling 8 years and 11 months in the County Circuit Court last November.

The gist of the testimony in the several trials was that Compton, with his sons, raided Kirby Day's chicken house in Annandale last June, stole three or four chickens and shot Day.

Compton was sentenced to 11 months for wounding Day and eight years for stealing the chickens. Both convictions have been appealed to the State Supreme Court of Appeals.

Potter Leads Choral Society for Last Time

By Paul Hume

One of Washington's most beloved musicians took his formal leave from the city's concertgoers last night.

Louis Potter, founder and for 18 years director of the Washington Choral Society, directed Haydn's Creation in Constitution Hall. During the coming summer Mr. Potter is moving to South Carolina where he will continue the conducting and organ work which has been his career in this city.

At his entrance last night, chorus members, many of whom have sung with him for nearly two decades, rose to their feet. Audience, orchestra and soloists joined in tribute to the man who has brought Washington much of the world's greatest music. At intermission, Warren Grimes, president of the society's officers, presented Potter with a silver tray. Much moved by the occasion, Potter said simply: "From the bottom of my heart, I thank you all."

As in all his concerts, Louis Potter's choral conducting was the chief glory of the concert. His singers, like so many of our country's amateur choral groups, give him beauty for his asking, and power for the great moments in which he leads them.

Haydn's oratorio is one of the richest scores in all music. All the wondrous details of the creation story, told in the early chapters of the Book of Genesis, are chronicled in music of genius.

The orchestral writing is equally amazing. Trombones stir the mind, dramatically. The flute sings bird songs, and soloists tell of "flaky snow, verdure - clad fields," and how "Man became a living soul."

Katharine Hansel, Harold Haugh and Robert Nicholson were the busy soloists. They sang with both beauty and understanding. Members of the National Symphony supported the singing, with Lyman McCrary playing the organ. Among the orchestral players, the flute, oboe, trumpet and violin did effective work.

The Creation is a noble score holding great meaning these early days of spring. Its beauties were warmly proclaimed in a most eloquent farewell; one which only a conductor can give his friends. Washington will miss Louis Potter but wishes him Godspeed and happiness on his departure.

D. C. Federation Backs Mrs. Magdeburger for Education Board Post

By Genevieve Reynolds

THE D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs yesterday waived traditional policy to indorse its president, Mrs. Edward C. Magdeburger for membership on the District Board of Education. Heretofore, the organization's rule has been not to recommend any individual for public office.

Mrs. Magdeburger is the federation's choice to succeed Mrs. Henry Gratan Doyle, who resigned a 21-year membership and 14-year presidency of the local Board of Education. Her resignation, offered in a letter to Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws of the District Court, became effective March 25.

A seven-woman steering committee was named at the federation's business session, held in the Hamilton Hotel yesterday, to further Mrs. Magdeburger's appointment to the education post. The committee includes Mrs. Charles L. Bilisoly, education department chairman; Mrs. Frank J. Mulkern, club extension department chairman; Mrs. Ernest W. Howard, public relations department chairman; Mrs. Harry De Lung, international relations department chairman; Mrs. Lee D. Ritter, vice chairman of hospitality; Mrs. Gertrude Parks, welfare department chairman; Mrs. Benjamin Schoenfeld, director, Women's Pharmaceutical Association.

FOR MANY years active in P-TA, Mrs. Magdeburger is a past president of the Macfarland Association, and a former music chairman of the D. C. Congress of Parents and Teachers. She has also served as worthy grand matron of the D. C. Order of the Eastern Star.

A native of Missouri, Mrs. Magdeburger attended Washington University in St. Louis. Also, she studied music at the Boeddecker Conservatory, receiving an artist's diploma.

MRS. HARVEY W. WILEY, legislation department chairman, presented a series of resolutions yesterday which will come up for action at the General Federation of Women's Club's annual convention in Hollywood, Fla., April 25-30. She told the District Federation members that the GFWC's proposed resolution indorsing the Un-American Activities Committee "is vague, guarded and watered down" and suggested that the District delegates offer a substitute resolution previously indorsed by the local group. The District Federation's strongly worded resolution definitely commends the House Un-American Activities Committee for its past work and calls upon Congress to appropriate sufficient funds to expand the committee's work.

She offered for consideration and study resolutions supporting the North Atlantic Pact, legislation providing for more comprehensive long range approach to the Nation's housing problem, particularly low-cost housing.

Copies of a resolution opposing national health insurance were distributed to the District Federation members by Mrs. Wiley. Voting on the measure will take place at the organization's next meeting, scheduled for Wednesday, April 20, 10 a. m., in the Hamilton Hotel.

Miss Melva Lino, former French professor at Mount Holyoke College and member of the American Association of University Women, spoke at the morning session, discussing various trends in education. During the afternoon session, federation members heard a talk by Mrs. Theodore Wedel.

Mrs. Magdeburger presided at the all-day meeting.

Democrats Hear Rep. Patman

Legislation is a matter of compromise, and any legislator who refuses to compromise doesn't accomplish much, Representative Wright Patman told members of the Woman's National Democratic Club yesterday in a luncheon address.

To illustrate the passage of bills and the give and take involved, the Texas Representative cited the new Rent Control bill agreed upon by a committee of Senate and House conferees yesterday. As a member of the House Conference Committee on Rent Control, he was one of the conferees who agreed to accept the Senate definition of "fair net operating incomes for landlords."

"There were compromises on both sides," said Representative Patman. "The Senate abandoned its demand for automatic increases of 15 per cent over a period of 12 months, and in turn the House conferees relented and accepted the Senate definition of 'fair net operating income.'"

Representative Patman cautioned club members about changes in the United States Constitution. "Watch the amendment to change the electorial college," he admonished. "There's more in the change than meets the eye. To change the Constitution so that a President could be elected by a plurality rather than a majority vote would likely result in the outgrowth of five or six political parties, any of which could elect a minority President."

Excoriating citizens who contend that they want no part of politics, the Lone Star State Representative asserted, "those who say they are against politics are against our Government, for our Government is politics. And we must have good clean politics as a vehicle to implement our Government."

Girl's Studies Suffer, Her Mind Is Sick With Shock, Since Aunt Revealed That Her Parents Rushed Marriage to Beat the Stork

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a girl 18, and last fall when I was visiting my father's sister in another city, we were talking about young girls' department, etc., and she told me my parents got married just three months before I was born.

She said it was necessary for my father to come home from a post he held several thousand miles away, in order to make mother "an honest woman," as she termed it. I had noticed my birth date and their marriage date wasn't entered in the family Bible, but thought nothing much of it. Aunt Kit said she brought up the subject wondering if my birth record was in order.

My parents have always been highly respected in our community, and I have always adored them. The other girls' parents have never inquired much about where we were going, or how late we would stay, if my mother approved. All my school chums have commented, when visiting us, how fine my parents are; and I have been ever so proud of them.

Girl Can't Reconcile Story With Her Ideas

THIS is a terrible blow. I simply can't reconcile what I have heard with the goodness and sweetness my mother has always shown everyone. I don't feel I can have faith in anyone again. I have worried over the matter until my school work is affected; and recently a school authority called me in, inquired if I were having "boy trouble" and told me to discuss whatever problem I had with my parents. But I simply can't.

I think my father suspects something, however. Recently he wrote Aunt Kit that it won't be convenient for her to visit us this spring, though I don't know why; and recently he asked me what is wrong with me. He said he hoped I would never do anything to hurt my mother, that she was always a wonderful woman, while he had been a bit wild in his college days, as quite a few of his colleagues were.

Will you please advise me how I should feel about this, and what I should do—as I cannot get over the shock, and cannot discuss it with anyone I know. V. C.

Girl Is Floored by Aunt's Venom

DEAR V. C.: The shock isn't due to your parents' lovestory, now ancient history. It is due to your Aunt Kit's dastardly thrust last fall. You are floored by her sneak attack on your mother—against which you had no defense.

It was a shattering experience, of course, to "feel" the venom, the coiled destructive hate, implicit in her devious gossip about your natal history. And incidentally, her alleged concern about your birth record is hypocritical hogwash. It is "in order." You are quite legitimate, for after all you were born in wedlock, even if the marriage was a bit late.

You absorbed the poison of Aunt Kit's attitude and concluded, unconsciously, that all who know, or might hear of the story, would echo her sly smear-talk. But don't be silly. Aunt Kit is jealous of your mother for various reasons—but mostly because you and your father love her so dearly, and because you've tended to put her on a pedestal, due to her good mothering of you.

Parents' Mature Record Is Noble

HERE'S WHAT to think of your parents: Spiritually they have grown up since the years when your father was wild and thoughtless in courtship. There is nobility in your father's statement that your mother was always a wonderful person; and there is mature virtue in her "goodness and sweetness" to everyone.

They are greatly devoted, as your father's testimony shows. They are greatly respected in the community where you live, which means that in marriage they have weathered every test of social worth. And they have given you warmhearted love and security. What more could you ask of parents?

For advice: Give your dad a break. He wants to know what's wrong, so tell him confidentially. I'm sure he's big enough to meet the subject with delicacy and dignity, and that he would welcome a chance to help you recover from Aunt Kit's poison-dose. A heart-to-heart talk with him should (1) bring your filial feelings back to normal and (2) add considerably to your growth as a person. M.H.

AAUW Hears Talk On Women's Status In Latin America

Women's rising status in the Latin-American countries manifests itself in such major ways as equal suffrage and equal property rights in some of the more advanced countries, and in smaller ways, such as the right of mature women to walk alone at night without feeling disgraced, according to Miss Mary Cannon, chief of the international division of the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor.

Speaking before members of the Washington Branch of the American Association of University Women at a tea yesterday afternoon in the clubhouse at 1515 New Hampshire ave. nw., Miss Cannon said that women of the middle and upper middle classes now feel free to work in the professions and business. At one time they used to cover their heads with black mantillas as they went to work, hoping the neighbors would think they were on their way to church.

Women in the Latin-American countries who do have equal suffrage, and women in the other countries who are struggling to get equal suffrage, are often disappointed, Miss Cannon said, when they see how few women are in the United States Congress.

"They look to us for an example," Miss Cannon said, pointing out that they will expect the United States Government to ratify the national suffrage part of the Bogota Conference resolutions, as an act of good faith.

A dinner meeting followel by a discussion of the Berlin situation with emphasis on currency and economic problems, was also held at the clubhouse last evening.

Sen. Kefauver Introduces Rights Bill

A bill to develop a program to eliminate discriminations against women on the basis of sex was introduced yesterday by Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) on behalf of himself, Senators Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.), James E. Murray (D., Mont.), Robert Wagner (D., N. Y.), Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.) and Dennis Chavez (D., N. Mex.).

The Senate bill declares that it is the Federal Government's policy to abolish distinctions based on sex in Federal Government and its administration except those "reasonably justified differences in physical structure or by maternal function."

Backing the bill are the proponents of the "Protective Legislation" groups such as the Women's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor, the CIO United Mine Workers and several civic and church groups.

Introduction of the bill comes on the eve of the National Woman's Party's annual convention which opens here Friday. Principal item on the NWP's agenda is the passage of the "Equal Rights Amendmen," which would give women and men equality via a constitutional amendment.

Another major provision of the bill introduced by Senator Kefauver and his colleagues is a recommendation that the various States enunciate a similar policy to that of the United States Government in eliminating job discriminations after the physical differences of men and women have been taken into consideration.

Mine Labor Boss

Colorful Sir Will Lawther Is Expert at Coal Mining, Child Raising and Repartee

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

SINCE WINSTON CHURCHILL is still in the country, Ernest Bevin en route, and members of the Anglo-American Committee on Productivity popping up all over, we might as well go all-out British and be done with it.

Six British members of the productivity committee were here briefly for talks on the labor aspect of the European Recovery Program. But far more vital were their discussions with AFL and CIO officials on the possibility of forming a world organization of free, democratic trades unions as opposition to the Communist controlled World Federation of Trades Unions.

Most amusingly outspoken of the six Britishers was Sir William Lawther, J.P. (Justice of Peace) who, as president of the National Union of Mineworkers, is English equivalent of our John L. Lewis. Sir Will, who recently acquired his "handle," is also chairman of the General Council of the Trades Union Congress. Unlike the glowering John L., there is nothing severe or even remotely terrifying about Sir Will. He's comfortably paunchy, voluble on an extraordinary variety of subjects, both amusing and grim, in a richly, sometimes untranslatable, Durham accent.

Though cosily dressed for English winter (long underdrawers showing between sock and trouser), having been acclimatized to hot underground coal pits, he happily omitted the usual British moan about our suffocating central heating.

Went to Work at 12

THE ELDEST of 15 children, 11 of whom survived, he went to work in a coal pit, like his father and grandfather before him, at the age of 12 for the incredible renumeration of shilling, sixpence (about 37 cents) a week. The little Lawthers slept two-three in a bed and so intimately enmeshed in the younger kids' upbringing was Sir-Will that he's tempted to wrte a book on child-raising. His subterranean career seemed to have helped rather than hurt and during his long tenure as president of the mineworkers he's become cosmopolitan, a terrific snob about his trade and a whizz at repartee. Here in 1941 he was making a speech in our Far West when a kibitzer, not caring for his talk tried a potshot at Britain's touchy subject shouting "What about the Indians?"

"What do you mean, what about them?" snapped Sir Will "I thought you'd shot 'em all!"

Perhaps his best story, though, is about the Russian Stakanovite, the record maker who achieved the extraordinary feat of personally mining something like 6 tons of coal in a day. Sir Will, then in Russia, took a look-see, found the lad had dislodged practically loose coal, sent it down a slanting shaft—where it was utterly impossible to retrieve!

Churchill to Monty

CHURCHILL stories, no matter how dated, are always a joy. Here's one recently uncovered, as far as we know, never printed. When the Prime Minister was in Cairo before the Battle of El Alamein he decided Gen. Bernard Montgomery was the right man to run the North African campaign. Back in London, after appointing Montgomery, Mr. Churchill's mind began to seethe with ideas on how the campaign should be fought.

Wanting to brief the general, he ordered him back from Africa. When "Monty" arrived the P.M. was in fine fettle. In the course of the briefing process he said approximately as follows:

"General, I think you would be well advised to study the science that the Americans call logistics. That is to say, the correct disposition of your ships, and the correct disposition of your lorry trains, so that your men in the front line may get everything they need.

"Monty" sat a moment in gloomy thought. "Prime Minister, I am sure you are right, but I wonder whether it would be a good thing for me to become too deeply involved in these purely technical matters because, after all, you know, familiarity breeds contempt."

Churchill unclenched his cigar, flicked an ash on his waistcoat.

"I perceive your point, my dear general. But I would like to remind you that without a certain degree of familiarity we could not breed anything at all." That finished that.

Hollywood Brass

OUT HOLLYWOOD way, the Governor General of Canada, Field Marshal Viscount Alexander of Tunis, K. G. etc., etc., etc., has been making quite a triumphal tour. One of his stops was a trip to Metro-Goldywn-Mayer studios. For the occasion, the Governor wore full panoply uniform with at least five rows of medals and corresponding ribbons. It so happened that on one of the studio lots a story with military setting was being "shot." The cast included a swarm of extras gotten up in British, Russian and other assorted military habiliments. As Lord Alexander appeared, a property man scurried by, appraised his getup, judged him an actor. "Gee" he said pausing briefly "Some brass! What war?"

The directors and other cinema nabobs trailing Alexander turned vert with distress, apologized profusely, interminably, much to the Governor's intense enjoyment. Leaving, he turned to Walter Pidgeon, murmured "I've never been so flattered. Imagine being taken for a real actor!"

How to Prepare Pineapple Cheese Pie

PINEAPPLE CHEESE PIE

Dash of salt.
2 tablespoons flour.
3 egg yolks, beaten.
1 cup milk.
1 cup canned crushed pineapple.
Pastry.

Mix cheese well with sugar, salt and flour. Combine egg yolks and milk and stir in. Add pineapple. Turn mixture into pastry-lined pie pan and bake in a hot oven 10 minutes. Then reduce heat to moderate (350 degrees Fahrenheit) and bake about 45 minutes, or until knife comes out clean when inserted in filling. This recipe makes one 9-inch pie.

I am making a braided wool rug, my first. After the center piece was finished and I began to add on to it, the center part began to buck up. It seems the farther I get along the whole rug seems to be turning up. I was told that I should skip quite a few stitches, every other one as you make the oval turn, this doesn't seem to do the trick for me. Can you tell me what is wrong? H. S. P.

To prevent a braided rug from cupping, lay the rug on a flat surface to coil the braids. Now, while most of the rug remains flat, slip the hand under the braid and sew it to the rest of the rug, being sure there is no tendency to stretch the braid on the curves. When the rug starts to cup, that is a sign that each succeeding row of braid has been held too tightly not allowing enough fullness for the curve. The only way to correct this is to remove the braids back to the place where they started to turn up. When they are ripped off, lay the center of the rug flat, wrong side up, and lay one braid about one-half the way around the rug. Pin it every 4 or 5 inches to hold until sewed.

Use a plastic coating which is recommended especially for leatherette. For further information about the coating, call District 1130.

How can decals be removed from painted furniture? H. MacW.

Soak the decals with hot vinegar, allowing the vinegar to stand on them for 20 minutes and then pull off. If they don't come off readily with this treatment, varnish or shellac has probably been applied over the decals. In this case, wipe just the surface of the decals with varnish remover on a soft cloth. When the varnish is all gone, proceed as above.

The only place we can put our gas stove is in front of a window, and you can imagine how the curtains look after a short time. I have been thinking of covering the window with oilcloth or something of the like. We are renting the house so we can't have the window removed. There are three other large windows in the kitchen and we would still have plenty of light. Could you suggest a way to cover the window that will look neat or even attractive? W. J. L.

You could cover the window by having a piece of wallboard cut to fit into the frame exactly. To make it less conspicuous, the wallboard and the window frame should be painted to match the walls. An attractive way to treat the window without eliminating it would be to frame the window with a three to four inch wide ruffle of oilcloth. Choose a gay, tiny patterned cloth, cut the strips with pinking shears and with the sewing machine sew a ½-inch tape down the middle, on the wrong side of the oilcloth. Run a heavy string through the tape and gather the cloth on the string to make a double ruffle. The ruffle can be easily wiped off when soiled and will add a gay note to the kitchen. Why don't you eliminate all the kitchen curtains and treat all the windows this way?

I plan to re-upholster a sofa. Where can I purchase (1) webbing, and (2) upholstery needles? V. D.

Hints for the Homemaker . . .

In making stuffed green peppers for a main dish many cooks like to soften the peppers before stuffing by simmering them in boiling water for a few minutes.

It's a good idea to keep a separate board for slicing and chopping onions so that the onion flavor does not affect other foods.

To make extra-pretty slices of cumber then run the sharp end cumber then run the sharp tines of a fork lengthwise down the vegetable. Slice as thin as possible—each slice will have an attractive scalloped edge.

Molded salads or desserts should not be taken out of their molds too far in advance of actual serving.

If you fry foods frequently, a frying basket that fits into a deep iron or aluminum pan is a good investment. Do not crowd the basket in frying.

Sleepy Trade Leaves Stocks Little Changed

New York, March 28 (AP).—The stock market stirred around in its sleep today but never woke up.

Small gains added early in the day were shaved off in later trading, leaving the list as a whole unchanged on average.

Some of the leading issues swung out of the narrow fractional range at times for gains or losses of a point or two, but no particular buying or selling pressure accompanied the swings.

Such narrowness has been a characteristic of the market for some time. Many Wall Street observers believe it may continue until first-quarter earnings reports give an indication of the state of business.

While waiting for this over-all picture, individual issues have responded to their own corporate news developments.

Railroads asked for additional revenue for carrying United States mail which would put them 80 per cent above 1947. They need the money, they told the Interstate Commerce Commission in a petition, to meet higher wages and other operating costs. Net operating income reports for the first two months this year so far have shown no surprises and may indicate first-quarter earnings will be a little better than expected.

The market as a whole today did virtually nothing. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was unchanged at 63.3. The industrial component was unchanged, rails lost one tenth of a point and utilities advanced one tenth of a point. The volume of 700,000 shares was about average.

Of the 16 most active stocks, only one moved more than one eighth of a point, and seven of the 16 were unchanged.

Martin Aircraft Reports Deficit Of $16,710,762

Baltimore, March 28 (AP).—A net loss last year of $16,710,762 was reported today by the Glenn L. Martin Aircraft Co. The firm lost $19,-181,526 in 1947.

Net sales last year were reported at $72,686,527 as compared to $23,-365,722 in 1947. Sales to the armed forces accounted for $66,517,149 of the 1948 total.

In his annual report as president of the company, Martin said most of the loss was due to a $12,750,000 write-off in the valuation of Martin 2-0-2 airliners on hand and the setting up of a research reserve of $2,800,000 for "refinements" on the 2-0-2.

He explained that the $12,750,-000 valuation reserve was to reduce inventories of the 2-0-2 to "their estimated realizable value," because of "continued stagnation of the market for new airliners."

The backlog of unfilled orders at the beginning of this year amounted to $88,097,141, the report continued. The backlog at the beginning of 1947 was $105,167,439.

Shipley, Security Savings & Commercial Bank, treasurer, and Myrtle Lewis, Liberty National, historian.

Five Changes Asked in D. C. Gas Charter

By S. Oliver Goodman

Washington Gas Light Co. yesterday asked authority to make five changes in its 101-year-old charter.

In a bill prepared by the District Public Utilities Commission and submitted to Congress by Senator J. Howard McGrath, the gas company sought to:

1. Enlarge its board of directors from the present seven members to a maximum of 15 to give broader representation.

2. Empower it to consolidate or merge with subsidiaries in Maryland and Virginia.

3. Change the date of its annual stockholders' meeting from the first Monday in February to a later date.

4. Repeal the statute fixing the maximum price of gas used in public buildings at 75 cents a thousand cubic feet. (Chairman James H. Flanagan pointed out the PUC still would have authority to regulate the price.)

5. Eliminate the requirement of filing with Congress a complete list of the gas firm's stockholders. (This would not affect a similar statute which requires the firm to file such a report with the PUC).

The bill already indorsed by the PUC as being in the public interest will be studied by the Senate District Committee. It is the first time since 1935 that the gas company has sought revision of its charter.

At its annual stockholders meeting yesterday, adjourned from February 1, all Washington Gas Light Co. directors were reelected as follows: Albert W. Atwood, Everett J. Boothby, Robert C. Owers, Christopher H. Pope, Marcy L. Sperry, Sidney F. Taliaferro and Corcoran Thom.

Directors will meet Wednesday for election of officers.

RECORD SALES: Best & Co. reported record net sales of $39,116,627 for fiscal year ended January 31, 1949, an increase of $2,449,188 over the previous 12 months. Net income totaled $2,853,076 or $4.76 a common share, compared with $2,613,153 or $4.37 a share in 1947. The department store chain operates a branch store in Washington.

ODD LOTS: The City Bank yesterday opened its relocated branch office in a new building at 919 Pennsylvania ave. nw. Former quarters at 10th and the Avenue had proved too small . . . Bigelow-Sanford Carpet Co. announced a 2 per cent price reduction yesterday and laid it to recent wool price drops . . . Steel mill operations this week are estimated at 99.8 per cent of rate capacity, ending a period of 10 successive weeks in which the industry had maintained operations at or above its theoretical capacity . . . The Home Loan Bank Board reports that savings of American people in major types of financial institutions and United States Savings Bonds increased about eight billion dollars in 1948 over the previous year . . . Greyhound Corp. plans to spend another 17 million dollars on terminals and garages . . . The second series of "Sucessful Selling" courses, sponsored by the Electric Institute of Washington, will open Thursday night in the Electric Playhouse auditorium.

PLAN REVISED: National Dairy Products Corp. yesterday announced a revised plan which increases life insurance and accident-sickness benefits and at the same time reduces costs to employes. The worker with average weekly earnings of $60, for example, will gain about a 20 per cent reduction in cost with a 40 per cent increase in benefits. National Dairy is the parent company of Chestnut Farms-Chevy Chase Dairy and Southern Dairies, Inc., and has 1258 employes in Washington.

PROXY FIGHT: Col. William A. Roberts, a Washington attorney, is soliciting proxies in opposition to the management of Pittsburgh Steel Co. Colonel Roberts is seeking election to the company's directorate. In his proxy statement he claims: "In spite of the significant opportunities presented during the past two years . . . (the management) has failed to propose and submit to the stockholders a plan of recapitalization designed to eliminate dividend arrears on the company's preferred stock . . ." The proxy statement says that Colonel Roberts was formerly president of the Federal Bar Association and senior attorney examiner for the Interstate Commerce Commission.

VISIT GREENBRIER: A special committee of the District of Columbia Bankers Association has returned from a weekend visit to The Greenbrier at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., where the June 15 to 19 convention will be held. The committee "was impressed" by the improvements and changes made since last year's convention at the same place, President Robert H. Lacey reported yesterday.

EARNINGS: Standard Oil Co. of California reported net earnings of $161,491,932, or $12.42 a common share for 1948, compared with $107,268,575, or $8.25 a share in 1947. Other earnings statements:

Portra

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Poet Metcalfe Will Be On WTOP Today

Dorothy Landaker of 4306 Russell ave., Mount Rainier, Md., says that she wouldn't dream of joining the argument about whether one line of "Portraits" failed to scan last week. Dorothy says:

I, too, once smiled a little smile
At Mister Metcalfe's labors.
But my glass wall's convenient to
The bricks and stones of neighbors.

Smart gal, Dorothy. Anybody who criticizes Rhymster James Metcalfe quickly discovers how many people read his stuff and like it.

Incidentally, by a strange quirk of Fate our Mr. Metcalfe was in town yesterday, to autograph books at Kann's, and I seized the opportunity to invite him to appear on my "This Is Washington" program today.

Just to show him that the invitation comes from a man with a poet's soul, let me announce his appearance like this:

Let's fret no more about the charge . . . That Metcalfe missed a beat . . . 'Cause he is now in Washington . . . To give his fans a treat . . . So if you'd like to hear this gent . . . I'll give you warning fair . . . He's going to be my guest today . . . And share my chunk of air . . . We'll start this morning, sharp at 10 . . . The station's known as "TOP" . . . The two of us will clown around . . . 'Til Godfrey makes us stop.

Vagrant thought: What a soft racket that fellow Metcalfe has! How can a guy keep busy writing only one paragraph a day?

'TWAS EVER THUS

First-day losers at Bowie will now spend the remainder of the meeting trying to get even.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Three 6-week-old kittens." (Woodley 6114.)

PET PEEVE

Every year when it's time to get a new auto license, the Director of Vehicles and Traffic sends me a long string of cards which are hinged together like a travel agency's ticket to Siam.

Invariably I read the various cards carefully, but in mounting confusion. Then I make out a check for an amount inscribed on one of the cards, and hopefully mail the whole smear off to George Keneipp.

When my license tags arrive a few days later, I murmur: "I must have done the right thing."

This year, I'm heartened to learn that at least one other District Liner is as confused as I am. Mrs. R. R. Ely of 5120 Watson st. nw. became irked when she read that Mr. Keneipp was complaining about people who "fail to comply with instructions" when applying for license renewals. Snaps Mrs. Ely:

"What instructions? Nowhere on these cards will you find a clear and concise statement of what you're supposed to do with them. Inasmuch as the motorist does nothing with the application except return it, why is it mailed out at all? Why don't they just send you a bill?"

Probably because this system makes it easier for the license people to handle your application. But it certainly wouldn't do any harm to enclose some explicit instructions.

The cards are not only confusing—they're mighty dull reading matter. Especially the small print.

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW

Undercover agents have arrested a District man who sold them a pint of moonshine for $2.25.

It serves him right. Now maybe he'll bring his prices down.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

I couldn't help recalling your item about illegal parking by policemen while I was hunting for a parking place today.

I noticed a police motorcycle with tag No. XX illegally parked in a bus stop in the 800 block of 13th st. nw., with the cop no place in sight. I wondered what kind of "emergency" business he was on.

I drove on, and continued my search for a berth. But some 10 or 15 minutes later I noticed that the same motorcycle had been moved to the 700 block, where the cop was writing out tickets for illegal parking—the same offense he had just committed.

Eric Reisfeld,
Silver Spring, Md.

Dear Eric:

I've deleted the number of the motorcycle, because we're not really positive that the policeman was on nonemergency business, so it wouldn't be fair to get him in Dutch.

Major Barrett has given his boys orders to obey the traffic laws, except when they're on genuine emergencies.

If you see a policeman violate the law without good reason, I'm sure his superiors would be just as critical as we are, and would welcome a citizen's report.

Bill.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Pan Am Also Flies Lobby-Ways

By Drew Pearson

Pan American Airways not only operates airplanes to many corners of the world, but it operates lobbying activities to almost every corner of Washington. Free rides, fancy dinner parties, special airplanes at disposal of Senators and newspapermen are part of the way Pan American has helped to get lush air routes and fat mail subsidies.

PEARSON

The other day, however, Pan Am pulled a new wrinkle. It has half a dozen important cases pending before the Civil Aeronautics Board. While waiting decision on these cases Pan Am staged a junket for some of the top Government men who will pass on them.

In Pan Am's latest luxury liner, a Boeing stratocruiser, Oswald Ryan, vice chairman of the CAB, plus four CAB officials flew to Miami, basked in the sun for three days, spent little money, ostensibly inspected Pan Am's Miami base. With Ryan went Warner Hord, chief of the accounting and rates division; William Cusick, CAB examiner; Frank Crozier, special adviser on route matters; William Andrews, chief of the accident investigation bureau; Ed Slattery, CAB's publicity chief.

Queried about details of this "inspection," the CAB claimed it was "routine." Just why the CAB permits its employes to accept favors from the same corporations CAB is charged by law to regulate remains a mystery.

However, there would be less corporate subsidy of Government employes if Congress would increase the pitifully inadequate travel allowance now paid them.

Merry-Go-Round

On the Truman list to take Mon Wallgreen's job is George Humphrey of Cleveland, biggest individual coal operator in the USA. Humphrey is head of the M. H. Hanna Co., National Steel, Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal and director of Phelps Dodge Corp., National City Bank of Cleveland. Also, he's a Republican . . . Likewise on Truman's list to be chairman of the National Security Resources Board is a big-business Democrat—Floyd Odlum, head of the Atlas Corp., and director of United Fruit, Madison Square Garden. Last but not least, Odlum is the husband of Jacqueline Cochran. She is the famed beauty-parlor magnate, aviator, and wartime organizer of the Wasps. . . . Odlum contributed heavily to the Truman campaign. . . . Under scrutiny to be Undersecretary of National Defense is Bob Hinckley, former Undersecretary of Commerce, one-time right bower of Harry Hopkins in WPA, now vice president of the American Broadcasting Co.

Old-Time Republicanism

The Republican National Committee got a sharp ear-boxing from liberal Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon at a recent secret session of GOP Senators. Furthermore, Ohio's conservative Bob Taft, who is poles apart with Morse on most things, backed the Oregonian to the limit.

"I'm fed up with having the National Committee dictate to members of Congress on legislative policy," Morse angrily told his colleagues. "In many States committee members aren't even elected, like we are. They are appointed by courthouse gangs, and do not express rank-and-file sentiment.

"We've got to restore public confidence in the Republican Party and it's obvious we will get no help from the National Committee," the Oregonian continued. "I've got an election fight next year, in which I intend to take my own position on public issues, not the committee's.

"The same goes for this new senatorial campaign committee (headed by GOP Senator Owen Brewster of Maine and former Senator John Townsend of Delaware)," concluded Morse. "I'm going to make it clear that I don't want any money or help from this committee if it is conditioned on the committee telling me how to run my campaign."

A number of colleagues seconded Morse's views, among them Taft, who jumped to his feet and announced:

"I'm in complete agreement with the gentleman on both points he raised."

Capital News Capsules

Tito warns USA—Here is a strange tip from Joe Stalin's one-time friend, Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia. He has informed the United States Ambassador in Belgrade that Russia is secretly building a major submarine base off the Albanian coast, from which Red subs could disrupt all British-American shipping in the Mediterranean.

British Housekeeping—British Ambassador Sir Oliver Franks has to juggle his guest rooms carefully these days. After the visit of Winston Churchill, leader of the opposition in the British Government, Sir Oliver will entertain his own boss, Foreign Minister Bevin, who will arrive for the signing of the Atlantic Pact.

Thumbs Down On Sweden—The American Embassy has flatly turned down Sweden's request to buy American radar equipment. Freeman Matthews, the U. S. Ambassador, told the Swedish foreign minister that the USA has none to spare because it is building a radar fence around its borders. . . . Inside fact is that the Army department has some old radar equipment it could sell the Swedes, but it has no intention of doing so in view of the way the Swedes vetoed the North Atlantic Pact.

Germany In North Atlantic Pact—Secretary Acheson has agreed to meet with the French and British foreign ministers to talk about Germany—early in April in Washington. Main purpose will be to give final approval to plans for creating a separate western German government. Most important aftermath of the meeting is that if all goes well western Germany will be included in the North Atlantic Pact.
